U. S. PLEDGED TO CONFER ON WARS

Today

Arcturus Put to Work. 21 Guns, and Mr. and Mrs. Levy.
How Japan's Planes Work.
Splitting the Atom.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEXT SATURDAY Chicago opens the great 1933 world exposition, celebrating one hundred years of scientific progress.

Postmaster General Farley, representing the President, will officiate and lead the parade. And, most interesting, there will be the Arcturus ceremony.

Looking up on a clear night, you see Arcturus, shining over your head brilliantly, and Arcturus will start all the lighting of the world's fair with a beam of light that left the giant sun forty years ago, in 1893, year of the last Chicago world's fair.

The feeble ray of light from the distant star will be captured, magnified by the photo-electric cell, and made to throw switches lighting the exposition.

ASK YOUR high school boy or girl how far that ray of light has come in forty years, and you will know how far Arcturus is from Chicago. First calculate the number of seconds in forty years, not forgetting leap years, multiply the results by 186,000, and you will know how far the ray of that cosmic candle has traveled to help Chicago celebrate.

If Chicago had waited for the light to come from some outside nebula universe, the exposition would have been postponed more than a million years. What a city Chicago would have been by then!

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, inspecting the Navy Yard for the first time since his election, received a salute of twenty-one guns. That must have amused him. He is not the man to be pleased by fire-crackers.

You can imagine some old ruler, craving the noise of tom-toms, drums, fireworks or cannon, but President Roosevelt will probably discourage the twenty-one gun and other salutes that burn up powder and waste public money.

NOT A great deal of money, you may say, not enough to make much difference to Uncle Sam. But it would be enough to make a difference to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Levy, aged fifty and fifty-two after they had spent a week in New York's streets and parks, with no place to sleep.

Public relief had been shut down. The man's $12 a month as a veteran has been stopped. What a twenty-one gun salute costs the country that can't afford to pay the veteran his $12, would have interested him and his wife very much. The kind magistrate had to commit them to the poorhouse as vagrants for fifteen days, at their request because:

"It would at least give us a chance to have some food and to clean up. We have not had our clothing off since last Saturday."

ANY GENTLEMAN in our Army or Navy who thinks you can meet airplane attack successfully with anti-aircraft guns should read the news from China.

Seventeen Japanese airplanes flew over Tientsin on Saturday. Three other Japanese planes flew over Tangku, three others over Lutai, both near Tientsin. Chinese anti-aircraft guns popped persistently, but did no damage to the planes—no more damage than our anti-aircraft guns could to foreign planes over our cities.

TIENTSIN'S governor, Yu Hsueh-Chung, who knows what airplanes mean, said:

"I won't make Tientsin a smoking shambles like Shanghai last year. If the Japanese want to take the city, they may do so."

Not very heroic, you may say, but there is common sense in it. Our cities, if war and airplanes came, would have to say very much the same thing, if caught without adequate airplane protection, or they would "be made a shambles," and a graveyard filled with victims of poison gas.

PROF. LAWRENCE, of California University, reveals the fact that atoms composing eight different elements have been broken up, their electrons separated from the nuclei to which they cling with such frightful tenacity.

Dr. Millikan, California's "cosmic ray" expert, calls this smashing of eight different atoms "altogether extraordinary." And Dr. Niels Bohr, of Copenhagen, who won the Nobel prize for knowing so much about atoms, calls it "a marvelous advancement."

THE QUESTION is how to harness and use the power that holds the atoms together. We know that the power of the sun, sending heat and light to us 93,000,000 miles through space, is the power of disintegrating atoms, but shall we ever know how to use that power?

Having separated the atom, its electrons and nuclei, will science be able to combine them according to its desire, producing gold, platinum and anything else wanted? It may be done.

WHAT MEN CAN IMAGINE, THEY CAN DO.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS predicts that Premier Daladier and the French Parliament will decline "to pay either the interest or the principal" due June 15, "since it no longer has any hope for the declaration of a moratorium."

According to the Associated Press, France believes that England and other countries will also refuse to pay on June 15. Europe thus declaring its own moratorium, without help from this country.

However, the British, much devoted to racing, have a deep dislike of welchers, and to predict that England will default may not be justified.

NEW SUBWAY PLEA SENT TO COUNCIL

Start Work at Once, Transit Commission Urges in Letter

The City Transit Commission today asked City Council to take action to start work on a rapid transit system between the downtown district and Oakland.

The underground could be constructed from the downtown as far east as Seneca street with the $6,000,000 bond issue provided by the people in 1919, and a surplus of $1,000,000 would remain, the Commission declares in its letter to Council.

The commission states:

"None of the other projects under discussion for inclusion in the proposed program of public improvements is more necessary to the community or more certain of economic justification. None will attain more quickly the character of a self-liquidating public improvement."

EXTENSION PLANS

The ultimate aim of such an improvement would be a line from the North Side to the East End and connecting the most important centers of city activity.

Such a line would take many of the surface cars off the downtown streets and relieve traffic congestion, it is declared. It is intended that the proposed underground line would be operated by the present transportation system, the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The commission suggests a profit-sharing lease in which both the city and the company would share additional net income brought about by the improvement. Concerning this the commission says:

"It is believed that the continued existence of public transit service under healthy conditions requires that such an improvement be undertaken to win back its rapidly dwindling patronage. The fact must be recognized that the company is not now and probably never will be in a financial position to spend money on major improvements in the transit system."

DOWNTOWN LINE

The construction of the rapid transit line might well be undertaken in sections, it is pointed out. A minimum line for operation would extend between the downtown and Craig street, with an extension to the North Side to follow as soon as possible, the report shows.

The possibilities for federal aid are also stressed.

Rolling stock for the new system could be the sale of car trust bonds, it is suggested. Cars of a modern design, lighter and more efficient, would provide high speed service at low cost, it is believed.

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—Lowering of exemptions of married persons' income taxes from $2,500 to $2,000 probably will be enacted by Congress to become effective for the next fiscal year, Speaker Rainey, of the House, predicted today.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—A tax program, falling heavily upon the middle class, was approved today by the House Ways and Means Committee to raise $221,000,000 to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works program in the administration's industrial recovery bill.

The program adopted was No. 1 in a list of four taxing plans submitted by Director of the Budget Lewis W. Douglas. It includes:

Increase of normal income tax rates from 4 to 6 per cent on the first $4,000 of income and from 8 to 10 per cent above that amount to raise $83,000,000. This represents a 50 per cent increase in income taxation on "middle class taxpayers."

Corporation dividends were made subject to normal income tax rates to raise $83,000,000. This measure has been assailed as double taxation because corporations now pay a 13¾ per cent income tax.

Increase in gasoline sales tax from 1 cent to 1¾ cents a gallon to yield $92,000,000.

The program was adopted by a vote of 13 to 9.

A proposal of Representative McCormack (Dem.), of Massachusetts, to substitute a general manufacturers sales tax for part of the program was rejected by about the same vote.

JUDGE APPEARS IN BALM SUIT

Judge Elder W. Marshall appeared in Court today as defendant in an alienation of affections suit brought by Thomas McMinn, formerly of Swissvale.

McMinn, charged that Judge Marshall, by his attentions to Mrs. McMinn over a period of several years, caused her to become estranged from him.

In his bill of complaint, McMinn sets forth that he was delayed in filing the suit by the fact that he was in jail from February 12, 1931, to May 11, 1931.

The case was heard by a jury of 10 women and two men before Visiting Judge Donald P. McPherson, of Gettysburg. Attorney O. K. Eaton represented Judge Marshall.

McMinn, who acted as his own attorney, was the first witness. He testified he had found Judge Marshall and Mrs. McMinn dancing together in the McMinn home, 7463 McClure avenue, Swissvale, on two successive mornings late in July 1927.

Mrs. McMinn, a middle aged brunette, testified she had met Judge Marshall at a picnic in 1927, that he had visited her the next day and that she had not lived with her husband since February 9, 1929 when he found her and Judge Marshall together in the McMinn home.

CO-ED BRIDE DIES BY POISON

Mother Says In-Laws' Religious Prejudice Killed Romance

A romance of the University of Pittsburgh campus, which found a high light in an elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va., was ended today, the bride of less than six weeks, a suicide, according to the coroner.

Henrietta Brien Williams, 18, of 429 Semple street, sophomore in the College of Education of the university, who, on April 11, eloped with Robert Williams, sophomore in the School of Mines, died in Pittsburgh Hospital today from poison tablets taken May 10, the coroner reported, when a threat was made to annul the marriage.

SHATTERED ROMANCE

The bride's mother related the shattered romance of her daughter to Deputy Coroner James E. Carroll. Religious differences, she said, was the basis of opposition from the bridegroom's family.

After the elopement the couple began housekeeping in two rooms at 241 North Dithridge street.

Accordingto Mrs. Nettie Brien, the couple was happy until Williams went home to Bradford to break the news of his marriage. After his return to school, Mrs. Brien said, Williams' father, mother and sister came to Pittsburgh and at a family gathering in the Brien home announced the wedding would have to be annulled because Miss Brien was a Jewess.

When the Williams party left the Brien home, they were followed to an Oakland hotel and as the car dashed away from the hotel, it was followed by the bride's brother and father. Overtaken at

Pirates Open Series With Dodgers

FORBES FIELD, May 22.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, under the direction of Max Carey, former Pirate star, made their first appearance of the season here this afternoon.

Displeased over the way his club has been playing, Manager Carey announced two changes in his lineup. Glenn Wright, former Pirate, was benched and Jimmy Jordan sent to short. Hack Wilson replaced Danny Taylor in centerfield.

AMERICA'S ISOLATION ENDED

Nation to Respect Blockade Against Aggressor

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND, May 22.—(AP.) President Roosevelt's peace message was translated into a program of action at the disarmament conference today when the United States virtually offered to abandon its traditional policy of isolation.

Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, told the nations of the world that his government would consult with them when peace is menaced.

If the United States agrees with the other countries concerning the identity of an aggressor nation, he promised that Washington will refrain from any action of a nature to hinder collective efforts to restore peace.

This doctrine, considered by League of Nations circles as an abandonment of America's traditional policy of isolation, was announced by Mr. Davis to the disarmament conference in an eagerly-awaited speech this afternoon.

The doctrine was taken to mean that when the nations take punitive measures against an aggressor the United States, if it agrees to the identity of the aggressor, will not insist upon the rights of neutrality.

RESPECTS BLOCKADE

Practically, the American doctrine, although negative in form, means that the United States will not trade with an aggressor nation or protect its nationals who are doing so, according to the interpretation given the Davis speech.

In this connection it was said that the main reason for the collapse of the famous Geneva protocol of 1924, which sought to effect an all-round international guarantee of security, was that Britain refused to have its fleet run the risk of difficulty with the

FALL OF PEIPING DUE, JAPS SAY

SHANGHAI, May 22.—(INS.)—Japanese reports this afternoon stated Peiping would be occupied by Japanese troops before nightfall.

Information received by Japanese military headquarters told of the capture of Tungchow, despite the fact previous assurances had been received from Changchun, capital of Manchukuo, that there would be no further Japanese advance.

PEIPING, May 22.—(INS.)—Japanese troops advanced closer to the Peiping-Tientsin area today as tension heightened following outbursts of violence terminating negotiations for cessation of Sino-Japanese hostilities.

The steady Japanese advance with its threat of destructive conflict in Peiping, where many American and British citizens reside, caused Japanese officials to confer on the question of reinforcing the Japanese gafrison here with additional troops from Tientsin.

W. L. MELLON

Mr. Mellon, whose income tax affairs today were under the scrutiny of two investigators.

MELLON AIDES UNDER PROBE

Charles A. Russell, former Federal Power Commission Counsel, and David A. Olson, who sued Andrew W. Mellon for $400,000,000 in connection with steamship line tax exemptions, are in Pittsburgh today.

Russell, denying that he would file suit against the former Secretary of the Treasury personally for income tax evasion, declared he and Olson were here investigating income tax matters involving seven officials of the Gulf Oil Corporation, a Mellon concern.

He refused to say whether he would file suits here, but it was assumed that he was getting further details for his suit against David S. Blair, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue, filed in Washington Saturday.

SEVEN NAMED

In it he named W. L. Mellon, nephew of the former secretary, and six other heads of the Gulf concern. The others named in the Blair suit are W. J. Guthrie, H. L. Stone, G. R. Nutty, John E. Nelson, F. A. Leovy and W. V. Hartman.

Blair was charged with refusing to investigate alleged false income

Federal Building Guarded From Reds

The Federal Building was guarded today to defeat any demonstration by friends of Bleddyn C. Thomas, 34, of Thompson street, Penn Township. Thomas went on trial on a charge of giving false testimony in his naturalization proceedings. Police reported finding Communistic literature in his home.

CHURCH ORDERS WOODFIN QUIZ

The Monongahela Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church today voted to appoint a commission of seven to investigate the affairs of the Third United Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. Dr. William M. Woodfin is pastor.

Troubles recently reached a climax in the annual ecclesiastical meeting May 3, at which Dr. Woodfin was given a vote of confidence by his congregation, 276 to 86.

The board investigating are Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan, Shadyside United Presbyterian Church; Dr. E. C. McCown, Mt. Lebanon; Dr. George A. Long, Homewood; Dr. A. R. Robinson, Sixth U. P.; Dr. J. M. McQuilkin, Carnegie, and two elders, Frank H. Davis, of the Second Church, Wilkinsburg, and James S. McKibbin, of the First United Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Woodfin had been asked to resign by the elders of his church, but was sustained by the meeting of the congregation, which he called in special session.

Verona Loses Suit Against Nicola

John J. Verona, the Hill politician, today lost his fight to collect a $150,000 fee from F. F. Nicola's Schenley Farms Company.

The Supreme Court reversed the order of Judge William H. McNaugher, who had refused to dismiss the suit. Thus the suit is tossed out of court.

Verona claimed the fee for his part in paving the way for the sale of the Nicola site in Oakland to the county for a Town Hall. The Nicola company contended Verona was not a licensed real estate operator.

'First Lady' Guest Of Mrs. W.R. Hearst

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived shortly before last midnight, after an automobile trip from Groton, Mass., where she spent the week-end with her sons.

After attending a dinner to be tendered in her honor by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and a military ball tonight, Mrs. Roosevelt plans to fly back to Washington Tuesday morning.

FLAMES SWEEP W. & J. BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 22.—The 140-year-old administration building of Washington and Jefferson College today was a prey of flames.

Fire starting on the upper floor of the three-story brick structure, swept through a maze of football equipment, stored there, and ate through the roof.

Local fire companies poured water into the old structure and the lower floors, used by college offices, were thoroughly soaked.

Secretary A. V. McClain said prompt work of firemen kept the landmark from total destruction. He said he believed the fire was caused by a short circuit of electric wires. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Oberhogger, Noted Conductor, Dies

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 22.—(AP.)—Emil Oberhogger, 66, one of America's foremost musicians, who organized and conducted the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra for 19 years, died today at a hotel here. He had been ill with cancer for several months.

Screams Foil Nudists Kidnaping Girl, 8

DENVER, May 22.—(AP.)—Piercing screams of a brother thwarted the kidnaping of 8-year-old Betty Lee O'Dell by a woman described by the children as nearly nude and a man entirely unclad.

Continuing their investigation of the abduction reported attempted early Sunday while the parents of the children were assertedly away at a party, officers said they believed the woman was mentally unbalanced or the leader of a nudist cult.

Elwood, 14, told police he was awakened by someone tearing a screen from a window. He went into a hallway, where he said he saw a woman, clad only in bloomers, creeping toward his sister's room.

Frightened, he said, he watched until the woman, with the child clasped to her breast, left by a rear door. Then he screamed.

As he ran to the door, he said, he saw the woman and a nude man flee down an alley, leaving the girl on the ground. Police, summoned by neighbors, found no trace of the pair, but reported finding prints of bare feet. The girl has a bruise on her neck, where someone apparently had clutched her.

A 7-month old sister of Betty and Elwood, and another child, a friend of Betty, were in the home.

Mitchell, 'Beer Baron' Equals Before Court

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank, on trial for alleged income tax evasion, was a spectator today at the arraignment of Waxey Gordon, beer racketeer, also charged with income tax evasion.

As an added attraction, Mitchell was an eager listener to the dispute between prosecutor and counsel for Joseph W. Harriman, founder of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, who last week attempted suicide.

Harriman, charged with making false entries in the bank books totaling at least $1,000,000, will go on trial next week, Federal Judge Henry Goddard ruled.

Gordon was put under $100,000 bail and his trial set for two weeks from today.

When "Waxey" Gordon was arraigned and pleaded not guilty, he stood within a few feet of Mitchell. The two men, charged with the same crime, presented a striking outward contrast.

The government charges had leveled the social barrier.

Mitchell is on trial for alleged failure to pay $858,429 income taxes for 1929 and 1930 on an income of more than $4,000,000.

Gordon is charged with concealing an income of $1,427,531 in 1930 and an income of $189,159 in 1931. He paid only a tax of $10.75 in 1930.

MORGAN TESTIMONY TO BARE BANKING EVILS, PECORA SAYS

PROBER SEEKS TO SHOW NEED OF REFORM

Investigator Asserts He Will Justify Curb On Private Firms

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—A complete reform of American banking methods will be justified by revelations at the Senate inquiry into banking activities of J. P. Morgan and Co., Ferdinand Pecora, special counsel for the Senate banking and currency committee told International News Service today.

Pecora said the Morgan investigation would reveal facts justifying Congress in divorcing commercial from investment banking and separating banks from all business affiliates. He also indicated the inquiry would develop evidence to justify a federal ban on private banking, by prohibiting private bankers from taking deposits so long as they fail to undergo federal or state supervision.

WIGGIN SUBPENAED

Pecora revealed that Albert H. Wiggin, president of Chase National Bank, had been subpenaed to appear before the committee July 14. The subpena was served on Wiggin at his New York offices Saturday morning, just before he sailed for Germany. It was said Wiggin expects to return to this country by July 1.

The Chase National Bank, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has great interests, will be drawn into the Senate inquiry when the committee takes up banks and their affiliates. Just recently, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of Chase National Bank, announced that bank was divorcing all business affiliates. Wiggin and Aldrich will be called to discuss their experience with the affiliate problem.

REVELATIONS DUE

Touching on the appearance of J. Pierpont Morgan as a witness tomorrow, Pecora told International News Service:

"We expect to derive much information concerning the practices and customs prevalent in the private banking field, which should be of interest to the entire public, including the segment of it called 'Wall Street.'"

Pecora said Morgan would be the first witness tomorrow.

The entire partnership of the Morgan firm has been supenaed. Thomas W. Lamont and the other partners will follow Morgan to the stand. Later, officials of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Dillen, Read & Co., and other great financial firms, will be called.

MORGAN LEAVES TODAY

NEW YORK, May 22.—(INS.)—J. P. Morgan, head of the "House of Morgan," will leave for Washington some time this afternoon for the forthcoming Senate investigation into the affairs of his banking concern, it was stated this morning at the office of John W. Davis, attorney for Morgan.

Morgan is scheduled to be the first witness at the public hearings of the Senate Banking and Finance Committee, starting tomorrow, it was stated.

BANKRUPT QUIZ BEGINS IN PA.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The Department of Justice disclosed last night that two agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation had been dispatched to investigate the "general bankruptcy situation" in the Middle District of Pennsylvania, presided over by Judge Albert W. Johnson.

Officials at the Justice Department declined to give details as to what the agents would seek or the cause of the inquiry.

LEWISBURG, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson said he knows nothing about a Department of Justice investigation into the bankruptcy situation in his district. He added that "there's nothing unusual" about such investigations, saying they are frequent.

Judge Johnson has presided over the Middle District Court of Pennsylvania since June 1, 1925. He was appointed in May, 1925, by President Coolidge. His headquarters is in Scranton.

Russell said today:

"What I do here is contingent on the result of several conferences. I am interested in the income tax returns of officials of the Gulf company."

$3,000,000 SOUGHT

In the Washington suit, Olson, former investigator for the Senate Banking Committee, charged that Andrew Mellon was one-third owner of the Gulf concern. He alleged the seven officials of the oil concern "did not truthfully represent the exact amounts." He seeks on behalf of the government almost $3,000,000 with interest.

Under a law of 1863, Olson would recover 50 per cent of the amount returned to the government for suing as a citizen.

The Washington suit specifies the alleged amounts which Olson charges that Blair refused to investigate as approximately $2,900,000 for W. L. Mellon from 1923, 27 and 28; about $340,000 for Leovy; over $500,000 for Nutty; over $290,000 for Guthrie, and lesser amounts for the others.

These figures represent the alleged unreported income, taxes on which would have been almost $3,000,000.

MORTGAGE BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The administration's $2,000,000,000 bill for refinancing small home mortgages was approved today by the Senate Banking Committee, liberalized in many directions.

Also legislation to enlarge the Reconstruction Finance Corporation fund for loans to closed banks to $300,000,000 and permit extension of credit to closed building and loan associations was approved by the committee.

On the mortgage bill, it widened the scope to include homes valued up to $25,000, instead of the $10,000 limitation recommended by President Roosevelt or the $15,000 maximum fixed by the House.

It also provided that cash advances could be made up to 50 per cent of the value of a home property for taking up a partially retired mortgage on which foreclosure was threatened. The House limit was 30 per cent.

DRYS SEEK TEST OF BEER BILL

OBERLIN, O., May 22.—(AP.)—A United States Supreme Court test of the legality of the new 3.2 per cent beer will be the first objective of a four-point "second dry war" outlined by Dr. Howard Russell, one of the founders of the Anti-Saloon League.

The 77-year-old dry leader, speaking here, sounded the call for a new offensive against liquor last night. The occasion was the first of a series of meetings celebrating the league's fortieth anniversary.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., May 22.—(AP.)—Increased revenue through repeal of the eighteenth amendment, says F. Scott McBride, would forecast a "bargain with the brewers and distillers to trade off the eighteenth amendment for liquor revenue."

U. S. Millionaires Show Big Decline

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—The millionaires who flourished during boom times are rapidly disappearing.

Condition of Gandhi Miracle to Doctors

DELAY GRANTED HARRIMAN

NEW YORK, May 22.—(INS.)—Trial of Joseph W. Harriman, who is in the Nassau County Hospital at Mineola, Long Island, was formally postponed in Federal Court today until next Monday.

The case, involving the alleged falsification of accounts of the closed Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, had been scheduled to begin today.

But, after a discussion between Federal Attorney George Z. Medalie and George S. Leisure, the banker's counsel, the postponement was announced.

Harriman, meanwhile, was reported in "fair" condition at the hospital where he was taken after he had stabbed himself when he was found hiding on Saturday in the Old Orchard Inn at Roslyn, L. I. He had disappeared at 11 a. m. Friday from a sanitarium in New York City.

STOCK REFORM PASSES HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The House today approved the administration's amended bill for the regulation of securities sales, leaving only Senate action necessary before the measure goes to President Roosevelt.

By a voice vote the House adopted a report by conferees of the House and Senate, who composed differences in the bills passed by the two branches.

There was no debate whatsoever on the conference report or the amendment inserted by the Senate and approved by the State Department for the creation of a corporation to aid American investors regain money spent on foreign-defaulted securities.

MITCHELL AIDE TESTIFIES ON STOCK SALE

Deal Kept Secret for Three Months, He Declares

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(INS.)—George Sweeney, confidential secretary of Charles E. Mitchell during the days when the banker was head of the National City Bank, was unaware of the sale of 18,300 shares of the bank's stock to his wife by Mitchell until three months after the transaction.

Sweeney, described by the prosecution as now only an employe of the bank—"an ambassador without portfolio"—testified to his ignorance concerning the sale at the trial today of Mitchell for alleged income tax evasion.

STEUER'S EFFORTS

Max D. Steuer, defense counsel, cross-examining the witness, hammered away in an attempt to make Sweeney change his testimony.

Sweeney insisted that the first he knew of the sale (which the prosecution charges was a fictitious one for the purpose of defrauding the government) was on April 2, 1930.

Sweeney said that he learned of it only when J. P. Morgan and Company, with whom the 18,300 shares of stock was placed as collateral on a $6,000,000 loan to Mitchell, sent a notice of interest due.

The witness testified that a check was received from Mrs. Mitchell for $59,810.50, the interest due, and that this amount was credited to Mitchell's account and that the letter forwarded the amount to J. P. Morgan & Co.

He testified that this procedure was followed on subsequent interest payments.

SALE 'UNREAL'

The failure of Mitchell to let J. P. Morgan & Co. know about the sale of the stock held as collateral by them was put forward by the government as an indication of the "unreality" of the transaction between the Mitchells.

Defense Counsel Steuer referred to the testimony of Sweeney on Friday that Mitchell had mentioned the sale to him. While the previous testimony did not mention dates, the inference was that Mitchell discussed the matter before April 2, 1930.

However, Sweeney insisted he did not know of the sale before that date. He testified:

"I couldn't have known about it."

The government contends that Mitchell made cash gifts to Mrs. Mitchell to cover the payment of interest; that J. P. Morgan & Co. did not know that the 18,300 shares of stock had been sold to Mitchell's wife, and that, inasmuch as the stock never left the Morgan firm, the "unreality" of the sale is indicated.

Hearings Concluded On Railroad Bill

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The House Interstate Commerce Committee concluded hearings today on the administration's railroad reorganization measure.

It will be taken up in executive session probably Wednesday or Thursday, with a view to reporting it for House action by Friday.

Awarded $10,000, Injured Girl Dies

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 22.—Betty Arnold, 16, who last week won a $10,000 verdict for a broken back, died yesterday. She was injured a year ago when a bus upset while she was en route to Pittsburgh with her Highview High School class.

WAXEY GORDON LINKED IN BEER KILLING

In Hotel Afternoon Hassell, Greenberg Were Slain

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Waxey Gordon, New York's "Public Eenemy Number One," admitted to the authorities today that he was in the Elizabeth-Carteret Hotel, in Elizabeth, N. J., on the afternoon of April 12 when gunmen murdered Max Hassel and Max Greenberg, alleged beer racketeers.

Gordon made this admission to New Jersey authorities who questioned him at the federal building where he was arraigned and held in $100,000 bail for early trial on charges of evading $382,974 taxes on his income of $1,616,900 in 1930 and 1931.

The kingpin racketeer was captured yesterday at a hunting lodge near Monticello, N. Y. The federal authorities are trying to send him to the Atlanta Penitentiary in the same manner in which they put Al Capone behind the bars.

MAKES DENIAL

Gordon denied all knowledge of the actual killings. He said he was in another room on the eighth floor when he heard the shots.

He said that when he heard the shots he "beat it."

He also denied he was with a girl in the hotel at the time.

The double-murder of Hassel and Greenberg, the latter said to have been a partner of Gordon's, was one of the underworld developments of the new "legalized beer era."

Hassel and Greenberg were found in Room 824 of the hotel, riddled with bullets. On a table in the office-like room were eight glasses in which liquor had been served.

Three bullets had been pumped into Hassel. Two of them entered his head, one pierced his chest.

Greenberg was found slumped in a big swivel chair before a desk, three bullets in his head. In his pockets were $1,737 in currency and a loaded .32lcaliber revolver.

BREWERIES MERGED

Hassell was well-known in Pennsylvania, having at one time, according to the police, had breweries in Reading, Pa. It was reported that Hassel's brewery interests had been merged with Gordon's.

Martha McDowell, housekeeper for Gordon at the lodge at White Lake, whehe he fas captured yesterday, was questioned in the federal building.

Gordon professed to have no knowledge of pretty Floria O'Neill, showgirl, whomt he authorities found in the Elizabeth-Carteret Hotel shortly after the shooting.

RECOVERY ACT STUDY MADE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Seeking to analyze President Roosevelt's national recovery act insofar as it may affect construction projects in contemplation for the Pittsburgh industrial area, James Rae, John Rice and Gen. Churchill Mehard, of Pittsburgh, are in Washington today going over the situation with Senator David A. Reed and other Pennsylvania congressmen. Rae said:

"Inasmuch as the recovery bill has not yet been passed by either the Senate or the House, it will be rather difficult to get a clear picture of just how its operation will affect Western Pennsylvania, but we are prepared to lay all necessary ground work to obtain all the relief possible."

Arrested on Rail

EDITH FENTMAN, 24

GIRL ARRESTED ON BRIDGE RAIL

Arrested while sitting on the railing of Panther Hollow Bridge today, Edith Fentiman, 24, of Cumberland, Md., angrily denied any thought of suicide in Central Police Station.

She said:

"Life means much to me. I can't understand all this fuss. I've sat on that railing oodles of times, enjoying the view."

Police said she at first resisted attempts to remove her from the railing. She said when the patrolman first seized her, she thought he was somebody getting fresh.

Miss Fentiman said she had been laid off yesterday at Hobart Courts, Hobart street, where she was employed as a domestic.

She will be given a hearing tomorrow in Morals Court.

BRIDE DIES BY POISON

Oakmont, according to Mrs. Brien, it was announced Williams was being taken back to Bradford.

Telephone calls to Bradford failed to effect a settlement, she said.

Mrs. Brien said Williams and his father returned to Pittsburgh on May 9 and telephoned Mrs. Williams to meet them for lunch. She met Williams the next day, Mrs. Brien said, and while driving with her husband the bride purchased poison tablets and swallowed them.

Mrs. Brien said her daughter told her in the hospital that when she informed her husband she had purchased poison and would take it if he left her, the husband said:

"You're not game."

The girl swallowed the poison and was driven to Pittsburgh Hospital.

In the room the couple occupied in North Dithridge street the Coroner found several letters. One to the husband, torn, read:

"I am waiting and wondering when you are coming back to me. I love you as I never realized how much before."

One addressed to her mother read:

"I know I have caused you a lot of trouble. Please bear up under this. I do want to do what is right, but life holds nothing for me."

Other letters asked forgiveness from her father and brother.

BEER SELLERS WARNED ON MOONSHINE

Park to Have Bonds Forfeited After Dry Violations

Holders of beer permits who sell moonshine face revocation of their permits and forfeiture of bond, District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today.

Park said county detectives would continue to raid speakeasies and where it was found the proprietors held beer permits he would ask the County Treasurer to revoke the permits and forfeit the bonds.

To take care of more than 700 petitions for license to handle beer, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain kept his office open yesterday.

Pastor Urges 'Buy Dry' Drive Against Beer

A "buy dry" campaign against the sale of beer was proposed by the Rev. W. H. Hanna, pastor of the Knoxville Christian Church, in a sermon last night. He also urged a ban on beer at the county parks. He said:

"Dry people have had flaunted in their faces the advertising of beer in the numerous places where they must buy the necessities of life. Some have their children do the buying. As a means of protest it has been urged that those who scruple against the use of beer refuse to do their buying where beer is advertised and sold.

"There is some virtue in this. It will serve to keep alive the ideal of a saloonless, breweryless, distilleryless, drunkardless, liquor-making-for-profit-less United States. All honor to those concerns who have refused to take in beer and make it a source of revenue at the expense of helping to debauch young and old. Let Christian people give them their patronage and 'buy dry' as far as they can."

In urging the county parks beer ban, he said:

"Make it impossible for beer-selling places to locate near to the park entrances. Before they begin, decree that no permit shall be issued for beer parties and beer picnics."

WET LANDSLIDE SEEN IN N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 22.—(AP.)—Wet sympathizers in President Roosevelt's home state today were predicting a 6-to-1 victory at tomorrow's special election for their bi-partisan slate of 150 delegates to New York's repeal convention at the Capitol June 27.

The drys were working cheerfully for their slate of 150, and saying very little.

Vincent Dailey, spokesman for Postmaster General James A. Farley, the Democratic national chairman, made the prediction that six wet votes will be cast tomorrow for every dry one. New York voted 3-to-1 wet in 1927 on the question of modifying the Volstead act.

Unless enough signatures are written into a third column of 150 spaces reserved for that purpose, the delegates to the convention will be either all wet or all dry.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, hurrying back toward New York from Florida, where he has been tarpon fishing, issued a statement urging citizens to get themselves on record tomorrow as either wet or dry, stating:

Legal Brew Seized By Sleuths in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 20.—(AP.)—Prohibition agents seized more than 2,000 bottles of 3.2 beer in Sunday night raids here.

The raids against establishments selling a brew legalized by the federal government were declared by Federal District Attorney John D. Hartman to have been made under provisions of the new beer bill protecting dry states.

Capone Aide Loses Deportation Fight

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—Anthony 'Mops' Volpe, Chicago gangster, and aide to Al Capone, lost his fight in the Supreme Court today to have orders for his deportation to Italy set aside, the highest court upholding the ruling that he go back to his native land.

THE FIRST COUNTY BEER PERMIT

THE FIRST COUNTY PERMIT TO RETAIL BEER AS IT CAME FROM THE PRINTING PRESS TODAY

Night Club M. C. Beaten For Aid Given Women

The help he gave four women who wanted to go home over their escorts' objections was responsible for a beating that left him unconscious in Third avenue, Clyde Vickers, 27, of 322 Penn avenue, testified today in Central Police Court.

Vickers said he was master of ceremonies at the New Plantation Club, in front of which he was found stunned yesterday morning. He said he left the club when he heard an argument outside, and there four women told him their escorts would not take them home and they had no money.

The witness said he offered the women a dollar, and the men beat him. Police, who checked up on an automobile license number reported by Vickers, arrested Howard Forest, 22, 4121 Bristol street; George Devlin, 28, 1808 Jane street, and Stanley Lowe, 30, 951 Becks Run road. All three were held over at the hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Lowe said he owned the automobile and loaned it to the other two men. Devlin said he was not present at the brawl. Forest said he was present, but that it was a free-for-all fight, in which he himself was slugged.

Giant Maniac Leads Five In Asylum Escape

International News Service.

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—Six inmates of the criminal insane ward of the city sanitarium, three of them described as desperate characters, who escaped after overpowering an attendant remained at large today as police spread a dragnet throughout the city.

Those who escaped were Jack De la Casa, 30, former convict; Raymond Jones, 22; Paul Andragna, 21; Harry Leslie Seel, 21; Carl Byington, 29, and John Kaemmerlen, 14. De la Casa, Jones and Andragna were described as the desperate men.

The escape occurred shortly after 7 o'clock last night when De la Casa, who had been handcuffed to his bed, called Mont Brawley, 31, attendant. As Brawley leaned over the bed, De la Casa, described as the "most powerful man" in the sanitarium, seized Brawley, handcuffed him to the bed and then gagged him.

It is believed De la Casa used a duplicate key to free himself.

Running out of the sanitarium the six took an automobile belonging to another attendant, and sped away.

De la Casa escaped from the sanitarium last February 25, but was recaptured.

NEW 'TRUE STORY' OF BOMBING VINDICATES MOONEY

LABOR LEADER HELD 'VICTIM' OF PLOT

High Court Decision On Second Trial Awaited

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—(AP.)—Another "true story" of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing drew attention to Tom Mooney, convicted with Warren K. Billings of the crime, awaited a California Supreme Court decision here today on his second trial.

The story, which was greeted with skepticism by Mooney himself, though he admitted willingness to have it investigated, was told by John P. Emerson, a former private detective.

Emerson, whose name has figured before in connection with the 17-year-old bomb case, declared he was prepared to appear at the trial and support his claim Mooney and Billings were victims of a "plot" which miscarried.

CLAIMS MISHAP

The explosion, which killed 10 persons and injured 40, Emerson told Mrs. Rena Mooney, wife of the prisoner, and others connected with the defense, was an accident.

He asserted the bomb was abandoned by two men at Steuart and Market street, where it exploded, after they discovered acid leaking from it. They had been hired to "plant" it in Mooney's room by an enemy of the former radical labor leader, the story added.

Mrs. Mooney said Emerson had told the story to her and others before and that they had been inclined to place but little faith in it. But, she insisted, there must be an answer to the old question.

"If Mooney and Billings didn't place the bomb, who did?"

DECISION AWAITED

Emerson's claim shared interest in the awaited Supreme Court decision on a petition by John O'Gara, law professor and a former assistant district attorney, asking that the trial, now set for tomorrow, be stopped.

At the San Francisco County Jail, to which he was brought in preparation for the trial, Mooney said he doubted Emerson's story but added:

"It would certainly be a great relief to me if some one could produce the man or men who placed the bomb. I have asked my representatives to give him every aid."

The former private detective was acquitted in Stockton, Cal., two years before the San Francisco bombing, of a charge of illegal possession of dynamite, he admitted. At the same time Mooney and his wife faced a similar charge in Martinez, Cal., and later were acquitted. They attended Emerson's trial in Stockton and took notes. These notes were introduced at Mrs. Mooney's trial as one of the original five defendants in the San Francisco bombing case.

Emerson claimed he has attempted to obtain aid from both state and federal officers in investigating his story.

'NINI' WOODWARD JELKE, THE 27-YEAR-OLD SOUTHERN BRIDE OF F. FRAZIER JELKE, WHO TODAY IN COURT AT NEWPORT GETS 'HER CHANCE' TO TESTIFY

U. S. JEWS PLAN NAZI BOYCOTT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—A vote to boycott German goods loomed likely today at the American Jewish Congress, which was winding up its extraordinary session still confronting a decision on what to do about the treatment of Jews under Chancellor Hitler.

Already the Congress, representing 1,500,000 American Jews, has vowed unanimously for a $1,000,000 fund to counteract "anti-Semitic propaganda," which its members attribute to the Nazi leader.

This morning no sessions were planned so the delegates could call on their Congressmen to develop pressure on President Roosevelt to ask that Germany show more leniency in its treatment of Jewish Nationals.

The boycott resolution had strong support, and some on the resolutions committee said it might be presented before final adjournment late today.

LAYS DIVORCE TO IN-LAWS

Contesting his wife's divorce action, John F. Clagett, 6409 Fifth avenue, testified today Mrs. Clagett's parents tried to rule his mode of living and did not want him to engage in athletics.

Clagett, head of the claims department of the National Surety Company, was the last witness. He denied he ignored his wife, snubbed her friends, or failed to provide for her.

The wife, Marguerite L. Clagett, of 700 St. James street, is a daughter of Allen C. Stevenson, treasurer and a director of the Stevenson-Foster Company. Clagett denied he ever threatened Stevenson. His father-in-law, he said, "could not see life" as he saw it.

The witness was not cross-examined and no rebuttal testimony was offered. Judge Thomas M. Marshall heard the case.

It is mostly cloudy over the Ohio Valley and thundershowers occurred during the night in the Middle Mississippi Valley, North Carolina, the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. Light showers also occurred during the last 24 hours in the plateau region, along the South Pacific coast and in portions of the Canadian Northwest. It is somewhat warmer in the Dakotas and Nebraska, and colder in West Virginia and the Middle Atlantic states. Light frost occurred this morning in Northern Michigan.

SOCIETY WOMEN GET THREATS

CHICAGO, May 22.—(INS.)—Postal inspectors today were searching for the anonymous writer of a series of threatening poison pen letters received by Mrs. Hayden B. Harris and 11 other prominent women social leaders in the last two weeks.

Detectives would neither disclose the tenor of the threats nor the names of the other 11 women who have been made the targets of the writer. Comparison of the handwriting in all the notes convinced federal inspectors that the author was a woman. All are close friends of Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Harris, whose husband is vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, is known as one of the most brilliant members of society here. Deeply upset, she has denied herself to all visitors, the society leader said.

FATHER WITH AX PERILS FAMILY

Joseph Rocco, 47, of 1634 Dagmar street, Beechview, was sentenced $25 or 30 days in jail in Morals Court today, after members of a scout car crew testified they had to batter down his door to arrest him last night.

Attracted by a girl screaming on the roof, police testified they entered Rocco's home, and were told by his wife, Mrs. Mary Rocco, that he had threatened to kill her and their nine children with an ax.

None of his family appearing against him, Rocco was sentenced on police testimony. The girl on the roof was said to be his daughter.

MRS. JELKE TO 'TELL PLENTY' ON STAND

Broker Describes Party But Denies She Spent Night With Him

NEWPORT, R. I., May 22.—(INS.)—With an air of tense expectancy, Newport's summer colony of socially elite crowded Superior Court-room today, hopeful that Mrs. Eugenia "Nini" Jelke, 28-year-old Dixie bride of F. Frazier Jelke, 52, wealthy Wall street broker, would take the witness stand in her cross-suit for divorce, and recount the details of her marital troubles with her husband during their eight months of wedded life.

Mrs. Jelke was expected to take the stand late today or tomorrow, after three surprise depositions, taken at Birmingham, Ala., are introduced.

"I'LL TELL PLENTY"

Waiting resumption of the trial, Mrs. Jelke declared:

"I haven't anything to say now, because my lawyers advised me against saying anything, but I will tell plenty when I take the stand.

Meanwhile, Robert E. White, New York broker, revealed as the "tall man with the mustache," from whose apartment "Nini" was alleged to have been seen emerging, today took the witness stand in her behalf.

White admitted having been in Mrs. Jelke's company, but denied that the Dixie belle had ever spent the night in his apartment.

COCKTAIL PARTY

In August of 1932, he testified, Mrs. Jelke came to his apartment with a girl named "Jimmy Dobbins," a school teacher, and that they had cocktails. Later they dined in Greenwich Village. Then, he said, he took Mrs. Jelke to her own home. She called for him again the next morning at his apartment, he said, and they had breakfast at Douglaston, L. I.

Previous testimony tended to show that Mrs. Jelke was seen coming from White's apartment, but not going into it.

The reading of the depositions of Emile Harry Anderson, chauffeur for the Jelkes in Paris, London and Berne, Switzerland, was continued, and he testified to taking the wealthy New York broker riding with Madame Drougheda, in London, and that Jelke bought clothes for her. He also took her to the Wimbledon tennis matches, Anderson deposed.

Mrs. Jelke, it was revealed, has several trump cards to flash before her former partner in matrimony. Her testimony, it was learned, will include accounts of alleged gay Paris parties, Riviera revels, and the association of her husband with beautiful French women and charming American expatriates.

THE MYSTERIOUS 'MAJOR'

One of the three depositions from her home state, it is rumored, concerns the mysterious "Major" of Birmingham, with whom Jelke has charged, his bride kept a rooming house rendezvous within a few weeks after their marriage. The "Major," it is indicated, has come to her defense.

This deposition, according to the wife's counsel, will seek to exonerate Mrs. Jelke. Another Alabama deposition, it was learned, will have bearing on Jelke's own actions during his honeymoon.

Mrs. Jelke has prepared herself for testimony on the stand by a thorough-going beauty treatment at an exclusive hotel here. She spent some hours in the beauty shop, having a wave, manicure, massage, and other practical aids to a court apearance.

HEIRESS SHOPS FOR TROUSSEAU IN HOTEL SUITE

Wedding of Mdivani To Barbara Hutton Set for June 20

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

PARIS, May 22.—One of America's wealthiest heiresses sat in her suite at the Ritz Hotel today and witnessed a parade of mannequins, modistes, jewelers and salesmen of varied wares and nationalities.

Fulfilling the cinema conception of an American girl about to become a princess, Miss Barbara Hutton, who stands to inherit some $50,000,000, was selecting her trousseau in anticipation of her forthcoming marriage to Prince Alexis Mdivani, of Russia.

Temporarily breaking up the parade of frills and fashions, this correspondent invaded the domain of the bride-to-be long enough to hear an assurance from her lips that this is a love match. The smiling heiress said:

"I am marrying Alexis because I love him—that is all. The wedding will be on June 20. Other details have not been settled."

A capable French girl secretary aided Miss Hutton in disposing of undesirable salesmen and handled the technical details of purchases made and orders placed in anticipation of the wedding. A British valet was on hand to protect her father, Franklyn Hutton, of New York, from interviewers.

While the fashion parade was in progress, Prince Mdivani drove up to the hotel in a two-seater with the letters "C. D" on the door. They stood for "Corps Diplomatique"—by virtue of the fact the French press has designated Alexis "secretary of the Georgian Legation."

DAVIS RETURNS TO HOSPITAL

Senator James J. Davis returned to Pittsburgh today and immediately went to South Side Hospital for medical examination. He returned from Crescent Springs, Ark., where he had been recuperating for more than a month from an emergency operation here.

Dr. J. W. Shirer, attending the Senator, said that Davis would remain in the hospital for a few days, then go to Washington. The examination will determine whether another operation will be necessary later.

COUNCIL ELECTS DUGGAN 6 TO 3

Frank L. Duggan was elected a member of Council today by the Coyne-Herron majority, while the three independent votes went to John D. Houston, wholesale grocer.

The ballot was six to three for Duggan. Houston, who precipitated the inquiry that led to the trial and conviction of former Mayor Charles H. Kline, was not formally nominated, but he got the votes of Councilmen Charles Anderson, Robert Garland and P. J. McArdle.

English, nominating Duggan, said:

"He comes here with clean hands."

STANFORD, Ky., May 22.—(AP.)—Married when she was only 13 years old, Mrs. Margaret Carpenter Russell, 18, was one of six girls graduated recently from the King's Mountain High School.

Her husband, Arthur Frank Russell, nearly 80, said he wants his young wife to attend college next fall.

7 BOMBS SHAKE HAVANA IN HOUR

HAVANA, May 22.—(AP.)—A large bomb and six smaller ones were exploded in Havana last night.

The first and largest exploded at Santa Catalina and Felipe Poey streets in the Vibora suburb. In less than an hour the six others were set off, three in the Luyano section, two in the Vedado residential section and one at Cerro and Primelles streets in Cerro suburb.

No damage or injury was reported. Neither was there an arrest.

Free Race Official In Woman's Plunge

EL PASO, Tex., May 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. E. J. Redford, 30, of San Francisco, plunged to her death yesterday from the third story hotel room of Joseph E. Walter, widely known racing man and secretary of the Juarez, Mexico, racing meet just ended.

Walter was questioned by police and later released.

He told officers Mrs. Redford, an acquaintance, jumped from the window in a moment of despondency. She had come to El Paso seeking work as a waitress, he said.

NAVY PUTS BAN ON 'CUSSING'

NORFOLK, Va., May 22.—(AP.)—A ban on profanity and obscenity in the Navy is contained in orders received by Naval authorities here from Admiral R. H. Leigh, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

The sailor now found guilty of "cussing" will be subject to disciplinary action.

The order, Naval officers said, applies to the enlisted personnel ashore or afloat. It continued:

"It is directed that all commanding officers take immediate steps to eradicate this undesirable habit of profane and obscene language heard and to take suitable disciplinary action in the case of each infraction reported."

Noted Lawyer Falls 14 Floors to Death

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—(AP.)—William P. Beeber, 50, well known Philadelphia lawyer, fell to his death today from the 14th floor of the Land Title Building at Broad and Chestnut streets.

Ruth Wallace, his secretary, said Beeber began dictation to her and remarked that the office felt stuffy. Going to a window he raised the sash, collapsed and fell.

Girl Poison Victim Has Chance to Live

DETROIT, May 22.—(AP.)—Miss Agnes Remsik's physicians reported today that the 22-year-old Chicago girl who took 13 poison tablets two weeks ago "is slowly showing improvement."

American fleet if the United States insisted on the rights of neutrality.

This danger is now potentially removed, Geneva commentators said, asserting that they understood the Washington government would respect any blockade declared by League powers against an aggressor.

Mr. Davis also announced that the United States advocates a system of control and supervision of armaments and said that American readiness to participate in measures for this control would be effective, automatic and permanent.

Inferentially opposing a brusk revision of treaties the American ambassador-at-large urged the maintenance of the territorial status quo.

He revealed that his country defines an aggressor as one whose armed forces are found upon foreign territory in violation of treaties.

He also announced that the United States is opposed to the rearmament of any nation and declared in favor of the abolition of offensive arms.

TURNS TO TREATY

Turning to the Versailles treaty and its consequences Mr. Davis expressed the conviction that there is a contractural obligation for armed nations to reduce their armaments to a defensive level which would be comparable to the level to which the vanquished powers were obliged to reduce their armaments by the peace treaties.

He referred to President Roosevelt's proposal for an international agreement to prevent the sending of armed forces outside national territory and then gave his definition of an aggressor nation as in line with that proposal. Davis said:

"To cut the power of offense and remove the threat of surprise attack would do more than anything else to lessen the danger of war."

CONSULTATIVE PLEDGE

If substantive reductions in armaments are effected, he continued, the United States is prepared to contribute in other ways to the organization of peace. He explained:

"In particular we are willing to consult the other states in case of a threat to peace with a view to averting conflict."

"Further than that, in the event that the states in conference determine that a state has been guilty of a breach of the peace in violation of its international obligations and take measures against the violator, then, if we concur in the judgment rendered as to the responsible and guilty party, we will refrain from any action tending to defeat such collective effort which the states may thus make to restore peace."

U. S. Won't Abandon Freedom of Action—Hull.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—America's willingness to enter into a consultative pact with the rest of the world in order to preserve peace does not mean that this government will abandon freedom of action, Secretary of State Hull emphasied today.

Explaining the speech of Ambassador Norman H. Davis at Geneva, that the United States was prepared to enter a consultative pact Hull said that this meant this government would be prepared to consult with other nations in the event of a threat to world peace, but that it would continue to reserve its freedom of action and decision.

Hull evaded questions on the exact meaning of Davis5 speech regarding the willingness of this government not to interfere with any action other nations might decide to take against an aggressor in the event this government agreed that a nation had become an aggressor by violation of peace treaties.

Asked if Davis' statement meant that this government was prepared to abandon certain rights of neutrality, Hull said any details that might be considered as falling under Davis' statements of this country's general policy must be taken up at a later date.

Europe Accepts Pact For 10 Years of Peace

ROME, May 22.—Revision of the Versailles peace treaty to lift the burden of defeat from Germany appeared a possibility today following acceptance of Premier Mussolini's four-power peace pact by representatives of the nations concerned.

Formal approval of the four governments, as a result of the agreement reached here, was all that was necessary for operation of the pact, designed to banish Europe's war clouds for 10 and perhaps 20 years.

Under terms of the plan, for which Premier Mussolini has worked since proposing it to Prime Minister MacDonald, Italy, Britain, Germany and France will be responsible for maintaining European peace.

Provisions of the revised draft, to which the power signified agreement, include German realization of arms equality with other European nations by stages over a five-year period.

Acceptance of the pact became possible after Premier Hermann Goering, of Prussia, acting for Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, withdrew German reservation to changes in the original draft demanded by France.

The pact outlaws the use of force for settlement of European disputes and gives assurance that revision of the post-war peace treaties will be undertaken only under the covenant of the League of Nations.

It is hoped the fact, which represents a triumph for Mussolini, who sponsored it will be initialed in Geneva today, permitting formal signing to take place here later.

Davis Speech Highlights

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—Arresting statements from Norman H. Davis' speech at the Geneva disarmament conference:

"We must face the issue; we must now determine whether the nations of the world propose to go forward with progressive disarmament or revert to the pre-war system of unrestrained competition."

"The present situation admits of no further delay. If a race in competitive armament is undertaken, the consequences are inevitable. Sooner or later the world will be swept into another war."

"It is inconceivable that the responsible leaders of any country in the world could hesitate over this issue."

"We are prepared to go as far as the other states in the way of reduction."

"We feel that the ultimate objective should be to bring armaments down to the basis of a domestic police force."

"As the British proposal (to abolish heavy offensive weapons) represents a real measure of disarmament we accept it wholeheartedly."

"We are willing to consult the other states in case of a threat to peace with a view to averting conflict."

"If we concur in the judgment rendered (by consulting states) as to the responsible and guilty party, we will refrain from any action tending to defeat such collective effort which these states may thus make to restore peace."

League of Nations In Financial Straits

GENEVA, May 22.—(INS.)—Faced with the task of mobilizing the new spirit of world peace and disarmament, the League of Nations is handicapped by lack of funds, Secretary-General Sir Eric Drummond told the council in a secret session today.

Sir Eric issued an urgent appeal to all member nations to pay their back dues. He characterized the league's financial situation as "desperate."

UTILITY INQUIRY SUIT DELAYED

HARRISBURG, May 22.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court today continued until November argument in the injunction suit preventing the Senate Public Utility Investigating Committee from using the $100,000 appropriation made by the 1932 special session of the Legislature.

The court granted the continuance on a petition by counsel for Ira Jewell Williams, Philadelphia, contending Gov. Pinchot's signature of a pending substitute appropriation bill would make the current suit unnecessary.

A temporary injunction, granted on Williams' application, halted the committee's hearings last year. Williams alleged the special session had no authority to appropriate the money.

The recent regular session reappropriated $100,000. This bill is among the hundreds which Gov. Pinchot must act upon before June 6.

WANTS PEACE, HITLER SAYS

KIEL Germany, May 22.—(AP.)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler declared today that Germany desires peace "probably more intensely than other nations because we need it to get bread for our millions of unemployed comrades."

This statement came in a speech delivered in connection with his inspection of naval vessels stationed at this port. He assured the assembled officers, sailors and civilians that Germany was not forgetting its navy despite the smallness of that navy.

The "new community" which Germany has become represents "no menace to the rest of the world," the Chancellor said.

Emphasizing the strength of Germany's desire for peace, he added:

"Peace, however, alone is given to him who is worthy of peace."

TARIFF POLICY DECISION NEAR

WASHINGON, May 22.—(AP.)—The Roosevelt Bill authorizing reciprocal tariff concessions was practically ready today for submittal to Congress, and Secretary Hull expects it to go forward before long.

It appeared definite that Representative McReynolds of ennessee—chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—will be named to the London economic conference delegation—with Hull, James M. Cox, of Ohio, and Chairman Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Finest FRIGIDAIRE Ever Built

New Super Series for 1933 in Lifetime Porcelain

Frigidaire has always been famous for beauty—for convenience—for low operating cost. Now comes a new Super Series notable for remarkable advances never before attained in any single electric refrigerator.

The new Frigidaire is more economical than ever because the famous two-cylinder unit has been increased 20% in efficiency. This means lower operating cost even in hottest weather.

It's more convenient than ever because of automatic defrosting—automatic ice tray releasing—far greater ice freezing capacity—adjustable shelves—double Hydrator capacity and interior lighting.

And the cabinet itself with ¼ more food space is more beautiful than ever. All-Porcelain, artistically paneled and trimmed with chromium hardware. So distinctive in style and finish that it is destined to establish an entirely new trend in refrigerator design.

EDITOR GUILTY AS SLAYER

EUGENE, Ore., May 22.—(AP.)—Llewellyn A. Banks, 62, former editor and orchardist, was convicted yesterday of second-degree murder, and his wife was acquitted in the death, March 16, of George Prescott, Medford constable.

The couple was tried jointly for the shooting, an outgrowth of a political campaign in Jackson County. The jury was out 22½ hours. The conviction makes a sentence of life imprisonment mandatory.

Prescott was shot to death when he attempted to serve a warrant on Banks at his Medford home. The warrant had been issued for the arrest of the former editor on a charge of complicity in the theft of several thousand ballots from the Jackson County Courthouse.

HONEYMOONERS DIE IN CRASH

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—Death early today marked the end of the brief marital life of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Connor.

The 18-year-old Fairmont, W. Va., bridegroom died about 1:40 a. m. today in a Gettysburg hospital of a broken neck. A similar injury caused the death of his 19-year-old bride, the former Miss Clara Farr, of Keisterville, Pa., five hours after their wedding in Hagerstown, Md., Saturday night.

The bridal couple was en route to New York with Connor's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Cunningham, of Fairmont, when their car, driven by Cunningham, sideswiped that of Arthur H. Leh, 44, of Allentown, and both machines upset.

The accident occurred about seven miles north of Gettysburg.

TEMPLARS OPEN STATE SESSION

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—Knights Templar, representing 96 Pennsylvania commanderies, yesterday opened their eightieth annual conclave with services in St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

The Rt. Rev. Francis M. Taitt, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the diocese of Pennsylvania and grand prelate of the grand commandery, delivered the sermon to a congregation of 1,500.

The conclave continues through Wednesday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

GIMBELS PRESENTS THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

They Put Our Sale of Men's Suits on the Spot!

Last Wednesday we think it was, we ran the biggest advertisement in the country on Men's Suits. We gave 8 o'clock the next morning as the zero hour. At five minutes to eight our embattled salesmen stood—augmented by some 50 splendid recruits—and peered over our cases for the first hundred men. There must have been at least that many on the first elevator. And tougher than the Gas House Gang!

You've got to show us, they glared, we're from Missouri. Then they started to put these suits of ours on the spot. They clutched the fabrics and pulled. Turned coats inside out and burrowed. Took them to the windows and stared. We held our breath. Would they buy? They DID. Hundreds and hundreds of them.

They haven't stopped coming, either. Tomorrow we expect another mob scene. Why do we think so? Because the men we know haven't as big a bank-roll as they once had—but they're goldarned tired of entertaining the wolf in cheap clothing!

DEATH, DAMAGE IN GALE'S WAKE

HARRISBURG, May 22.—(AP.)—Hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage and at least one death were caused by a driving wind and rainstorm which had dissipated today after hitting in spots throughout Southeastern Pennsylvania.

It swirled at 110 miles an hour through Reading, and a 50-mile area in Berks County, and struck with less force in Bucks, Adams, York, Northampton and other nearby counties.

The only death reported as the direct result of the twister was that of Alex Cherauka, of Philadelphia. He was electrocuted upon touching a wire, blown from a pole near Doylestown.

J. Earl Hickman, building inspector at Reading, placed damage to buildings in the city at $500,000. More than 100 homes were unroofed, the steeple of Trinity Church was twisted off, and part of the Hotel Penn's roof was blown across the street and through department store windows.

MIX'S DAUGHTER TO GET MONEY

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(Universal.)—Although Superior Judge Carl A. Stutsman recently ruled that Tom Mix, cowboy film actor, did not have to pay his former wife, Mrs. Victoria Forde Mix de Olazabal, $50,000 on promissory notes given her at the time of their separation, the Judge has declined to sign "findings of fact" prepared by Mix's attorneys, it has been revealed.

When the findings were presented for the Judge's signature, Mrs. de Olazabal's counsel objected, and the court suggested that Mix and his former wife try to reach an agreement so that the money due on the notes would go to their 11-year-old daughter, Thomasina.

The Judge said:

"It is the court's wish that this money be paid the child."

STUDENT'S FIRST SOLO EFFORTS NO TRIUMPH

Bill Handles Plane Skillfully, Then Loses Knack

WIN YOUR WINGS
Installment No. 8.

Two more lessons devoted to landings and take-offs followed. Then one morning just as the plane rolled to a stop after Bill had landed it, the instructor turned to him. "Well, try it yourself now," and so saying scrambled out of the cockpit.

"Take off, circle the field once and bring her back in. All set?"

Bill was so excited he could merely nod assent, and waving to Miller, who had stepped clear of the plane, he pushed forward the throttle. With only half the load the plane handled easier than ever before, and although the front cockpit was empty, Bill felt not the slightest nervousness. He had practiced more than two weeks for this, and he knew beyond any doubt that he could do it.

Gaining speed, he lifted the plane easily and made an extra wide circle just to prolong the sheer exhilaration of his first solo. He was flying better than ever before, and could feel a strange sense of power and self reliance.

Cutting the motor as he approached the leeward edge of the field he brought her down in a graceful three-point landing not 50 feet from where Jack Miller was standing watching him. Running up to the plane the latter called cheerfully:

"Okay, kid, that was fine. Now go ahead and fly around for about 15 minutes. That will be enough for today."

Bill took off again, and flew around for a moment or two, banking gently this way and that, enjoying himself thoroughly.

"Gosh! This will never do," he mused. "Here I am just fooling around in the sky and a license examination not two week off. If I'm to pass that test I have to be able to land within 500 feet of a mark, make figure eights without losing or gaining altitude, and be able to cut the motor at 2,000 feet and spiral down to a landing within a 500 foot area."

Accordingly he climbed to 800 feet and picking out a convenient barn below, using the school house as the other mark, he executed a series of figure eights around them.

Satisfying himself that the eights weren't so bad, he headed back to the field, and spent the remainder of the 15 minutes landing and taking-off. The first two or three went well, but then for some reason they began going wrong, and to his disappointment he saw his instructor waving him in.

He brought the plane to the hangar door, and switched off his engine and stepped out. Jack Miller walked up to him.

"Got a little too confident, young fellow. Those landings were terrible. I'll give you another check tomorrow and then you can try it yourself again."

"They were pretty bad," admitted Bill, "and I suppose I was getting a bit sloppy, but I would have liked to keep on trying for awhile."

"I know you would," replied Miller. "But if I had allowed you to, the first thing you know you would have gotten into some bad habits that I have had a hard time breaking, but we will get that straightened out tomorrow. In the meantime, why don't you run along home and forget all about flying for the rest of the day?"

"I will try," said Bill, "but I know that when I get home I'll spend the rest of the day telling mother and father about it."

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: I've wickered dozens of those song titles (in different words)—so dull are they. The one that stuck you, however, "Verdi Psyche Strait" is, of course "Forty second Street" . . . If you can promote instruments and music for the boys at the new prison at Attica, N. Y. (for their band) you'll be making new friends . . . Your exposure of that agitator's racket in Asheville got immediate satisfaction. He attempted to smell up the skies by going on the air, but Washington stepped in and goom-bye, please! You're gonna like the new Gordon and Revel tune: "I Love You Because You Remind Me of Her."

I bet another dollar on "Walda." She must be okay if they run her every other day. The whole office staff bet on her—via the hunch route—and are you going to get nasty stares when you come in! . . . I saw Colleen Adams bang a masher across the face with her pocketbook at 46th and Broadway . . . What a smack! . . . I was out most of the day shopping for you, and probably missed many calls . . . Those blue shirts you wanted are now 3.50—were 4 . . . They are like kerchief linen—right? 33 sleeve? . . . What size underwear is it, again? I forgot . . . According to Variety and the Sunday Times, Dorothy Hall got an ovation, as you said . . . It was a terrific opening for her—the critics, however, gave it a belting. But it didn't fold in a night, as erroneously reported. It ran three performances . . . Say, three performances is a lot better than having a radio hookup canceled even before you go on, what?

Interesting about Lupe. . . . This Nelson Morris who just divorced Jeanne Aubert in Paree went dizzy over Lupe in Mexico City when Lupe was 15. . . . He sent her orchids by the bunch every day and she wouldn't give him a date . . . And she was broke, too. . . . Then after he married Aubert she saw his name and photo in the papers and discovered he had millions. She's still burning about it, she said at the Simplon last night. . . . Incidentally, Lupe says the costly jewelry she wears was bought by herself. . . . Edgar Leslie called. Said he forgot to add this one to the Mizner quips. One day Mizner was arrested by a Keystone looking cop and Mizner withered him with, "The way your uniform fits you—is a misdemeanor!" . . . Tallulah Bankhead won her law suit against A. J. Beckhard, who sued her for coin on "Forsaking All Others." . . . Radio City is now guarded by cops on a 24-hour watch—since the Rockefellers had trouble with the Reds.

The "Miss-a-Meal" campaign is gaining strength everywhere in the hinterland where their hearts are softer. They have different names. In Providence they call it "Share-Your-Food." . . . Frank J. Carr, of Buffalo, who may be the next mayor there—is in town—and wanted you to know that Erie County didn't lag at all in backing Gov. Lehman. . . Ripley made an appearance in a S. Africa city at a theater and because he told them he was disappointed in finding Africa not as wild as he expected—they applauded him off!

The chairman of committee of parks and playgrounds would like to learn your stand on the current controversy. The Big Idea is to get children more room to play in and keep them off the streets where trucks have the right of way! . . . I told him to use your name in any way he wished—that you were for playgrounds first, second, third, fourth, fifth and so on—and to keep fighting those who were opposed to the plan. . . A tale from Hollywood says that Joan was on the verge of making up with Doug, Jr., when a fortune teller warned Joan not to do it. Such hooey! . . . Joan was looking for an out, anyway. . . When you go to Maryland and you look for a place that offers a Maryland Chicken Dinner what do you find? . . . You find restaurants that feature: "New England Boiled Dinners!" . . . Belle Livingstone will star at the Club Richman beginning Tuesday. . . . Brecher called. Wondered if you had heard of the ham who was given the bird and took it home and cooked it.

Apropos of Paulette Goddard (the papers said her silence was eloquent when quizzed on reports of a secret marriage to Chaplin), she is no longer a blonde—but a brunette (her former color). . . . Cholly, by the way, is having her tuitioned in diction and English, preparing her for the lead in his next. . . . I found this in the Rockford (Ill.) Democrat of June 28, 1853: "When the inimitable Winchell spoke, sneezed or sang, that was the time that tried men's buttons and button-holes and women's hooks and eyes!" . . . Why you old rascal! Laying them in the aisles back in 1853! . . . Alice Boulden, one of the eyefuls in "Fine and Dandy," and Joe Cook, the funny man, (they've been on fire since his divorce), will be telescoped soon.

Miss Davies Is Praised As 'Peg'

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Marion Davies, in her new picture, "Peg O' My Heart," was given a remarkable welcome to New York by the public and critics Saturday upon the occasion of the picture's opening at the Capitol Theater. Without exception the motion picture critics of the New York papers heaped lavish praise upon "Peg O' My Heart" and particularly upon the splendid performance of Marion Davies, the star.

William Boehnel, in the World-Telegram, says:

"They have 'Peg O' My Heart' at the Capitol this week with Marion Davies playing the title role. Miss Davies' appearances on the screen are regrettably infrequent. Once or twice a year, perhaps, she steps forth to remind us that she is one of the first comediennes of the audible cinema—but these infrequent visits aren't enough. In 'Peg O' My Heart,' Miss Davies once again displays her remarkable flair for impudent comedy. She is boisterous, happy, sad—in face everything you would expect from the role."

Marguerite Tazelaar, in the Herald Tribune, says:

"Years have not dimmed the dewy appeal of 'Peg O' My Heart,' with Marion Davies as comically, wistful a 'Peg' as you could wish. She gives her role a fine discrimination in its shading of humor and pathos as well as a completely human characterization. Without Miss Davies, 'Peg O' My Heart' might easily escape being the delightful entertainment it is. For she gives it such lively charm and makes the story altogether convincing. The music, also, is unusually good with its Irish jigs and its Irish songs. Miss Davies, by the way, sings several. It has been directed smoothly and with fast pace, and the settings are excellent."

Regina Crewe, in the New York American, writes:

"Blithe and verdant as the springtime, 'Peg O' My Heart' proves a vastly amusing entertainment with the amazing Marion Davies perfectly cast as its scintillant star. Patrons thronging the Capitol find the picture merry with melody, abounding in pictorial love lines, bubbling with witty dialogues. Miss Davies alternately gay and sad, gives a portrayal of 'Peg' that is perfection."

Mordaunt Hall, writing in the New York Times, says:

"'Peg,' the bright and loyal Irish lass of the old and very popular play, 'Peg O' My Heart,' returns again for the edification and pleasure of thousands in a talking picture now at the Capitol. In this current offering Marion Davies is entrusted with the role of the buoyant colleen, and the mirth and sympathy of an audience yesterday afternoon was a sure testimonial to her successful performance. It was evidently a part to Miss Davies' liking, and she gives a whole-souled portrayal, always devoting more thought to Peg than to any idea of making herself especially attractive."

Kate Cameron says in the Daily News:

"There is a whole generation of picturegoers to be entertained by 'Peg O' My Heart.' With her newly acquired brogue and her instinctive sense of comedy, Miss Davies makes an enjoyable character of the poor little Irish girl. The picture has been smoothly directed, the settings are interesting, and several songs are introduced which add to the entertainment value of the picture."

Rose Pelswick, in the Evening Journal, says:

"No one else but Marion Davies, with her beauty, sweetness and charm, could have brought to the screen the adorable little Irish girl known as "Peg O' My Heart," one of the most delightful romances ever filmed. Exquisitely produced, 'Peg O' My Heart' is easily Marion's best picture. The characterization she offers is the most touching and brilliant of her entire career. A striking musical score runs through the story. The picture is marvelous entertainment.

Bland Johaneson, in the Daily Mirror, writes:

"You'll love Marion as Peg of everybody's heart. The charming story of Peg is a perfect vehicle for Marion Davies, who invests the role with mischief, pathos and loveliness. Romantic, wholesome, tender and appealing, 'Peg O' My Heart' is delightful entertainment. Don't miss it."

Comrades

Marion Davies and the terrier are pals in "Peg O' My Heart," film version of the popular play that will be featured in the Penn Friday.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Walter Hampden, who will appear in the Nixon Wednesday and Thursday nights in "Caponasacci" and in "Hamlet" at the Thursday matinee, has pointed out the place in the text of the latter play in which a "lost line" should be inserted if found. Samuel Harden Church some time ago offered a prize to any student who could find the place from which the original line is missing, having become misplaced or lost in the nearly four centuries since the play was written. No student found the place. Nor did anybody outside of the school except Mr. Hampden, who did not immediately respond because he felt his familiarity of the play entitled other searchers to a time handicap. He points out that the text of the first scene of the first act is the place of omission, after the lines

"The grave stood tenantless and the sheeted dead
Did squeak and jibber in the Roman streets, as indicated by the fact that the succeeding lines, as follows, cannot be reconciled gramatically or in meaning with the preceding ones:

As stars with trains of fire and dews of blood,
Disasters in the sun."

While Mr. Hampden points out the place from which the line is missing, he does not hazard an opinion as to its possible wording.

Seats are now on sale for the Hampden engagement here.

"The Emperor Jones," screen version of the Eugene O'Neill play, will go into production this week in the Paramount Long Island studio, with Paul Robeson and Dudley Digges featured . . . Reginald Denny should be perfectly satisfied with his next film, now in production, since he wrote the story himself . . . Many of the animal thrill scenes that will be seen in "Tarzan, the Fearless," were shot in Africa by Frederick B. Patterson, manufacturer of Dayton, O., who is a big game hunter . . . It is said the entire third act of "Hard-Boiled Angel" is being rewritten, and that Agnes Ayres will join the cast in Chicago next week . . . Jack Pearl's engagement as an M-G-M movie star is to begin about the middle of June.

Goes Arty

James Cagney to Get Away From Gangster Type In Next Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—In a new step toward screen respectability, James Cagney will cut loose from the rackets and become a telephone employe in "Trouble Shooter," a story which Bill Rankin has written to measure for the carrot topped star.

Mr. Cagney

This melodrama, probably Cagney's next vehicle, will feature the inside workings of a great telephone company. As the title suggests, the hero is one of the crew who go out to locate what is wrong when the usually dependable telephone gets out of order.

Cagney is to have two leading women—parts of almost equal importance—in his new film, but they haven't been selected. For that matter, neither has the director. The star has heard the story and likes it. So does the studio. At present, Rankin and Carl Erickson are working out the adaptation.

And, a note of interest about this studio, Major Albert Warner and Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager of the company were expected to be in Hollywood today. Their arrival is another sign-post pointing toward the renewal of activity at the Burbank plant.

* * *

Autograph seekers at the Ambassador were amazed to see Gloria Swanson and Michael Farmer drive up in a little roadster of popular make. Peeking in the cocoanut grove a little later, they got another thrill to see John Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., dancing every dance, and looking like the young lovers of several years ago. But the story has a modern ending. Doug is away to New York and Europe, Joan stays here to work.

Manhattan Holiday

ECSTATIC WOULD be the only way to describe Gracie's feeling when she arrived in the city of New York. She had saved for, dreamed about and awaited longingly the two weeks' vacation that was to be spent in this strange town. Now the long bus ride was over at last, and two weeks of glorious city life were before her.

The lights enchanted her. The traffic thrilled and terrified her. It was all every bit as wonderful as she had pictured it. True, it had been necessary for her to come alone. True, the state of her finances forced her to find a room in a cheap, side street hotel. But such things were mere trifles. She was in New York!

It was evening when she arrived, and, in spite of her desire to mingle with the crowds, she was just a little timid about going out alone. And she was tired from the long trip. She had seen a sign in the elevator announcing that dinner was being served in the restaurant downstairs, and she decided that, for tonight at least, she would eat there.

It was just an ordinary restaurant such as can be found in almost any cheap hotel. But to Gracie it was beautiful.

Then there was a man who came in and sat down opposite her and stared at her intently. He was a homely, thick-necked sort of bird, and his hands were the size of catchers' mitts. But to Gracie that night, all the men in New York were handsome and gallant. And when he spoke to her, Gracie did something that she had never done at home. She smiled, answered him graciously, and in the short space of 10 minutes, a friendship was well under way.

The man, whose name was Bill, was living at the hotel, too, he told her, and before he left her at the elevator, she had promised to meet him the next day and go on a sight-seeing tour.

The week that followed was all too wonderful. Every day at noon she met Bill in the lobby and they toured the city together. Gracie saw all the things she had dreamed about and went to all the places she had always longed to go. Once or twice they went to a movie or a matinee and held hands in the darkened theatre. Gracie was tumbling rapidly, and she was quite sure that Bill was falling as fast as she.

True, everything wasn't exactly perfect. For one thing, Bill proved very close-mouthed about his personal affairs. Gracie told him all about Ma and Pa and the kids back home, but Bill never responded with any confidence. And every time the subject of work was mentioned, Bill managed to change the topic quickly.

That was the strangest part of it all. He was constantly with her all during the time that most men were at work, and yet he always seemed to have plenty of money. Gracie had been going to the movies and reading magazines long enough to know that there was but one class of men who didn't work and yet had plenty of money. The first time that thought occurred to her, she laughed it away.

And yet, as the days went by, it didn't seem so far-fetched after all. For there were many things that certainly looked suspicious. Any hour of the day, Bill was only too happy to be with her. But she seldom saw him in the evenings. Once he went out of town for a day or two and Gracie never found out where he had been.

She forced herself at last to face the facts squarely. Suppose he were what she suspected? Every ideal, everything in her strict upbringing revolted against the thought. She had dreamed a little about marriage with Bill. But she knew, under those circumstances, that it could never be.

Finally, she succeeded in pushing the thoughts out of her mind. And the days passed until there were but two days left of her vacation.

She and Bill were going to a speakeasy that afternoon. Under different circumstances, it would have been a thrilling adventure for Gracie. But now everything was spoiled by the unhappiness of her love for Bill and her suspicions concerning him. What happened that afternoon didn't help matters very much, either.

They were sitting at a table in a dim corner when a man standing at the bar turned, recognized Bill and waved a hand in greeting.

"H'ya, Killer?" he called.

Gracie's blood ran cold at the sound of that name, and the last faint hope died swiftly. She saw that Bill's face was red and agonized and that he couldn't force himself to look at her.

"If you don't mind," she said quietly, "I think I'd like to go back to the hotel."

They didn't speak again until they had reached the lobby. Gracie had made up her mind by that time.

"Bill," she said huskily, "I guess we might as well say goodbye now. I've decided I don't want to stay in New York any longer. There's a bus leaving early in the morning and I think I'll take it. I probably won't see you again so thanks for everything."

Bill gulped.

"Gee," he said miserably, "I'm sorry, Grace. I suppose this means things are over for us. I thought maybe I'd see you again some time. I guess you know how much I like you and all. Don't you like me at all?"

Gracie turned away from the pleading of his eyes and shook her head.

"I couldn't," she told him gently. "I thought I did at first, but I was kidding myself. I didn't know anything about you then. You understand, Bill, that I really couldn't like a man who earned his living the way you do. If you were in some honest business, if you weren't mixed up in a — a racket, things might have been different."

Bill nodded.

"I thought you'd feel like that," he said. "That's why I hoped you wouldn't find out. Well, goodbye, Gracie, it's been swell knowing you."

And that was another night when Gracie lost plenty of sleep.

The next morning she was on the bus. Her vacation was over, and she was going home. Somehow, the scenery that had seemed so wonderful on the way over wasn't wonderful at all.

"Gee," she murmured wistfully, "he was a swell fellow. Too bad he was a racketeer."

Bill was thinking about Gracie at just about that time, too. He was sitting in his hotel room with a drink before him. But somehow that drink didn't taste as good as it should have. There was another man with Bill, and it was he who broke the silence.

"Whatsa matter with you, anyhow?" he asked. "Woman trouble?"

Bill nodded.

"Yeh," he said wistfully. "She was a swell kid. Too nice for me, though. I was kinda hoping she wouldn't find out about me, but she did somehow."

He sat for a moment staring down at the glass before him. Then:—

"An awful nice little gal she was," he repeated. "Only she was like everybody else. She didn't think a wrestler could be on the level" . . .

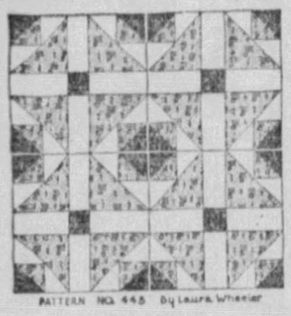
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



PATTERN NO. 445 By Laura Wheeler

Wild Goose Chase

Triangular patterns are one of the most common forms in quilts. When they form the design as they do in the Wild Goose Chase, they are more than just a patch—they are the symbol for birds. In this pattern we have the large geese and the small in flight together. This old pattern is found under different names but it always refers to birds. It is a very simple pattern to make and forms a quilt of charming simplicity, when made in three materials, as illustrated. It is known as a nine-patch block, not because it is made of only nine patches, but because it falls into nine divisions, the triangles, when joined, forming one of them.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

BOOSTED F. R., COUNCIL SAYS

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Officials of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America said today that a resolution adopted by its executive committee last Friday was one of warm commendation for President Roosevelt for his expressed foreign policy and attempts to bring about economic recovery.

A clause in the resolution deploring the President's emphasis of repeal for revenue was introduced as an amendment by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., they said, and adopted because of Cannon's objection that the resolution might be taken as a blanket indorsement of the Roosevelt policies.

They referred to the clause as "a mere afterthought."

'Bawls Out' Radio Police; Freed At Hearing

C. G. Dittler, 48, of 1815 Locust street, a motorman, who ordered radio police out of his way Saturday, was discharged in North Side Police Court yesterday.

The officers testified they were attempting to break up double parking when Dittler's car came along. They arrested him because he "jangled the trolley bell" and "bawled them out."

GUNS HALT RIOT AT FUNERAL

SEVILLE, Spain, May 22.—(AP.)—Police used gunfire today to break up a demonstration against Interior Minister Quiroga Casares, who was marching in the funeral procession after he had taken the lead in a movement to impel the national government to stop the crime wave in this section.

In protest against alleged government apathy toward crime a general strike was declared, but complete cessation of commercial activities did not result.

Body of Boy, 12, Taken From River

The body of Anthony Bolatic, 12, of 2913 Preble avenue, was taken from the Ohio River, near Westfall street, yesterday. The boy was drowned 10 days ago when he fell from a retaining wall.

Pay Check Carried By River Victim

A pay check bearing the name of Frank Krout was found on the body of a man taken from the Monongahela River yesterday. The pay check had been issued by the Page Steel and Wire Company, Monessen.

RUPTURE

OF CHICAGO HERE AGAIN

He will be at the Wm. Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Wednesday and Thursday, May 24th and 25th, from 1:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M. daily. (Please note dates and hours carefully.)

He has been coming here for many years. Thousands recommend him. Ask your neighbors. There is no cost for consulting him privately. Only men are invited.

CAUTION: Do not use trusses or plasters that often weaken the muscles, and do not submit to harmful injections or avoidable operations. Hundreds of Ruptures return after operations.

Do not neglect to see him on the above dates. There is no charge for demonstration. This visit is for white people only. Chicago Office, Pure Oil Bldg.

Opera, Stage, Screen Stars In May Ball Broadcast; Rubinoff Back Home

A 45-minute broadcast from the May Ball, benefit for unemployed women staged in the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, under the chairmanship of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, heads tonight's radio features, going on the air at 11:15 via WCAE.

The scheduled broadcast includes a brief talk by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and gala entertainment by opera, stage and screen stars, including Grace Moore, Fred Astaire, Jimmy Durante, Gladys Swarthout, Queena Mario, Frank Chapman, Mario Chamlee, Frances Alda, James Melton, Dorothy Stone and Frances Williams. The Army and Navy bands join in providing the music.

* * *

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, are the principal speakers during a special program over NBC-WCAE at 6:30 tonight, marking the first observance of Maritime Day. The day has been set aside by Congress to commemorate the first transatlantic steamship voyage in 1819.

* * *

Once more international affairs come to the fore with addresses by Gen. Roman Gorecki, chief aide to Marshal Pilsudski, of Poland, over NBC-WCAE at 11 p. m., on the topic, "There Will Be No War," and by Dr. T. V. Soong, China's finance minister, who has been conferring with President Roosevelt, over NBC-KDKA at 10.

Busy Mr. Rubinoff

Of importance locally is the home-coming of Dave Rubinoff with his network orchestra to open a full week's engagement at the Willows tonight. Playing his famous $100,000 Stradivarius, he'll be heard nightly over WWSW, with the initial program listed at 8 p. m.

Prior to the festive opening at the Oakmont play spot, the maestro is booked to launch KDKA's new nightly variety series, "Pittsburgh Spotlight," with a 15-minute program at 6 o'clock.

At 6:30, the "Spotlight" proper, by Marguerite Lang, dramatic soprano, and Cass Ward Whitney, pianist, as the inaugural stars, goes on the air.

Frances Williams, toast of the musical comedy stage, whose blues are to be a highlight of the May Ball broadcast over WCAE tonight from 11:15 to midnight.

Savant to Test the Intelligence Of Radio Listeners

By AIRCASTER

Fate has chosen Dr. Frank N. Freeman, in his capacity of professor of educational psychology at the University of Chicago, as its agent to settle for once and all, even the remotest doubt about the degree of intelligence with which the audience listens to the daily and nightly waftings of the kilocycles.

The average intelligence of America's vast host of radio listeners has been a question of great moment to sponsors and broadcasters for 10 long years, and a general tendency to underestimate it is admittedly responsible for a certain type of entertainment.

Dr. Freeman, like myself, doesn't think this is fair, and so he has made arrangements to make a test on the night of June 9, at 10 o'clock, by way of WJZ, in New York.

He will explain his plan on the same network, of which KDKA is the Pittsburgh outlet, at 10:15 p. m., June 2, and on June 16, at the same hour, will announce the result.

Naturally, the test will take the form of a questionnaire. Three types of queries will be put to all those who may be listening.

Certain words will be cited, and the audience will be asked to send in the opposite of each word listed. In an information test, the audience will be required to complete, with a choice of four words, a number of sentences. In the third group, the audience will be requested to send in analogies of certain statements.

Farewell to Crime

There are no crime yarns on the Columbia network, and there is a definite trend away from this type of drama at NBC where, to fill in the summertime gaps, new types of dramatizations are being devised.

The world's most famous short stories, and a few true stories for good measure, are being prepared for presentation as early as the first week of next month.

Some weeks ago, Orestes Caldwell, the savant on radio phenomena, was represented here as expounding a theory that a radio wave, once transmitted, never dies—and that if we wait long enough, it will, under the Einstein law, eventually curve and return to the earth.

Globe-Trotter Schedule Changes

In deference to network Maritime Day talks by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, on WCAE, the 6:30 p. m. news flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, will be carried tonight by WJAS only.

The Globe-Trotter's 9:05 a. m. broadcast on WCAE and the 12:15 p. m. and 2:15 p. m. periods on WCAE-WJAS are scheduled as usual.

Reading today's Sun-Telegraph comic pages, Grandpa and Lillian head the Sun-Telegraph Family bill on WCAE at 4:45.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Well, blow me down! A little miss in Ambridge hastily pens an urgent line stating how imperative it is that I tell her all I know about banks and banking in the United States. She must hand in a 10-page theme, and I couldn't fill up a page by writing in big letters and leaving lots of space between the lines.

* * *

Just learned that a police dog training club meets every Sunday morning at Riverview Park. Mr. E. Schmidt stumbled upon them and was held spellbound by the accomplishments of the dogs. One in particular, owned by a Mr. Wood, is uncannily intelligent in following spoken commands as well as silent ones, motions.

* * *

John A. Brenner, Clairton boy at Fort Howard (Maryland) forest camp, specials me the news that three of his home town buddies are to leave for the West, destination unknown. Burens, Benich and Dowling are slated to go. Jordan and Brenner remain.

* * *

Had I made that announcement for "we mothers" last week Wilson McHarg would have sent a flower on the appropriate day.

* * *

Couldn't cash a check locally, so they laughed at him when he sent his personal check to Germany, instead of cash or guaranteed paper.

But when the merchandise came before the check was cleared, it was his turn to chuckle.

All of which sounds like an advertisement, but relates to the experience of Mark Evans, history instructor of South Brownsville High School. Mr. Evans was ordering odd European currency to show his pupils.

Girls Find Many Good Men To Be Too Dull

"Five Skeptical Girls" said they would—if they could find one.

But here's J. S., sure that all a guy gets for trying to be Regular is a great, big Run-Around. And he offers himself as Exhibit A to prove it. He's earnest and clean-cut. He admits it himself. And he'd be serious, if he had a chance.

Not so's you could notice it, says he!

"Girls nowadays are no good!" he snorts.

"I am a young fellow of 24 and I must state that, from my experience, I know that they don't appreciate a decent fellow. All the girls I've met, and I've met quite a few, both in business and outside of business, are not true women. They don't care for a fellow who is serious and clean cut.

"They are not serious themselves. They just drift. All they want to hear is a lot of false and flowery flattery. If you can't hand them that, why you're just out, that's all!

"They expect you to not go with other girls if you date them. But they themselves want to go with all the fellows they can get.

"You can be a criminal and a crook, so long as you have a car and a lot of money. That is all that is necessary.

"They don't care whether you have a good reputation or not. They don't care if you are earnest and work hard—or how decent you are.

GIVEN 'RUN-AROUND'

"All they care about is a 'thrill.'

"I'm sorry, but I have not yet met a good girl. Most fellows think there are no more good ones left. Is that true?

"They claim they don't approve of petting, but they do plenty of it—and since they run after the fellows who are 'hot numbers,' it seems as if the good fellows get nothing but the run-around."

J. S.

Is that true?

Do Good Gents get cruelly passed up—and do the bad ones get all the plums—and are Modern Gals all bums?

Of course, it isn't true!

Equally, of course, plenty of bad people get good breaks. But they don't get them because they're bad. They get them because they're clever, and peppy, and interesting. Bad as they may be, they're smart enough to really give something that lifts other people out of themselves, and brightens their lives.

OFTEN DULL MEN

And that the Good Guy all too often forgets, because he's so busy being "Good" that he forgets—to be good for something.

There are countless thousands of Nice Girls who would appreciate a good man and be loyal to him. But all too often Good Men are Dull Men—Stiff Men—Snooty Men. And the Nice Girl, if she has an ounce of brains, realizes that life would be as unbearable with such a "Saint" as with the most unmitigated "Sinner."

So, J. S., if you want some Nice Girl to give you a break, here's a hint. Stop being so satisfied with yourself because you're "serious and clean cut." After all, those are not very exciting virtues. They do not offer any great inducement to a lively, merry girl. Limber up and learn to laugh! Learn to play! Get human!

Who in heck cares for a wonderful character if it's a constant pain in the neck?

Older Women's Desire for Escorts Brings Woe, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

It is amazing how many older women become involved with worthless men.

I believe that the beginning of all this is in the fact that these older women cannot be content with a quiet life. They want to be gadding about all the time. For this they need an escort, and they welcome most any man who looks well and has agreeable manners.

Even if some of these women are not victimized, it is not surprising that they marry to provide themselves with permanent escorts.

Madge Is Forced to Explain About the Auto-Gyro

In the excitement of the chase after the car in which Owen was carrying Marion off, I had paid little attention to the intermittent zooming above us of the auto-gyro, in which Dicky and Hugh were quartering the circle in an attempt to find the destination of Owen's car.

I had known that they were somewhere above us, but my ears had become so accustomed to the constant droning that I had ceased to pay attention to it. I guessed that Ronald was even more obvious than I, because of his agonized absorption in Marion's fate.

As for Tony and Nick, the maneuvers of airplanes of all description were commonplaces to them, I was sure, and because of this I was startled and frightened at Tony's exclamation.

"Don't you look, Babe!" Nick adjured. "Draw the car up to the side of the road, and stop. Then we'll have a look at those birds."

I obeyed him, and then my eyes leaped upward to where the revolving arms of the auto-gyro whirred like a windmill suddenly gone insane. The machine seemed perilously low, and it was describing a circle the outer edge of which appeared to be just beyond us, while the other side—

WATCH FLYING MACHINE

With a catch of my breath I saw that the other side of that circle must be near the place owned by Jerry.

Nick voiced my belief the next second.

"They're describing a circle around Jerry's," he said excitedly. "Now what's the meaning of that? Wait! We won't say for sure, yet. Let's see if they keep up that circling."

With faces turned upward we watched the graceful, whirring thing, and saw that it was circling above Jerry's. With Jerry's place for a center, and a curved line just beyond us for an edge, it was keeping to one orbit, and going round and round as if out for an endurance contest.

"They're putting Jerry's on the spot for some reason or other," Nick said excitedly. "What I don't understand makes me nervous. I'm not going near that back road just now. I'll wait and see what's doing with this thing, first."

Should I tell them the identity of those circling fliers, or should I keep still? That was the question that whirred through my mind with as much violence as the whirring spirals of the auto-gyro. On the one hand, I was afraid of arousing their suspicions. On the other, I was wild to send this car along to the place where Nick had said it might be possible to intercept Owen's car, and attempt to rescue Marion.

EXPLAINS TO NICK

The decision was taken out of my hand the next moment. Nick put his hand under my chin and turned my face up to him. I heard a startled gasp from Ronald, and with right hand doubled into a fist gave him a warning nudge to keep still.

"Come clean, Baby," Nick said. "This comes a little too pat to be an accident. What do you know about those birds up there? Spill it quick."

"I know a good deal," I said quietly. "I was just going to tell you what I know."

"What have I been telling you all along?" Tony burst in raucously from the back seat. "I told you this dame was a plant, more than once."

Forty-seven times by actual court," Nick retorted. And I'm —— tired of listening to that particular spiel. I tell you I'm for Baby, here. Everything she's said so far has clicked. If you didn't have a skull like a rhinoceros, you'd know it. So keep that trap of yours shut while I hear what she's got to say. I've told you that forty-seven times, too. I'm not going to say it many times more without socking your fat mug. Now go on, Baby. Who are these birds?"

"One of them is my husband," I said faintly, "the other is a friend of ours. They are both friends of the girl I am trailing, and they are trying to find out where she has been taken."

But Nick had seized upon one word, and was repeating it.

"Husband, eh?" he said with a laugh that sounded like a snarl. "Husband! Husband! Baby's husband! Now, isn't that just too bad!"

Household Hints

Include the old rubbers with the old shoes when giving away shoes that a child has outgrown. The mother of the boy receiving them will be so glad of protection against stormy days as well as clear.

If a cement floor is to be covered with linoleum, be sure it has been waterproofed first.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Cultivate a Hobby for Relaxation and Health

I recently visited a home where the children of my host entertained me by showing their collection of stamps, shells and flowers. The boy, with his assortment of stamps, was only 10 years of age. He was happy with his hobby and had a lot to say about distant parts of the globe. I am confident he learned more about geography from his stamp collection than from his school atlas.

Dr. Copeland

These children were enthusiastic about their hobbies. The parents were proud of their children's accomplishments and encouraged them in every way. I was pleased with this picture because it is my firm belief that hobbies are beneficial for the child as well as the adult.

Many neurologists claim that hobbies prevent severe emotional and physical distress. They claim that fewer cases of nervous breakdown would occur if more of us had real hobbies. Hobbies are beneficial because they relax the mind, nerves and body. The child, man or woman who has a hobby is indeed fortunate.

I am often asked what type of hobby I recommend. This is difficult to answer. A certain hobby may appeal to one person and prove unattractive to another. One man may devote all his time to golf, whereas another man will cultivate an interest in old books or pictures. One child may collect stamps, and another may delight in tinkering with radios, motors or chemicals.

A hobby must be developed and not forced. So far as health is concerned, it is only successful if it furnishes enjoyment, pleasure and gratification. It must be a soothing pastime if it is to relieve the everyday strain of life.

Bear in mind that the child who has a hobby carries through life a weapon against idle hours and misdirected energy. As in the home I visited, children derive knowledge from a hobby, knowledge which is sometimes difficult to teach at school. A hobby may disclose talent in literature, music, painting, drawing or writing.

Many parents realize the value of a hobby and are prompted to ask how one can be developed. As a rule, a hobby just comes of itself, by accident probably. Parents can aid their children by directing them and guiding them in whatever special interests they display.

Encourage hobbies! It is not necessary to have expensive equipment or special training. A minimum of expense and equipment usually leads to the most enjoyable and successful experiences.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Meeting a Woman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A certain problem has bothered me for some time, and I am eager to know whether I am right or wrong.

Whenever I have introduced my husband to one or more women, he invariably, upon leaving, will say, "I'm very pleased to have met you." On one occasion I told him I felt that was not right, inasmuch as he did not meet the lady, but she met him. I did not stress the point, however, because I was not sure. H.

You are right in what you say in your last paragraph—that in an introduction the man meets the woman. That is, sometimes we make an informal introduction like this: "Mr. Mann, have you met Miss Woman?"

But your husband is correct in saying to a woman, when he leaves after an introduction, "I'm very glad to have met you." This "met" is used in the sense of becoming acquainted with her, of talking with her, of having enjoyed the conversation with her.

Write Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was recently married and for the time being we are living with my parents. Is it proper to send out "At Home" cards? If not, what means should I use to let people know where we are? R.

Under the circumstances, rather than sending out "At Home" cards I suggest that you write your friends notes telling them of your present plans and of your address. Or you might buy some of those most useful so-called "informal message cards," using the Mr. and Mrs. plate, with the address, for the first page, and writing, inside the double card, the message and perhaps your telephone number.

Gift or a Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a cousin in a distant city and he is to be graduated from the College of Pharmacy very soon. Really I don't know what kind of gift to send him, or should I send him a note? If a note, what should I write? LOUIS.

Whether you send a gift or a note depends entirely on your own choice. If you send a gift it might be a book—always a good graduation gift—or a wallet, a pen and pencil set, an evening scarf, or day or evening handkerchiefs.

If you write him a note, the "theme song" should be your congratulations on his being graduated and your high wishes for his happiness and success.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair -With- Patricia Pitt

There's something that never loses its charm—a rummage sale. There's an eternal attraction in peering into a collection from other folks' attics in the hope of making a "find."

To the Civic Club of Allegheny County goes the credit of providing lovers of bargain hunting with a new rummage sale.

The dates are June 15 and 16. Today the committee is sending out cards to householders asking contribution of silver and jewels, furniture and drapes, china and glass, books and pictures.

Mrs. Charles W. Houston is chairman with Mrs. Francis S. Guthrie and Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., as her aides.

This week brings two most interesting events—the wedding of Eleanor Evans, of Oakmont, and John Cecil Norman, of Louisville, Ky., on Thursday and the final Stage and Play performance of the season on Tuesday night at the Twentieth Century Club.

Evans Wedding

And the chief event in golfing circles will be the opening tournament of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, to be played Wednesday at Allegheny Country Club.

* * *

But to return to Stage and Play. On Thursday night the players will repeat "To Have the Honor" for Sewickleyites. The play will be in the Edgeworth Club for club members, the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club and the Sewickley Cot Club. Before the play there'll be a buffet supper.

To Give Play

After the play tomorrow night, Stage and Play will have its annual meeting.

Erie Girl Weds Pittsburgher In Church

The Bethany Lutheran Church, East Liberty, was the scene of the marriage on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, of Miss Lena E. Reighart, of Erie, Pa., and William E. Weniger, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Weniger, of Pittsburgh. Officiating was the Rev. George W. Englar in the presence of the families.

Mrs. Margaret Gundlach was the matron of honor and Oscar S. Weniger served as best man.

After the ceremony there was a wedding dinner in the W. O. Weniger home in North St. Clair street. Mr. and Mrs. Weniger left on an eastern trip and after June 1 will be at home in Beacon street.

Langley P. T. A. to Elect Officers on Tuesday

Election of officers will be held at the final meeting of the Langley Parent-Teacher Association on Tuesday. The program for the meeting is to be given by the Langley Student Council, under the direction of Miss Irene Williams. Earl Cooke, president of the student council, will explain Langley's student government and an address of welcome will be given by Josephine Galleher.

In a pageant, "Youth's Challenge," the prologue will be given by Rachel Harper. Music will be furnished by Ida Artuso and the McDowell trio composed of Mildred Hertzler Hissom, Anna Hertzler and Howard Neff.

Springdale-Cheswick Junior Dance Friday

Miss Virginia Hanna is chairman for the dance which the Springdale-Cheswick Junior Woman's Club will give Friday in co-operation with the Allegheny Valley Woman's Club.

Assisting the chairman are Miss Louise Hanna, Miss Louise Brinton, Miss Charlotte Fisher, Mrs. Margaret Brink and Mrs. Myrtle McCulloch. The dance is to be held at the Brackenridge Heights Country Club.

Helene Harris Married To Ernest Oberheim

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harris, of Bayers road announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helene Harris, to Ernest Oberheim, son of Theodore Oberheim, Sr., of Ardmore boulevard, which was solemnized on September 10 in Wellsburg, W. Va., by the Rev. P. Graff, of the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Oberheim will be at home with the bride's parents.

* * *

Foster Women's Christian Temperance Union will have an unusual meeting tomorrow when the members visit the Heinz Company for a morning tour of the plant and luncheon at 12 o'clock.

Later they will hear an organ recital and a talk on quick summer suppers, the latter by Miss Josephine Gibson. Officers will be elected during a business session.

* * *

Mrs. Sadie B. Weiner, of Chislett street, announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rosella June Weiner, to Charles Ruttenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ruttenberg, of Raleigh street.

* * *

Phi Beta Tau, Dental Sorority of the University of Pittsburgh, will honor the women members of the senior class with a dinner on Monday evening, June 5, at the William Penn Hotel.

* * *

A play entitled, "Lookin' Lovely," is to be given this evening by the C. V. B. Class at Trinity Lutheran Church, Sheraden.

Pitt's Commencement Affairs Start Friday

Commencement Week activities at the University of Pittsburgh begin Friday evening, when the annual Senior Ball ushers in a series of social events preceeding the annual baccalaureate and convocation exercises.

Baccalaureate services in Carnegie Music Hall, Sunday morning, June 4, will be conducted by Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh area.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, will address the 1,300 graduates at convocation exercises in the Pitt Stadium, Wednesday morning, June 7. Both the baccalaureate and convocation exercises will be open to the public.

School of pharmacy graduates will have a reception and banquet in Webster Hall Hotel, May 29, and the school of medicine faculty will give a dinner to the graduating class June 3 in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

The alumni and seniors of the schools of engineering and mines will have a luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel June 6 followed by a reception to the seniors in the Oil and Gas Building on the university campus.

Women of the graduating class will be guests of the Alumnae Association at dinner June 3 in Webster Hall Hotel.

A banquet for dental school graduates will be held June 6 in the Dental Infirmary Building.

Coronation of the senior queen will be held Tuesday morning, June 6, in Heinz House. More than 100 senior women will participate in the ceremony. Miss Rose Marie Demestichas, as the queen, and Miss Dorothy Getsinger, as alma mater, will have the principal parts.

Preceding the coronation, senior women will have breakfast at the Twentieth Century Club.

College Club Will Hold Member Campaign

The College Club is to have an active campaign for 200 new members, which will bring its membership to 800, at which it will close. A resolution to extend the membership was introduced at the annual meeting on Saturday morning. All eligible college graduates will be invited to affiliate with the club and the month of June will be devoted to membership work.

Full reports were given at the meeting by all committee heads and every one showed that the year just closed was the most progressive and profitable in every way that the club has ever had. Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, chairman of the house committee, submitted her report in amusing story form.

After much discussion the club empowered the board of directors to take action upon such legislative measures of a civic or educational nature which in the board's opinion merit the support of the club.

North Hills Women To Finish Year At Luncheon

The North Hills Woman's Club will take the last page of its season's calendar off the wall when it has a luncheon on Thursday at the Wildwood Country Club.

After luncheon Miss Helen Young, in charge of the program, will introduce Miss Evelyn Pfeifer, who will furnish the music, and Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, who will read.

Court Grace, C. D. A., Card Party Friday

Mrs. Eugene Heck, Mrs. Mary McEntee and Mrs. Peter O'Donnell, Jr., have completed arrangements for the annual spring card party and dance to be given by Court Grace, No. 593, Catholic Daughters of America, Friday evening, in the Knights of Columbus Home, Sharpsburg.

Elmira College Club Luncheon on Saturday

The Elmira College Club, of Pittsburgh, is having its annual luncheon in the College Club on Saturday. Mrs. E. F. Whitney is in charge of arrangements.

Luncheon will be followed by a business meeting and election of officers.

County Parent-Teacher Conference on Wednesday

Mrs. John E. Winner, newly-elected president of the Allegheny County Parent-Teacher Association, will preside at the spring conference of the organization, which is set for Wednesday in the Third Ward School, Crafton.

The morning session will be devoted to business, including installation of officers by Mrs. D. N. Bulford, district president. Members will take a box luncheon and the hostess group will serve cake and coffee.

In the afternoon E. O. Liggitt, supervising principal of Crafton schools, will address the meeting.

Officers Elected By Dormont Juniors

The Dormont Juniors will have for their next year's president, Miss Eleanor M. Wilson. Assisting her will be Miss Kate Elizabeth Yellig, vice president; Mrs. Elry Rudert, recording secretary; Mrs. W. B. Roberts, corresponding secretary, and Miss Phoebe Russell, treasurer.

Flora Stone Mather Club Meets Saturday

The Flora Stone Mather Club of Western Reserve University will hold its May meeting in the College Club on Saturday. It's to be a 1 o'clock luncheon.

Ingram Juniors To Induct New Officials

Mrs. Robert Hanna is chairman of hostesses for this evening's meeting of the Ingram Junior Woman's Club.

Committee reports will be heard and officers installed at the business meeting and a playlet will be presented by the members for entertainment.

The meeting is to be held, as usual, in Firemen's Association Hall.

Perrysville Parent-Teacher Association will conduct its annual summer roundup, physical examination of pre-school children, on Wednesday at 1 o'clock.

Plans for B. P. W. National Federation Convention In June Announced

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Somebody has said that the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs (Chicago, July 9 to 15) might well be called "Around the World in One Week."

Already scheduled are a trip through Chinatown, where the delegates will see such contrasting wares as strange dried fish and herbs and elaborate embroideries, and where 5,000 different characters in type are sorted by hand daily for the Chinese newspaper.

A visit to Hull House, made famous by Jane Addams, is another item of interest on the week's menu of events. Also a special excursion to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln in nearby Springfield.

And a moonlight boat ride along the lake shore, where the brilliant fair spectacle will be mirrored in the water, another boat ride across the lake to Michigan City, and, of course, the Century of Progress Exposition itself.

As to programs, it's a little early, but even so, news comes that "career women" who have made outstanding successes in the 25 principal vocations will be speakers.

Mrs. Ray S. Judd Heads Woman's Club of City

Mrs. Ray S. Judd heads the Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh for next year.

Other newly elected officers are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Nutt and Mrs. George Weber; recording secretary, Mrs. J. J. Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Paul Diffenbacher; treasurer, Mrs. John Rhine; directors, Mrs. J. C. Schreiner, Mrs. J. C. Wanner and Miss Miriam Schonfield.

Dr. Kerr to Address Schaeffer P. T. A. Meeting

Dr. A. M. Kerr, supervisor of the department of hygiene, Board of Public Education, will speak on "The Whole Child Goes to School" at the closing meeting of the Schaeffer Parent-Teacher Association tomorrow evening. Pupils of the Obey School will present a puppet show.

Jewish Juniors Depart From Custom

Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors, is departing somewhat from its usual custom and next Sunday when the annual meeting is held its president, Miss Rhoda Levy, will be honored.

A luncheon for her will be given in the Concordia Club prior to the business session in the Y. M. and W. H. A.

Mrs. Leo L. Half, retiring senior president, will install the new officers. Miss Pearl Glassner is taking luncheon reservations.

* * *

For the entertainment of the Aid Auxiliary of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church tomorrow, Victor Paul Kolasinski will give an illustrated travelog and music will be furnished by Miss Mary Austraw, Miss Emmy Lou Baumgarner and Victor Frisch.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth F. Hine, of Fatehgarh, India, is the speaker announced for the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh presbytery, which is set for Wednesday in the First Church.

* * *

For the benefit of Mary E. Humbert Tent, No. 14, Daughters of Union Veterans, a card party will be held Thursday afternoon and evening at the home of Miss Blanche Mickley, Stratford avenue.

* * *

Parent problems will be discussed tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the Glenwood Parent-Teacher Association. The Fifth Grade chorus will sing.

* * *

Chicago Secretaries in ONE-LEG TEST

cut down Stocking Runs 72%

CLEVER Chicago business girls made this convincing "one-leg test." Washed ONE stocking every night with Lux—and rubbed the OTHER with cake soap. They could hardly believe the way Lux cut down runs—72% better wear from the Luxed stockings than from their exact mates—rubbed with cake soap!

It's easy to see why Lux saves stockings. Lux preserves the elasticity of silk—that "live" quality that makes them give without breaking. Cake-soap rubbing too often destroys elasticity. Threads break under strain. Wash your stockings in Lux every night—takes only two minutes!

Avoid ordinary soaps—they often contain harmful alkali. Lux has no harmful alkali. Avoid cake-soap rubbing, too. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Mrs. J. R. Iwersen washed 457 pieces with just one box of LUX:—

118 pairs socks and stockings
61 pieces silk lingerie and blouses
14 sweaters and baby blankets
30 nightgowns and pajamas
26 aprons and children's dresses
208 pieces table linen, handkerchiefs
"And I did the dishes for 1½ weeks."

MISS [illegible]CE HOLLAND (left) says, "On the third [illegible] of the test I had a run in the cake-soap stocking. After 31 days' wear the Lux one is still like new. Imagine, over 10 times as long wear! That's why we girls are sold on Lux."

LUX saves stocking Elasticity

DOWNTOWN AIR O. K.'D IN TESTS

The sulphur dioxide content of Pittsburgh's air is not a menace to health, the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research announced today after completing a test of the downtown atmosphere for a year.

For 8,000,000 parts of air there was only one part of sulphur dioxide during 10 months of the year, but last November and December the average was doubled.

The tests were made daily by Carlise Schade, a fellow at Mellon Institute, during 1932 on the roof of the City-County Building, 160 feet above the street level.

Similar tests were made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory and the United States Bureau of Mines at different locations. The day by day figures for all the investigations show higher sulphur percentages in the morning than in the afternoon hours. Colder months have higher averages than warmer periods.

FEDERAL LABOR QUIZ SOUGHT

Miss Emmelinne Pitt, Pittsburgh commissioner for the Department of Labor, was in Washington today to present a demand to the Senate for an investigation of the entire Federal building program. The new postoffices in Pittsburgh and McKeesport are involved, it was said, as well as government dam construction projects at several points in the Pittsburgh district.

Affidavits were to be sent to Washington from three Pittsburgh carpenters and the wife of one. The signers are C. B. Mathias and W. Bruce Mathias, brothers, of 6333 Walnut street, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene L. Siebert, of 109 Grandview avenue.

The three men were employed by Volpe Brothers, sub-contractors of the new Pittsburgh Federal building. All declared in their affidavits that the contractors violated working of agreements, especially as to wages.

Aimee McPherson's Preaching Aide Dies

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(AP.)—The Rev. John Goben, 46, for two years assistant pastor at Angelus Temple, under Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist, died yesterday in a hospital, where he had been confined for more than a month.

STRING AND COTTON DRESSES HAILED WITH GLEE FOR SUMMER

ON THE first really warm day a dash to a fashionable restaurant is not only fun, but good business for a woman who cares about what's what in fashions. These little sketches, made between a tomato juice cocktail and an alligator pear salad, will give you a cross section of what's going on.

* * *

THE MOST exciting thing we noted is the string suit on the right. It really is made of string, loosely woven in a sort of homespun effect. We were frankly envious of the girl who wore it, for it looked cool and kept fresh and unmussed. Under the loose, informally cut coat, she had on a crisply striped red and white cotton gillet, buttoning down the front. This she topped with a scarf, pinned with a crystal feather, and a little hat of the red and white stripes.

* * *

The SQUARE, but not too square, hat in the sketch at the bottom is a happy compromise between the towering fez of this year and the flat pancake of last. It's made of one of those mysterious hybrids of fabric and straw which are light as a feather but keep their shapes trigly under wiltingly hot suns. The angular shoulders of the sheer wool coat beneath it are obtained in a new way, by the use of horizontal tucks, adding bulk but not fussiness to the top of the figure.

* * *

PIQUE HAS for some time been a staple of the summer wardrobe. But because nothing stands still in the fashion world, it's out now in a new version, with a corded surface instead of the conventional wale. The brimmed hat of it has several high spots, a band running up one side and a color note of bright little ribbons.

* * *

FARMERS WAIT ROOSEVELT AID

BOONE, Ia., May 22.—(AP.)—Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, told the Iowa association in convention that he places his hopes of farm relief in President Roosevelt.

A farm strike will be unnecessary, Reno said, if the President successfully carries out his campaign pledges.

The convention yesterday adopted resolutions demanding cost of production for farm products and calling upon Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to "immediately initiate a sound program for the relief of agriculture and the rehabilitation of the farm."

Gov. Herring was criticized for sending the military to Northwestern Iowa to quell recent farm disturbances.

OFFICER FIRES AT FUGITIVE

A Negro robber suspect at whom Patrolman Anthony Betters fired three shots at Webster avenue and Roberts street last night, was still at large today.

Patrolman Betters reported he was struck by the suspect when he stopped him for questioning in connection with the theft of rugs from the officer's apartment.

Betters said the suspect answered the description he had been given of the man who had taken several rugs from his apartment at 1625 Webster avenue. One of the shots took effect, Betters said he believed.

KING ANSWERS OUSTER CHARGE

HARRISBURG, May 22.—(AP.)—Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, advised the Supreme Court today that he retains his membership on the commission because his appointment was filed with the Senate and has not been rejected.

The argument was set forth in the answer which Roland S. Morris, counsel for King, filed in the ouster proceedings instituted by Gov. Pinchot against his former right-hand man whom Pinchot named to the commission and chairmanship last year.

The Governor, in a petition filed by Attorney General William A. Schnader, charges King "unlawfully intrudes himself" on the commission since he was not reappointed on May 6. Pinchot holds King's appointment lapsed automatically when the Senate adjourned without action on it.

SUNDAY SHOW DRAWS 4,000

Nearly 4,000 persons attended yesterday's Triangle Theater food benefit for Father Cox and hundreds of the destitute who come to Old St. Patrick's every day for aid will be assured of something to eat for a few days at least. The benefit was a success in every way, netting two large truckloads of food.

Manager W. D. Davis put on a smashing good show. The affair was arranged by Mr. Davis with the co-operation of the Sun-Telegraph, which has co-sponsored 15 of these Sunday food benefits during the last six months for the poor of Pittsburgh. The donations of food at these benefits aggregate something over 75 tons.

Father Cox is on his way again for another successful week in his Sun-Telegraph subscription drive. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

GIRL'S SHOOTING MYSTERY

BIGLER, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—A few minutes after returning from church with her sweetheart last night, Wava Parks, 18, was shot and killed at the home of a sister, Mrs. Basil Bumbarger.

Her body was found in the yard by Mr. and Mrs. Bumbarger.

Police say the girl committed suicide. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Parks, believe she was slain.

Neighbors told police they heard Miss Parks and a young man companion quarreling a short time before the shooting.

The girl was shot over the heart with a 22-caliber pistol bullet.

An inquest will be held today.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Force With the Short Suit

The unusual Force with the three-card suit is justified only when the player holds splendid support for the suit bid by his partner and when his partner's suit is a higher ranking one. With these safety devices a Force with a three-card suit frequently is the only means of reaching a Small Slam or, perchance, a Grand Slam. Wooden methods with such hands, where the Responding Hand has tremendous support for the suit originally bid, often result in reaching only a game contract when 13 tricks can be made laid down.

Using the Four-Five Notrump Convention, Mr. C. D. P. Hamilton, of St. Louis, Mo., solved, with his partner the problem of reaching a Grand Slam with the hands below in a recent Duplicate game, while other players, with the same hands, stopped at a Small Slam, and some even at game.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North: ♠ K Q 8 7 6 2, ♡ A Q 9, ◇ K 5, ♣ K 9
West: ♠ 9, ♡ J 10 5 3, ◇ 8 6 4 3, ♣ 10 7 5 4
East: ♠ 5 4, ♡ 7 6 2, ◇ Q J 10 7 2, ♣ Q J 8
South: ♠ A J 10 3, ♡ K 8 4, ◇ A 9, ♣ A 6 3 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡ (1)	Pass
4 ♡ (2)	Pass	5 ♠ (3)	Pass
5 N T (4)	Pass	7 ♠ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The score with the three-card suit—perfectly safe because partner has bid spades and hence it is certain that it will be eventually played in that suit.

2—On the surface, an underbid, but the fact that South has only three cards suggests the danger of finding the heart suit strongly massed in the hand of one opponent or the other. South, as yet, knows nothing of North's magnificent spade support.

3—This bid is clearly indicated. While not strictly forcing, no partner, with an opening bid, could pass in this situation.

4—The unusual five-notrump bid. The four-notrump conventional Slam-reaching bid is much more common than the conventional five notrump. The five-bid here, after North's raise of the spades, shows three Aces and a King.

5—North, with his holding, has an absolute picture of the high-card content of South's hand. The three Aces are definitely the Ace of spades, the Ace of diamonds and the Ace of clubs. The King is clearly the King of hearts. Obviously, the Grand Slam in spades cannot be missed, and so North rightly bids it.

The bidding of North and South at this table is a beautiful example of the accurate exchange of inferences between partners who know their bids and how to apply them. Less accurate bidding on this hand resulted, in most cases, in reaching the Small Slam in spades. At one table North immediately raised South's Opening one-spade bid to four, and South then passed, as he could picture many card combinations besides that actually held by North that would justify this immediate raise to game. Even then, South should have taken further action, as it is impossible to visualize any holding in the North hand that would justify an immediate raise to game over an opening bid of one that would not practically guarantee the making of at least five.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner has opened the bidding with one club and Second Hand has bid one heart. What do you bid, holding: ♠ A 8 5 ♡ 10 8 3 2 ◇ Q J 4 ♣ K J 2

Answer: One notrump. The heart length is almost a stopper in the suit and the distribution does not justify a club raise.

MACHEN URGES CHURCH BREAK FROM COUNCIL

Holds National Group Hostile to Faith Of Christians

Propaganda carried on by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America is hostile to the Christian faith, Dr. J. Gresham Mashen, Philadelphia fundamentalist, declared in a sermon in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church yesterday. He urged that the Presbyterian Church sever its relations with the Council which, he said, is in the hands of destructive modernists. He said in part:

"The propaganda of the Council is dominated by men of modernist views, and those who are spokesmen for it are opposed to that for which the Presbyterian Church, according to its constitution, stands. If the Presbyterian Church is really Christian it will not continue for a moment longer to lend its support to such propaganda."

Dr. Machen, a professor at Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, assailed the missions board for spreading anti-Christian propaganda through books, utterances, actions and teachings in union institutions with which it is co-operating, especially in China. Referring to the writings of Pearl S. Buck, former missionary, Dr. Machen said:

"Mrs. Buck implied plainly in articles printed in magazines that to her it is a matter of indifference whether there ever was an individual person in Christ at all, living in a body of flesh and bones on earth. It would be difficult to see how opposition to the Christian view of Christ could go much further than that.

"Yet the board has accepted Mrs. Buck's resignation with deep regret and with every indication that it regards her as a splendid Christian missionary."

ECONOMY TOPIC OF CHURCHMEN

COLUMBUS, O., May 22.—(AP.)—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., convening here Thursday, will be confronted with numerous proposals that it meet less often for economy's sake.

One proposal, suggested by the Presbytery of Buffalo and concurred in by 66 of the church's 290 presbyteries, calls for fewer meetings and a reduction in the number of delegates. The St. Louis Presbytery favors meeting every two years, instead of annually as at present, while some western presbyteries consider every three years often enough.

All told, 32 of the 70 proposals to be placed before the assembly are concerned with some form of economy, according to Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, of Philadelphia, stated clerk.

PULPITS DEFEND MRS. BUCK

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Prediction that "a storm of no small magnitude" will disturb the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Columbus, O., because of the resignation of Mrs. Pearl S. Buck as a missionary was made in a sermon yesterday by the Rev. J. V. Moldenhawer.

Criticism of the acceptance of the resignation by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions also was expressed in a sermon delivered by the Rev. Edmund Melville Wylie.

Mrs. Buck resigned after her orthodoxy had been questioned before the board.

The Rev. Mr. Wylie said:

"It was bad enough that our author-missionary from China, Mrs. Buck, should be attacked, but that our church should permit her to resign is unthinkable. For the attack was on grounds utterly anti-protestant and contrary to the very genius of Presbyterianism."

My Own Life Story + + By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

Odd Incidents Broke Monotony of Evelyn's Life With Thaw Family

SYNOPSIS

After her marriage to Harry Thaw, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw settled down to a quiet life in the family mansion in Pittsburgh. Although far from happy, she was content at first with the calm security such a life had to offer. Harry, however, according to yesterday's chapter of her life story, soon tired of the dullness and began making frequent "business trips" to New York. Evelyn found, too, that he was getting reports on the movements of Stanford White, of whom he was wildly jealous and whom Evelyn has described as the "great love" of her life. Throughout these reminiscences, Evelyn has emphasized the fact that her defiance of moral laws and conventions brought her not happiness, but agony; and it is her hope to convince other girls that "you can't break the rules and win."

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

(Copyright.)

CHAPTER XVI.

The atmosphere of the Thaw mansion was too gloomy for me. I began to wonder what on earth I could do with myself to pass away the time. I was bored and in a dazed state of suspended animation. I discovered the Von Kunitz School of Music and Languages nearby and asked Harry if there would be any objection to my studying music and French at this particular school.

Now, here's a funny thing. In Paris, before our marriage, Thaw objected to my learning French, refused me any French lessons. His excuse at that time ran like this:

"No, I will not permit you to take French lessons. You would only learn a lot of things in Paris I don't want you to know. No, I won't have it!"

But, being a natural born linguist, inheriting that faculty from my father, I picked up languages very quickly, and by keeping my ears open, I absorbed all the French possible.

However, now that he figured that he had me buried in the safety of marriage, it was all right for me to take French lessons. So I resumed my Bach and Beethoven and took up the study of French three times a week at the Von Kunitz School. Believe me, that helped a lot to make life bearable.

Another Tower

At one end of "Lyndhurst" there was a tower.

"Does anybody ever go up there?" I said one day to Mary Copley, a young niece of Mother Thaw's who was staying at the mansion.

"I don't think so," she replied. "When we were children, we used to go up there to play, but nobody ever goes up there now."

"Ooh," said I, "maybe it's all full of cobwebs and spooks. Let's go."

We climbed up the dusty stairway leading to the one room at the top of the tower. It was quite true no one had been there for a long time. The place was thick with dust. To my intense delight, I discovered some exquisite, beautifully carved chests and cabinets.

"Ye gods!" I exclaimed, "look at those beautiful cabinets! Why, they would look wonderful downstairs! Why are they being wasted up here."

Two of them, I discovered, belonged to Harry. He had picked them up abroad—in Spain, I think, for one of them was Moorish—and shipped them to Pittsburgh. With Harry's permission, I had them dusted and cleaned and placed in my own bedroom.

In the household, Mother Thaw was always addressed by the servants as "Mrs. Thaw." She was THE Mrs. Thaw. I was "Mrs. Harry." Harry always sat at the foot of the table because he was the oldest child. I sat at Mother Thaw's left and Hungry Club Hears G. O. P. Chairman Pledge Reform

Responsibility for sweatshops in Pennsylvania was placed to the State Department of Labor and Industry and school and municipal authorities today by Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State chairman, who promised that the Republican organization will see that the condition is corrected.

The sweatshop controversy was laid to "misguided persons desiring to make political issues out of human misfortune" by Gen. Martin in speaking before the Hungry Club at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Citing that state laws provide protective measures including penalties and fines, Martin said:

"If the Governor of the commonwealth, through the Department of Labor and Industry, discovers violations it is in his power to stop it. The law has adequate teeth."

EMPLOYERS SCORED

Migratory employers were blamed for the conditions. Referring to a special committee provided by the Legislature to investigate the charges, Martin said:

"This committee has full power to act and the Republican organization of Pennsylvania urges that it go to the bottom of the entire affair. In fact, it does not alone urge it, but will see that it does."

Martin's talk summarized the work of the past Legislature, pointing out economies created and that 774 bills were passed and placed on the Governor's desk.

The interesting part of Martin's appearance came with the open forum which followed the reading of his prepared speech.

QUESTION ON REFORM

Questioned by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, if his organization was for permanent registration and election reforms legislation, Martin replied:

"I was behind it."

"Were you pushing it?"

"No, I wasn't able to push it."

Mrs. Smith next queried:

"By what process does yo Republican committee lay out legislative program? I've nev been able to get into any con ference."

Martin answered:

"You are welcome to sit in now—night after night in tobacco smoke filled rooms."

Several listeners questioned Martin on the old age pension action, to which Martin preceded to outline how the discharge of the committee was voted when it reported it had not completed its study. Asked if he knew the Senate passed the bill two years ago Martin replied he didn't know.

The question of salary reductions arose. Martin was asked why the legislators did not take salary reductions such as given state workers. He pointed out a cut of $500 or $600 would go into effect with the next group of members.

Ministers Denounce Sweatshop Evil

Ministers from their pulpits blasted at the sweatshop evil last night, protesting against the exploitation of women and child workers, and calling on the city and state to clean out unprincipled politicians.

The Rev. A. Johnson, pastor of the Squirrel Hill Christian Church, declared the owners of sweatshops had tarnished the name of Pennsylvania—named for William Penn, who became famous for his just treatment of the Indians. He said:

"It is not enough that our

ARREST FATHER IN KIDNAPING

Alleged to have attempted to spirit his four-year-old son from the home of his estranged wife in Homestead, Zeman Gain, 34, of Akron, O., and a companion, E. S. Post, also of Akron, were to be given hearings today before Burgess J. J. Cavanaugh, in Homestead Police Court.

Mrs. Gains, of 517 Dixon street, Homestead, told police her husband and Post forced their way into her home last night and carried the sleeping child from his bed.

They were arrested by West End police at request of Homestead officers as they are alleged to have been speeding westward with the child.

CALL LEADERS IN VOTE PROBE

John A. Fugassi, a member of the Board of Mercantile Appraisers, and John J. Verona, political leader of the Third Ward, have been subpenaed to testify before the special federal grand jury when it convenes June 12, it was learned today. The grand jury will investigate two of the November congressional elections here.

Fugassi and Verona will head the list of more than 800 witnesses, who will be asked what they know of the conduct of election boards and voters in the Thirtieth and Thirty-second Congressional districts.

They are Republican leaders in the Thirty-second District, where Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democratic candidate, was defeated by Congressman M. J. Muldowney, Republican, by a majority of 3,096 votes.

The other election under inquiry is that in which Twing Brooks won over the incumbent, Edmund F. Erk.

McKeesporter Faces Still Raid Hearing

A. O. Bernard, 33, of 1421 Bryon way, McKeesport, will be given a hearing today before Police Magistrate John Skinner, of McKeesport, as an aftermath to a police raid late yesterday on a building in the rear of Bernard's home, during which officers said they found a 150-gallon still in operation and 65 gallons of moonshine whisky.

EXPERT SAVES COUNTY $2,000,000

Binder Who Makes Old Books New Gives Secret

James W. Ward, whose unusual book binding skill is saving Allegheny County $2,000,000, disclosed today one of his secrets of making new books from old ones.

In his laboratory in the City-County Building he does many unbelievable things. When pages are torn in two he splits open the page, puts a thin layer of paper in between and then glues the split halves to the thin paper. He can even split a cigaret paper.

The only secret he would reveal is a method for making charred and burnt books and documents legible. He said:

"You immerse the black block in a tincture of gold. The yellow gives the burnt paper a background and brings out the printing. It sounds rather simple, but it's very difficult and expensive."

Ward has, literally speaking, dipped thousands of books into his fountain of youth. He has worked in courthouses all over the country and at present is rebinding the county's century-old deed and mortgage books.

He explained that he had to buy most of his information and learned the rest by research and study. He paid $300, every cent he owned, when he was 18 years old, for his first lessons in rebinding books.

Ward has developed patents for cleaning and binding books. He also has a secret method for restoring ink to its original plainness.

Doctor Report Blamed In Prisoner's Death

A hospital report that Peter Jones, 24, Negro, was suffering from alcoholism was responsible for his being held in a police station cell while suffering from a skull fracture which caused his death, Police Capt. John Schnurr said today.

Jones died yesterday in Passavant Hospital. He had been taken there for examination after he was found unconscious in the rear of 76 Crawford street, according to police. Capt. Schnurr said Dr. J. Ginsberg reported the man suffered only from the effects of alcohol and the prisoner was taken back to Center Avenue Police Station.

Turnkey Leon Levy later found Jones lying in his bunk, bleeding from the nose, and had him returned to the hospital where an examination disclosed the skull fracture, Schnurr asserted.

Capt. Schnurr said police were in no way responsible for the man's injury, and that the prisoner must have been injured before he was taken to the hospital for the first examination. He said the police learned there had been a fight at the Crawford street house where Jones was found.

Eight Negroes, two of them women, were held over by Magistrate James O'Connor in Center Avenue Police Court today for investigation in connection with the alleged fight.

Dreams of Tax Yield Have More Kick Than Beer

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

Seems that the April beer tax was disappointing. So was the beer.

The maltiferous excise ran only nine millions of dollars. However, as school ain't out yet, we will do a little figuring on our cracked slate.

Multiply April by twelve and you have $112,000,000. On paper. Which is always food for the book worms and the termites.

Multiply that again by the twelve years from 1920 to 1933, exclusive, and you have $1,344,000,000. Still on paper. But the kind that is countersigned by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Add to that the same amount spent in futile enforcement, damaged property through raids, racketeering and lives lost, strayed or stolen.

And you have $2,638,000,000. Or you should have it. But you haven't. The paper blew away.

BUSINESS GAIN THINS JOBLESS RANKS HERE

Pittsburgh district industries hummed today as the Pennsylvania Employment Commission reported the "most definite upswing in jobs" that has occurred in the last two years.

Steel mill stacks "dead" for months are again "smoking" and factory whistles have called more than 2,000 of the unemployed back to work in the tri-state area.

Production will be started within a week on a 30,000 steel order by the Dravo Contracting Company, as a result of a $4,495,000 contract for the western half of the substructure on the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge granted the Bridge Builders, Inc. The Dravo Company is an important link in this organization.

NEW PLANTS OPEN

The local order consists of 3,000 tons of steel to go into the substructure, according to R. M. Dravo, president of the contracting company. Representatives of the concern will return from California with complete plans for the work within a week, he said.

Jones and Laughlin Steel Company will start its Martins Ferry tin plate plant on a full-time schedule this week, employing 1,200 men.

For the first time in four years the State-Federal Employment Office here found jobs for 10 men in a single group when the Duquesne Products Company opened a new plant at Blairsville, today. Increased orders for road construction necessitated the larger production schedule, officials announced, and prospects are encouraging for the hiring of additional men in the near future.

COAL ACTIVITY UP

Wheeling, W. Va., is leading the nation in increases for steel ingot production, a nation-wide survey revealed during the past week and many additional plants have announced renewed activity for the coming weeks. Follansbee Brothers today started its new combination mill along with several others employing approximately 1,200 men, marking the first full-time operation since 1928.

The Wheeling Steel Corporation also will begin partial operations early this week, it was reported.

Advancing with the national business pickup, Pennsylvania's bituminous coal production increased 30,000 tons in the week ended May 6, over the preceeding week, according to the Bureau of Mines. Production was at 1,365,000 tons for the week compared with 1,376,000 tons for the same week last year.

JEWS TO MARK SHABUOTH

Orthodox Jewry will observe Shabuoth, the Feast of Weeks, May 31 and June 1. The festival originally related to the agricultural life of ancient Israel, but tradition also makes it the anniversary of the revelation at Sinai when Israel assumed its sacred mission as the priest-people and holy nation.

For the latter reason, the modern American Synagogue has chosen Shabuoth as the most appropriate association for the ceremonial of confirmation whereby boys and girls renew the vow of Horeb and pledge their love and loyalty to the covenant of their fathers.

FOLKS WELCOMING RUBINOFF HOME

R. RUBINOFF — DAVID RUBINOFF — MRS. R. RUBINOFF

RUBINOFF, EDDIE TO BACK SHOW

David Rubinoff was home today and had waited until he was in the midst of his boyhood friends and scenes to announce he was turning producer.

To thousands of radio friends, the combination is Rubinoff and Cantor. Beginning next September, it will be Rubinoff and Cantor in the theater. David and Eddie have become partners and together will produce a musical show for a coast-to-coast tour. It will serve likewise to reunite them on the air and their music and fun will be broadcast from cities being visited. David will carry a 50-piece orchestra, he said.

Rubinoff arrived here today for a week's engagement at the Willows. His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. Rubinoff, of Squirrel Hill, were at the Pennsylvania Station to meet him, that mother to whom he plays his mother songs from New York. The party left with a host of admirers in special cars for a visit to the new Jewish Home for the Aged at Brown's place.

The first interview Rubinoff has ever given on the air was a Sun-Telegraph-WCAE feature during a news broadcast. The Globe-Trotter, Louis L. Kaufman, conducted the interview.

Columbia Co-eds To Earn Degrees As Milkmaids

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Columbia University now is going to offer co-educational courses in "milking the cows and looking after the poultry."

Prof. Thomas Alexander, head of the "New College," said today a 1,000-acre farm had been leased near Waynesville, N. C., and courses would begin there on June 1 when 60 young men and women take up residence.

The course, he said, is in line with the announced intention of the Teachers' College of the university of developing "an entirely new type of school teachers."

The new California avenue extension—from Fulton street bridge to Columbus avenue and Sedgwick street—will be opened to general traffic at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, it was announced today by Director of public Works Edward G. Lang.

3 WOMEN HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Three women were injured, one seriously, in an automobile collision at Forbes street and Beechwood boulevard.

The injured were Mrs. Tillie Kleman, 23, of 514 Collins avenue, Mrs. Zella Weisner, 29, of Elmira, N. Y. and Miss Christine Steidel, 21, of the Dixmont Hospital. Mrs. Kleman was detained at Columbia Hospital.

The drivers of the two machines, Howard W. Goodman, of Elmira, and Anthony Aiello, 37, of 251 Robinson street, were arrested on reckless driving charges. Mrs. Kleman and Mrs. Weisner were passengers in the Goodman machine.

Homewood Thieves Ignore Cheap Gems

The robbers who dropped through the skylight of William Brosman's jewelry store, 716 North Homewood avenue, early today, were particular about their loot. They took not only 100 birthstone rings but 42 of the best watches, ignoring the cheaper brands. The haul was valued at $2,500.

STABBED IN ROW OVER WOMAN

Frank Calvert, 41, of 306 Sandusky street, was near death in Allegheny General Hospital today from stab wounds in the back, suffered in a fight at 113 North East Diamond street.

Conrad Williams, 47, of the Diamond street address, was arrested by North Side police, who accused him of cutting Calvert with a butcher knife. Mrs. Dorothy Brent, of the same address, also was arrested. Both were charged with being suspicious persons.

Police said Calvert remonstrated with Williams over attentions paid to Mrs. Brent, and also accused Williams of insulting Calvert's sister, Mrs. Lillian Rentz, of 306 Sandusky street. The fight followed.

DEMOCRAT GAIN SHOWN ON ROLL

A big increase in the enrollment of voters in boroughs and townships and the heaviest Democratic registration of any local election were indicated today as register assessors began turning in their books to the Elections Bureau.

The Elections Bureau turned over some books to the county investigation department to determine whether there have been cases of "padding" or other illegal registration.

Among the first to be investigated were the First District, First Ward, McKees Rocks, and the Second District, Second Ward, Homestead.

The McKees Rocks district register assessor is William Ramsey, 706 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks. Leo A. Riordan, head county investigator, said he registered 311 persons this year, only five of whom were Democrats. There were 1,347 names on the books in 1931 and 484 in 1932. Investigations followed in the previous years.

The Second District, Second Ward, Homestead, registered 722 Republicans and no Democrats.

Powder... cleans teeth as nothing else can

Doubly Efficient At Only Half The Cost

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, free from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

STATE CAN END SWEATSHOPS MARTIN SAYS

children be undernourished owing to the depression that unscrupulous employers can repeat in this century what was common 100 years ago. Too many Christians are apathetic to civic duties and tacitly favor sweatshop conditions. When a social leader like Mrs. Pinchot can challenge the ostracism of society and take her place among the picture, when a civic leader like Judge Musmanno can expose these conditions, when the editors of our local papers speak boldly of these facts, it is time for the average man to have his say."

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, said:

"Sweatshops and child labor must be eliminated absolutely. Children should be in school, thus releasing jobs for the adult unemployed. And it is the business of the state to make it financially possible for every child within her borders to receive an education. There should be no excuses for American youth being kept out of school.

"A minimum wage law must be enacted. This should be a federal law as well as a state law, as indeed most economic laws should be.

"Shorter hours for labor in this state, especially for the women, must be provided. The present 54-hour limit is cruel and unreasonable.

"A special session of the Legislature should be called by the Governor to enact these emergency laws, for moral reasons as well as economic reasons.

"Corrupt politicians must be dethroned at the next election. This is the sovereignty the voters must accept and use. Vote for clean men and organize.

"Enforcement officers must enforce the law, wipe out notorious defamers of character, gambling houses, racketeers, etc.

"The people must bestir themselves. We must come out of our hiding places and be found on the front line of battle. Indifference, inactivity and dumbness has about destroyed our power for good in the world. We must rally all lovers of God and nation, and for once make our city and state a place 'of the people, for the people and by the people.'"

PASTORS URGE SOCIAL LAWS

Declaring "present day conditions demonstrate the need for social legislation," representative ministers and laymen have asked Gov. Pinchot to include such measures in his call for the proposed special session of the General Assembly.

The Rev. Herbert B. Hudnut, pastor of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, chairman of the Joint Committee on the Social Crisis, and 18 others signed the letter.

They ask the Governor to make his call "broad enough so that any and all measures pertaining to social improvement and reconstruction may be submitted for action."

Labor unions, civic groups and churches will be asked to take similar action.

This State Recent Child Labor Map 'Sore Spot'

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.) Labor Department officials lay a great deal of Pennsylvania's sweatshop trouble at the door of better child labor law in New York. A Child Bureau official said today:

"While Pennsylvania has been doing nothing, New York has tightened its child labor laws to such an extent that the sweatshops had to move into nearby Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

"Of course, the depression and demand for low prices have increased the trouble."

Pennsylvania's child labor laws were characterized at the department as neither the "best" nor the "worst" in the country.

The industrial South has the "worst," officials said. Children are worked long hours day and night at the looms of the great textile mills there, they said, protected by no law at all or poorly enforced laws.

PENNSYLVANIA LAX

Pennsylvania children are allowed to go to work at 14 if they have gone through the sixth grade at public school, provided they go to extension school until they are 16.

They are allowed to work 51 hours a week. Under New York's new laws, only 44 hours a week is permitted. Ohio allows only 40.

No night work is permitted in Pennsylvania.

Sixteen states have enacted minimum wage laws which tended, the officials said, to break up the child sweatshop. A minimum wage bill failed in the past session of the Legislature.

CHILD LABOR DROPS

Violation of what laws the state did have, they said, have been flagrant since the influx of clothing factories from New York. Most of the sweatshop employers took work on a contract basis from New York firms, used portable machinery, and could move from small town to small town before state inspectors could catch up with them.

Despite conditions in certain sections and failure of considerable legislation in the past winter's Legislature, child labor is on the decline, the department's figures showed. Officials lay the decline uargely to increased use of complicated machinery, requiring adult attention.

The percentage of children between 10 and 15 at work dropped from 8.5 in 1920, to 4.7 in 1930. The drop for children 14 to 15 was from 17.5 to 9.2 per cent.

PASTOR ASSAILS VICE, POLITICS

Declaring immorality on the North Side flourishes because "disreputable people are made political chiefs," the Rev. Dr. R. E. Snodgrass, of the First Christian Church, North Side, yesterday called upon the people of Pittsburgh to rid the North Side of "vice and gambling houses."

Dr. Snodgrass demanded that "puppet politicians be driven out of office," adding:

"Disorderly houses and gambling dens are running openly right in the vicinity of this and other North Side churches. The truth is that commercialized vice of all sorts has been used too long as a prop for corrupt politics."

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—W. S. Leake, "key man" in the impeachment trial of Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of the Northern District of California, was brought into the Capitol today on a stretcher, under subpena as a witness.

Leake's presence was demanded by House managers, despite his illness with a heart disease. Leake was charged with having been a "go-between" for the Federal judge in arranging receiverships.

Louderback was cited for impeachment by the House on the charge of having conspired with Leake and others to maintain a "receivership racket" in his Northern California jurisdiction.

2,500 VETERANS IN JOB ARMY

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—More than 2,500 members of the bonus army have signed up with the government's reforestation corps.

Today, the last day of the war veteran's stay at Fort Hunt, found only about 500 not enrolled.

These men were to be transported from Fort Hunt, 10 miles down the Potomac in Virginia, to Washington, then to make their way home the best they can.

Some of the leaders of the group which refused jobs in the forests at $1 a day and their keep, said they would seek an audience at the White House during the day to request transportation all the way home.

McCREERY'S

WOOD ST. AT SIXTH AVE. ATLANTIC 4600

What Are You Going To Do About It?

New York—$100,000,000 a year.

The Chicago figures are especially indicative. The estimate there was made after careful study by Gordon Hostetter, secretary of the Employers' Association, who found 168 RACKETS in Chicago at one time—most of them, and the worst of them, labor rackets preying on the toilers and their families.

The figures—168 rackets and $165,000,000—show that rackets in Chicago are able to extort an average of ONE MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR EACH from the public.

Mr. Hostetter decided after his inquiry that four "elements" make up the racketeering population: (1) BUSINESSMENS; (2) business associations; (3) so called labor leaders; and (4) plain criminals and their political allies.

As just to substantiate what Mr. Hostetter found, the state's attorney at Chicago reported that one association of thirty members pays $250,000 a year to a certain gangster and his "mob."

The American public is enabled to vision the real character of racketeering, and its appalling growth, in all its ramifications.

Chicago—if its own citizens so ordain—is on the way to a CURE. Will it be so ordained?

And what about other cities—which perhaps have simply not exposed their racketeering elements? What are THEIR citizens going to do about it?

In YOUR community, what are you going to do about it?

Artificial Double Bills. Better to Schedule 'Em. Cards Loom as Threat. Gaelic Type of Football. Outdoor Boxing Opens. Irish Classroom Stars.

GATE EMPHASIS MAY HURT BASEBALL

EVERYBODY WANTS TO see the baseball fan get as much as possible for his money. From that angle, more power to the system that provides occasional double-headers and gives the patron an extra treat in the shape of two games for one price of admission. But there is a possibility that the present custom of manufacturing bargain bills for no reason except to help the boxoffice may in time hurt the sport instead of helping it.

William L. Veeck

Saturday's dual bill here was legitimate and different. It spared the Braves an extra trip here for a single game on May 29 and saved the Bucs from having to play five games in a span of three days. But elsewhere on the big circuits the clubs are deliberately calling off games without reason, or moving others forward, for the sold purpose of creating bargains. All of the three double-headers in the National League yesterday were manufactured by moving up games from later series. On the preceding Sunday there were six double bills in the two leagues. President W. L. Veeck, of the Cubs, used to frown on the practice, but last week the Bruins and Giants remained idle one day so that they could play two games the next. Yesterday the Cubs and Dodgers went so far to transfer a Brooklyn game to Chicago to make a twin card. A Chicago game will be switched to Brooklyn in exchange.

THESE ARE ONLY examples. Professional baseball has retained its popularity through the years because the public considered it first of all a sport. This artificial double-header system puts the boxoffice out in front, when it should be kept secondary. It puts the game in a different light and may change the views of the fans in a way that eventually may cause the sport to lose its grip.

If so many double-headers are necessary, why not schedule them regularly before the season opens? It would look better than phony postponements or moving games up from weeks ahead for the very evident purpose of swelling the receipts. The present system amounts to a frank confession that everything else in baseball is subservient to the gate, and it's not a healthy impression to give the public.

EVEN WITH TWO out of three games lost to the Braves, the Pirates won five out of eight last week and gained ground to the extent that today they are three full games in front, whereas one week ago they were in a tie for first place.

But whatever help the slipping of the Giants might give the Pittsburgh pennant cause is offset by the looming of another threat, the Cardinals. The Giants didn't figure to be contenders. The Cards do, now that the shortstop hole has been plugged. Look out for those Redbirds. They'll have a pitching edge on every rival when the going gets tough, and four straight from the Giants indicates they're just getting started.

IT'S A STRANGE fact that in practically every discussion of the Yankees' slugging power, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig get nearly all the attention while another who comes close to being as dangerous as either of these renowned swatters is overlooked. But ask the average American League pitcher and he'll tell you that Tony Lazzeri is just as much a nightmare as Ruth or Gehrig. Tony is hitting them from town to town again this spring. He pulled a great comeback last year after some of the experts had pictured him as being on the way out or in line for a trade, and this year he is starting out again right where he left off in 1932. During the last two weeks Lazzeri has been on a home-run rampage that saved a number of games for the world champions.

Tony Lazzeri

AND YOU CAN take it from Bill Slocum and other observers that Tony's four-base wallops have been something to look at. He put two powerful socks into the right-field bleachers at the Yankee Stadium, which is quite a trick for a right-hand hitter.

In Detroit, Lazzeri lifted one so high that it cleared the new screen atop the left-field wall. In Cleveland he hit into the distant left-field stand at the Municipal Stadium, and in St. Louis he parked one high in the left-field bleachers with the bases filled. Earlier in the campaign he walloped one for a round trip in Washington, where there are no easy homers. It looks like another big year for Tony.

GAELIC FOOTBALL, IN which a team from County Kerry is now appearing in this country, resembles a combination of rugby, soccer and handball. There are 15 men on a team, and an athlete has to be well conditioned to weather the 30-minute halves. It is an exceptionally speedy and rough game, and a participant considers it a reflection on himself if he has to be relieved.

They don't carry the ball. A player making a catch or receiving a pass must kick or pass after taking three steps with the privilege of a hop and three steps more. On a pass he cannot throw the ball. He must punch it off his hand. There is no tackling, but plenty of body contact. In taking out an opposing athlete a Gaelic football player runs him off the ball. The idea is to net the ball or put it between uprights above the net. The former is good for three points, the latter for one.

BILL LANDERS, captain and full forward of the County Kerry team, was asked by George Currie what position a full forward in the Gaelic game would play on an American college eleven. "None," he replied. "We're allowed to catch the ball, take three steps, a hop, then three steps more. That's what makes our game different from soccer. But he can't put hands on a man, so you see it isn't much like American college football. Injuries are few, and serious ones extremely rare. Once in a great while a man gets kicked in the liver. But that's always accidental. The boys learn Gaelic football at school, everywhere. It's Ireland's national game. I began in 1917 at Trallee. Some of the boys learned in the detention camps during the Trouble, 1922 to 1924. They had nothing else to do, so they played football."

THE OUTDOOR BOXING season in the Pittsburgh district will get under way tonight, when Promoter John L. Hernon hoists the curtain for another of his popular summer campaigns at Hickey Park, in Millvale. He has a real natural to attract the fans to the opening show, with Ted Yarosz meeting Tommy Freeman. There has been much speculation as to whether or not all four clubs that plan to operate in the district will be able to keep going for the full season.

It will be a case of the survival of the fittest, and the fans will be the gainers, as in the competition for patronage the various promoters will be striving to outdo one another in putting on attractive cards. Promoter Hernon, an able matchmaker and fair-dealing showman, is setting a stiff pace for the others, with Tony Herrera-Wes Ramey and Jackie Wilson-Tommy Paul matches in prospect to follow tonight's big opener at the next two Monday shows.

NOTWITHSTANDING THE EXCEPTIONAL strength of the football teams that Notre Dame turns out from year to year, it is evident the players do not neglect their studies for their work on the gridiron. Very properly, the classroom comes first, and the standards of the pigskin performers at the South Bend university are as high scholastically as they are on the barred field.

Paul Host

An outstanding example showing that Hunk Anderson's grid stars are fine students as well as athletes is the fact that the honor man in this year's graduating class of 565 is a football player and letter man. He is Michael F. Leding, a tackle on the varsity squad, who won his monogram last season.

LEDING TOOK THE scholastic honors with a four-year average of 96.4. He is a resident of South Bend and a student in the school of electrical engineering, and aside from his football playing he has been a leader in other campus activities. The high scholastic standards of Notre Dame football players in general is attested by the fact that the combined four-year average of 12 men in the 1933 graduating class who won varsity grid monograms is 86.8. The football players graduating in addition to Leding are Capt. Paul Host and Ed Kosky, ends; Joe Kurth, all-America tackle; Jim Harris, of Bellaire, O.; Bill Pierce and Norman Greeney, guards; Ben Alexander, center; Charles Jaskwhich and Laurie Vejar, quarterbacks; Mike Koken, of Youngstown, O., left halfback, and Joe Sheeketski, of Shadyside, O., right halfback.

Can Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland and Erie, former welterweight champion of the world, who looked so good in three bouts against Tiger Joe Randall, Lee Sala and Buck McTiernan here last summer, stop the winning ways of Ted Yarosz, Monaca star?

For more than a year the local promoters and fans have been seeking the answer to this question. Tonight, as the curtain goes up on the outdoor boxing season in Pittsburgh, at Hickey Park, in Millvale, the reply should be forthcoming, for Freeman and Yarosz are to meet at last in the 10-round main bout.

TOMMY IN CONDITION

Freeman, with his years of experience and natural ruggedness, plus excellent condition at this time, looms as one of the toughest hurdles Yarosz has been asked to take in his colorful career, which has produced a single reverse, and that a disputed one at the fists of Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis. Tommy is a good infighter, a fair puncher and a man who is not easily hurt with a punch. Yarosz never was better than in his most recent start, when he battered Andy DiVodi, of New York, into submission in a few rounds in the Motor Square Garden ring.

Yarosz is looking ahead to fights with Jimmy McLarnin, Young Corbett III, Lou Brouillard and other topnotchers. He cannot afford to lose to Freeman and hope to keep his high position in the field of contenders.

GRIER BOXES CHIODO

An eight-round semi-final between Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, and Rosy Grier, of Akron, and two six-rounders complete tonight's program. Harry Weekley, of Alliance, O., meets Heebie Thomas, of the East End, in a return bout, and Jackie Mates, also of Ohio, is in with Pete Fleming, of Hot Springs, stablemate of Freeman. The show gets under way at 8:45.

Believe It Or Not — By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE VILLAGE OF THE SNOW DWELLERS—Tye, Wash., located at the west end of the Great Northern Railway tunnel through the Cascade Mountains, is of unique construction. It is situated in a deep valley hemmed in by steep mountains on three sides. In severe winters, the entire village often is covered by snow for weeks at a time. Snowsheds then connect all buildings and life goes on as usual under the snow. With the melting of the snow the town emerges like a bud of the spring.

CUBA'S QUIET PUZZLES RIP

(Robert Ripley, cartoonist who won fame with his "Believe It or Not" drawings, is touring Latin-America by airplane in search of new material. What he sees and hears and learns he is cabling daily to the United States.)

By ROBERT RIPLEY

HAVANA, Cuba, May 22.—Saturday was the twentieth of May, the Cuban "Fourth of July." It was a national holiday, but there was no celebration.

Everything was quiet, maybe too quiet because they tell me that something like hell is going to break loose any minute. However, as that seems to be the normal political condition of all Latin countries, I am not worried.

Chile has had 10 different presidents in the last 17 months. They had four in four days, which almost equals the Mexican record of four presidents in one day. I am quoting from memory.

Believe it or not, the only ones I am worrying about are the sellers of lottery tickets and the two soldiers who guard President Machado's monument on the Malecon just outside my window in the National Hotel.

I worry about the lottery ticket sellers because I am sure there are more sellers than buyers—I should say twice as many sellers as buyers.

As for Machado, he seems to be able to take care of himself, but I know you folks would be more interested in the one-eyed child prodigy of Camaguey. So was I until I learned that she was dead.

So I will tell you about Sloppy Joe's. Sloppy Joe's, as every American tourist knows, is not sloppy. Senor Jose Abeal, Joe's true name, was smart enough to focus a reflection on himself 15 years ago. Somebody said that his bar was sloppy.

In Havana, where I always like to be—although I do miss watching the flying fish of the Caribbean.

It seems that flying fish are particularly annoyed at airplanes, and the Pan-American airship that brought me up from Rio left a wake of flying fish behind, almost all the way.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A dozen American Beauties to the W. P. I. A. L. for its show of good sense in prohibiting spring games for the high school football teams henceforth . . . This department's campaign against such foolishness is getting results, and we congratulate the W. P. I. A. L. for being the first body to put its foot down officially on the silly practice . . . The next move will be to eliminate spring football practice entirely, at least in the high schools.

And did you see what our Mr. Khayyam did in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Jamaica last Saturday? . . . In case you didn't notice, he came in first, some seven lengths ahead of the famous Head Play, runner-up in the Derby and winner of the Preakness . . . Mr. Khayyam was our pick to win the Derby off his great showing in the Chesapeake Stakes a week before, but he decided to do his running just two weeks too late to do us any good . . . But better late than never, as they say in the classics.

Jimmy McLarnin, who gets a crack at Young Corbett's world welterweight title in Los Angeles one week from tonight, is in the position of the girl who has been often a bridesmaid but never a bride . . . He has fought no less than 10 opponents who have held world titles, but has not been able to snare a crown, although he has made much more money than many of the champions . . . It is said he has tucked away a fortune of a quarter of a million dollars . . . The men who either were champions when he fought them or before or afterward were Pancho Villa, Fidel LaBarba, Bud Taylor, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Sammy Mandell, Al Singer, Benny Leonard, Lou Brouillard, Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson . . . He lost only to Mandell, whom he defeated later in a return bout, and to Taylor and to Brouillard . . . He scored knockouts over Leonard, Fields, Singer and Kaplan.

Corbett is not supposed to be much of a puncher, yet he has turned in 48 kayos in 141 fights, a high average of 34 per cent . . . McLarnin, who is supposed to be a deadly puncher, has stopped only 18 opponents in 71 bouts, for an average of 25 per cent . . . The difference lies in the fact that McLarnin has stopped outstanding fighters and is at his best when the prize is highest. — HARRY KECK.

FRAME PASSES SPEED TRIAL

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22.—(AP.)—Driving the same car in which he rode to a record-breaking victory here a year ago, Fred Frame, Los Angeles, Cal., won a front row starting position in the 500-mile automobile race may 30 by averaging 117.864 miles per hour.

The veteran pilot, who averaged 104.144 miles per hour in winning the classic in 1932, just did edge out Lou Moore, also of Los Angeles, yesterday for the third position in the first row. Moore averaged 117.843. Frame's car is a front-driver.

Auto Race Results

At Chicago—Two-mile race won by Wild Bill Cummings in 1:40½; Howdy Wilcox second. Three-mile race won by Wilcox in 2:38, and five-mile race won by Wilcox in 4:03 2-5. Cummings second in each race.

At Greenville, O.—Bill Chittum, Columbus, won 22-mile race, with Larry Beckett, Dayton, O., second; Vernon McComb, Chicago, second, and Ken Dunlap, Akron, O., third.

At Trenton, N. J.—Billy Winn won 10-mile race in 10:36, with Lloyd Brosbart, Dunellen, N. J., second, and Don Moore, Richmond, Va., third.

At Woodbridge N. J.—Bob Sall, Paterson, N. J., won 25-mile race in 27:34 1-5, with Malcolm Fox, Westville, N. J., second, and Bob Hahn, Kansas City, third.

Hoegel's Pigeon Wins 100-Mile Race

W. F. Hoegel's No. a blue check hen, winging the 100 miles from Coshocton, O., in 2:35:04, won decisively in the Pittsbubrgh Racing Pigeon Concourse's first regular race of the season.

L. Johnson's My Baby was second and William Schmoutz's Lady Gooseneck third.

SE ALS OFFER VARIED BILL

Baseball, volleyball and mushball.

All on the same radio program.

This will be the offering of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday evening, when they will be on the air for a half hour.

Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert of the Sun-Telegraph, and Henry W. Stevenson and Umpire Ernie Quigley, of the National League, will provide the baseball chatter.

Harry A. Batchelor, physical education teacher in the Pittsburgh Public Schools and coach of volleyball at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., known as the father of volleyball in Pittsburgh, will speak on his subject, and mushball will come in for its innings with a capable speaker on the subject.

Savoldi Wrestles Strangler Again

Jachelski Keeps Walking Title

BALTIMORE, May 22.—(AP.)—Philip Jachelski, of the Stonewall Democratic Club, of Baltimore, yesterday successfully defended his title in the 50,000-meter national championship walk here.

His time was 5 hours 11 minutes and 30 seconds, three and one-half minutes faster than that of Pat Denges, also of the Baltimore Democratic organization.

W. Va. to Sponsor Coaching School

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 22.—The athletic department of West Virginia University will sponsor a two-week coaching school this summer, Director Harry A. Stansbury announced today.

Between the dates of August 28 and September 9 instructions will be given in football, baseball, basketball, track, wrestling, boxing and possibly tennis and golf.

LEAGUE CHIEF TO PICK TEAM FOR FAIR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The backwash of a long depression is apt to be felt all summer throughout the realm of professional baseball, yet to John A. Heydler, long-time president of the National League, the outlook for the sport is very promising. Heydler is in Pittsburgh today on routine matters concerning the league. He attended this afternoon's clash of the Pirates and Dodgers and will depart for New York tonight.

The league's chief executive spent yesterday in Cincinnati. The weather was rainy through the morning and he figured there would be no sport at Redland Field. The Cincinnati management, however, held up the start of a doubleheader and 15,000 fans came out to see the Redland and Phils, neither of which is supposed to be a pennant contender. Touching on the baseball situation in general, Heydler said:

BUC ATTENDANCE IMPROVES

"There is nothing to be gained through whining about the weather. All over the circuit the clubs have played many games under wet condition and, of course, there has been a falling off in attendance, but I really believe the people of the country are worked up over the two races and that they will turn out to the ball parks as soon as a warm spell arrives. Inasmuch as the weather is beyond human control, I think we should not cry over it. The general depression is lifting and baseball will feel many benefits in due time."

Pirate President William E. Benswanger, in whose office, Heydler sat as he discussed the diamond sport, echoed the sentiments of the league president, Benswanger stated.

"I believe things will come out O. K. in the end. I can say that our home attendance is ahead of last season. Of course that was to be expected in view of the fact that the Pirates have been in first place through most of the spring, but I think the tone in every line is better."

BACKS ALL-STAR GAME

Heydler is working on the plan to stage an All-Star game at the world's fair in Chicago on July 6. The idea is to pick approximately 15 outstanding performers from the National and American Leagues to do combat either at the White Sox park or Wrigley Field for the edification of the world's fair throngs.

At least one Pirate will be included on the National League club, and there may be two or three. The Buccaneer contest with the Dodgers scheduled for that date will be moved ahead or behind to dovetail into the arrangement. Other clubs will make similar provisions to permit their stars to travel to Chicago on the date.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who opened a series with the Corsairs today, presented a changed lineup, Jimmy Jordan replacing Glenn Wright at short and Hack Wilson taking Danny Taylor's place in centerfield.

TONY TO BURY NEW TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, May 22.—(AP.)—The junior-welterweight title, which Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri regained in a 10-round decision yesterday from the Mexican, Battling Shaw, may be abolished if Canzoneri's manager has his wish.

Sammy Goldman, business manager, said he was glad the title had come back to Canzoneri, because "I want to have it abolished. It never was of any use to anyone—just a bit of ballyhoo."

Canzoneri, a native of New Orleans, was cheered by approximately 6,000 spectators as he outpointed the Mexican. Twice his hard rights floored Shaw, once in the seventh and again in the eighth round.

Canzoneri's superior speed and hitting ability, combined with his aggressive attack, kept the slower Shaw on the defensive. Referee Moran gave Shaw two rounds and an even break in another. One of the judges awarded four rounds to Shaw, and the other gave him two rounds and one even.

Shaw weighed 136½ and Canzoneri 133.

Braves Defeat Huntington, 5-0

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., May 22.—(AP.)—The National League Boston Braves rapped out a 5-to-0 victory over the Huntington Middle Atlantic League club in an exhibition game here yesterday.

The Huntington Boosters collected five hits off Ed Fallenstein, while the Braves snared eight off Bratton and Kuiken. Mowry hit a home run in the third with the bases empty. The score by innings:

CARDINALS SET FAST PACE IN NATIONAL

LEO DUROCHER AND MARTIN SPARK PLUGS

Associated Press.

The St. Louis Cardinals appear either to have found some easy victims in the Eastern clubs of the National League or they must be regarded as the up and coming club of the circuit.

It may be the acquisition of Leo Durocher to plug a weak spot in their inner defense and the start of Pepper Martin's great hitting streak was just what the Cards needed to send them off on the victorious path. The fact remains that since they began playing the Eastern teams about three weeks ago they have won 12 games, lost six and have risen from seventh place in the standing to third.

BEAT GIANTS TWICE

A double triumph over the New York Giants yesterday, 2 to 1 and 8 to 4, left them just a half game behind the second-place New Yorkers and 3½ behind the pace setting Pittsburgh Pirates, Pittsburgh, coupled with Boston, had an off day.

Bill Hallahan allowed only two hits, both by Johnny Vergez, in yesterday's opening duel with Carl Hubbell and Martin scored one run and drove in the other. The Cards put the second game away early, pounding Fred Fitzsimmons for a 4-1 lead in two innings.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, recent holders of third, dropped to fifth place by the sudden comeback of the Chicago Cubs, who beat them twice, 7-6 and 6-3, to run their string to four straight victories. The opener went 10 innings before Frank O'Doul, who had hit two home runs, failed to hold Taylor Douthit's fly after getting his hands on it and the resulting two-bagger brought in the winning run.

The Cubs concentrated their attack on Walter Beck in the sixth and seventh innings of the second game to score all their runs.

REDS MOVE UP

Cincinnati's Reds gained the fourth spot by splitting a bargain bill with the Phillies. They bunched five hits off Snipe Hansen in the fifth to win 4-2 after bowing to Jim Elliott's six-hit hurling as the Phils took the opener, 3-1.

The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns, leaders of the current western invasion in the American League, staged simultaneous advances in the standing on the strength of expert pitching and some heavy hitting to go with it.

Chicago moved to third place, a few points ahead of the Cleveland Indians, who were idle at Philadelphia, when Walter Miller, veteran flinger, made his first start of the season and set the Washington Senators down with two singles to win, 6-0. Al Simmons crashed out two doubles that drove in four Chicago runs.

YANKEES BEATEN

Bumps Hadley's four-hit flinging sent the Browns into sixth place as they made it two straight over the New York Yankees, 8 to 4. Hadley issued eight passes but avoided trouble until Earl Combs crashed a homer with two aboard in the seventh and by that time the Browns had won the game with a 15-hit attack.

The Boston Red Sox, scrappy tail-enders of the circuit, aided the Browns' advance when a former St. Louis flinger, Lloyd Brown, gave them their second straight triumph over Detroit, 2 to 0. Brown pitched six-hit ball and pulled himself out of trouble by brilliant fielding.

Goalie Stars as Curry Evens West Penn Open Series With McKnights Soccer Team

CURRY TIES UP SOCCER SERIES

A third game to determine the Western Pennsylvania amateur soccer championship will be necessary. Yesterday at Silent Brook Field, South Park, the Curry eleven defeated the Castle Shannon McKnights, 2 to 0, in the second contest of the titular series.

The McKnights previously had won the first game, played a week ago last Saturday, 3 to 0.

In yesterday's game Curry played a typical fast game to beat the juniors. Only for a magnificent exhibition of goalkeeping on the part of Sedick, Curry would have had a commanding lead at the half-time interval.

Sedick seemed to sense the direction of all shots to the McKnight goal, and the spectators were thrilled by many of his saves.

In the second half, however, Buff Donelli, who had been playing brilliant soccer, flashed the ball into the corner of the net, for that was one shot that Sedick did not see. The second and final goal came from the foot of Molly, who shot from a crowd of players.

The third game will be played next Saturday afternoon, probably at the Homestead Athletic Field. The lineup:

Curry—2.		McKnight—0.
Stanko	G	Sedick
Cyle	R B	Kuten
Comerolli	L B	Bobbin

Powell	C H	Linaio
Pusko	L H	Matthews

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year

Here are a few very specific questions about the grip, which may serve to clear up some of the uncertainties in the mind of the average golfer. They are propounded by Hal Westmore, of Seattle. He asks specifically about my grip, so, in answering, I will have particular reference to my own method. It will be remembered that some latitude is allowable so long as the grip conforms in general principles.

Bobby Jones

1—"Every change I make in experimenting with my grip brings a new set of callouses. Where do you get callouses and blisters? I believe this will assist me in obtaining the correct grip."

UNCALLOUSED RIGHT HAND

It seems to me that this is important only as an indication of the greatest pressure exerted by the hands. The condition of my hands is further evidence of the dominant use of the left, for I have no sign of a callous on my right hand. On the left, the best developed callous appears on the pad at the base of the little finger, and there are smaller ones on the pad below the middle finger, and on the inside of the middle joint of the little finger. I have said that the firmest part of my grip is in the smaller fingers of my left hand and that the right hand maintains throughout as light a grip as possible. I rely strongly upon my left hand grip to control the club.

2—"Does each of your fingers (except the overlapping little finger) contact the club handle for the entire length of each finger? Is the soft pad below the bases of the fingers shoved away by the club handle so that the extreme bases are contracted, or does the handle rest on the pad and push it against the bases; answer for each hand, please."

HELD IN FINGERS

This may seem to be carrying the thing to an extreme, but for those who care to be this specific here is as minute a description as I am able to give:

It is important that the club be held mainly in the fingers, for in no other way can it be gripped positively to prevent its turning in the hands without stiffening or tightening the wrist joints.

As I grip a club, the shaft lies in the crook of the forefinger of my right hand, across the middle joint of that finger. Continuing up, the pads at the bases of the next two fingers are pressed against the side of the shaft, and the club is held by the entire length of all three fingers. The shaft of the club does not touch the palm of my right hand at all.

The little finger of my right hand overlaps the forefinger of my left, so that only three fingers and the thumb of the right hand touch the shaft. Entering the left hand, again the club-handle lies across the middle joint of the forefinger, and across the pads below the other fingers, but the upper part of the shaft touches the palm and emerges about the middle of the hand.

The grip of the left hand is plainly the more capable, while that of the right is the more sensitive. Although, for greater security, the club is allowed to contact the palm of the left hand, still the control in both hands is in the fingers.

One other thing may be of help. The back of the left hand must be to some degree on top of the shaft, and the right hand should be in an approximately neutral position, neither over nor under. An idea of the location of my hands can be had from this: As I place the club behind the ball and look down upon my hands, I am able to see three knuckles of my left hand, and am looking straight down the V formed by the thumb and index fingers of my right.

I repeat that the grip can differ from this in some particulars and remain just as correct. The important points are finer control and the position of the hands approximately as I have described.

DISTRICT GOLF CARD HEAVY

By TOM BIRKS

The first heavy competitive golf card of the season is scheduled for today on district links. At the Hannastown Country Club the professionals, paired with amateur stars of the home club, are clashing in the first pro-amateur tourney of the season.

At the Field Club, Section I of the Western Pennsylvania Women's Team League swing into action after numerous delays, and at St. Clair, Section II teams were competing.

The Duquesne University and West Virginia golf teams are playing at the Uniontown Country Club this afternoon. The first match played at Stanton Heights finished in a tie, each club recording three points.

Jack Stewart, Thornburg Town and Country Club pro, scored his second hole-in-one yesterday when he sank his tee shot on the 142-yard No. 6 hole.

E. A. Damrau led the field in the first division in the match play against par play at Edgewood yesterday, finishing all even. In the second division, L. A. Miller won, 3 up.

H. H. Fisher carried off the honors in the medal play under full handicap at Alcoma, with an 81-15-66. J. E. Hart led in the second division with 90-22-68.

At Stanton Heights, a best ball match play against par was on the program, with J. L. Pennock and Dick Brown finishing 5 up to win.

Eight sections of the roof also will be raised to permit the fans to sit under the stars on clear nights and smoke while watching the fights.

A strong preliminary card has been arranged for the Arena. Johnny Hinds, local Negro bantamweight, formerly of New York, who has beaten Mose Butch and Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, in feature 10-rounders in the same ring, will box Andy Allen, Hill Negro, in the six-round opener. Fritzie Zivic will meet Jack McFarland, of Canton, O., in the second bout, and Johnny Durso will engage Young Kid McCoy, of Toledo, in the third number.

The North Braddock Bowl swings into action Wednesday night of next week with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe and Tracey Cox in its main bout.

WALTER LOEFFLER

Walter Loeffler, former professional at the South Hills Country Club, was appointed professional at North Park county golf links by the Allegheny County Commissioners today. He succeeds Jimmy McFarland, who held the job for two years.

Loeffler, member of a famous golfing family, started his golf career at the Oakmont Country Club as greenskeeper in 1917 when his brother, Emil, joined the Army.

Upon Emil's return, Walter went to Montour Heights as professional and greenskeeper for a season. In 1920, the South Hills Country Club was built, and Loeffler was appointed professional. He served in this position until a few weeks ago.

George Underwood, former professional at the Alcoma Country Club, likely will go to North Park as an assistant to Loeffler.

TENNIS LEAGUE OPENER NEAR

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Competitive activity in the broad bailiwick of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association gets under way in very earnest this week as several scores of eager racqueters practice diligently for start of the bi-divisional Inter-Club League race next Saturday. Meanwhile college and scholastic netmen approach conclusion of their brief campaigns and turn their faces toward the more enticing fields of club and tournament play.

Final makeup of the P. T. A. loop, it is hoped, will be determined today at joint conclave of the executive and sanction-schedule committees of the district court body. The Section I roster already is set with P. A. A., Edgewood, Westinghouse, Stanton Heights, University Club, Shannopin, Rockwood and College Avenue definitely aligned.

MAKEUP UNCERTAIN

Section II, however, is more nebulous. Rockwood Seconds, Westinghouse Seconds, College Avenue Seconds, Washington Heights, Belmont, U. S. Bureau of Mines, and Minnetonka are safely in the fold, but word is still awaited on the matter of secondary entries from P. A. A. and Stanton Heights, as well as upon the prospective application of Sewickley Y. M. C. A. for P. T. A. membership. Ultimate details, though, will be disposed of before the morrow.

With Carnegie Tech through for the year, Pitt and Duquesne hold the local intercollegiate fort alone this week. This afternoon the Dukes will attempt to eradicate a portion of the stigma of their whitewash reversal at the paws of the Panthers on the Stadium rectangle last Friday as the Blue and Gold contingent invades the Bluff.

SCHOOL CARD BEHIND

The Interscholastic Conference situation, complicated almost disastrously by bad weather, will be untangled by June 1, according to Capt. W. A. Palmer, Shady Side Academy sports head and secretary of the organization. The City Division appears to have suffered more than has the Suburban group, in which Shady Side, Mt. Lebanon and Wilkinsburg seem to have pretty well clinched laurels in Sections I, II and III, respectively.

Capt. Palmer states that the inter-sectional series for the conference title and the University of Pittsburgh Trophy has been moved back a week from its original dates. The semi-final round will thus be staged next Monday, May 29, with the final slated for the ensuing Thursday, June 1. The Pitt courts will undoubtedly be the scene of hostilities.

CUBA'S CALM PUZZLES RIP

Cuba. The George Washington of this delightful island—Jose Marti, "Los Cubanos te Bendicen," died at Dos Rios 38 years ago. Pictures of the "Apostle" were everywhere. One newspaper even printed a large size photograph of his skull and bones.

Saturday was a holiday of freedom, except there was little freedom and little celebration because Cuba is in the throes of "politics"—that curse of all Latin countries.

However, the mission of Believe It Or Not is not politics. I travel to find out all the strange and unusual things in the world.

I know you will be interested in the black man of Haiti who turned pink.

He is the strangest man I have seen during this trip through two continents. A witch doctor gave him a voodoo pill to cure asthma. The Negro swallowed it, fell unconscious and became blind for two months.

When he recovered his eyesight he discovered he had turned a bright pink. I have arranged for you to see him in the "Believe It Or Not" exhibition at the World Fair in Chicago next month.

Ladies' Day is carded at Greenlee Field today when the Columbus Blue Birds clash with the Pittsburgh Crawfords in the third game of the league series.

Yesterday the Blue Birds threw a bombshell into the Crawford ranks when the Greenlee aggregation was handed its first league setback of the season. Williams, the winning pitcher for Columbus, turned in a neat exhibition.

Now that it has been proved that the Crawfords can be stopped, it is quite possible that Bill Dismukes will turn up another pitcher capable of beating the locals. Tomorrow the Crawfords will meet the House of David nine at Cycler Park, McKeesport. The same teams ah Greenlee Field on Wednesday.

WARNEKE TO HURL

The Greenlee Field game on Wednesday will find Al Warneke, brother of the famous Lon Warneke, of the Chicago Cubs, twirling against the Crawfords.

Three games are carded in the City League this evening. At Olympia Park, the Brentwood Gillespies clash with Books; at Wilson avenue, Pleasant Valley, the battle of the North Side will be staged when the Cochrans clash with the North Siders.

The third game finds Dormont traveling to Whitaker. The South Hills entry, with two victories tucked away, will be hard to stop, especially as Elmer Knetzer is scheduled to pitch.

HOMEWOOD SIGNS OTEY

Bill Dalzell has signed Gus Otey for Homewood. Gus probably will twirl tomorrow night.

Homewood is looking for a couple of games abroad on Decoration Day. Call Bill Dalzell at Pennhurst 3696.

Yesterday, the Homestead Grays scored a double win over the Baltimore Black Sox, winning the first game, 3 to 1, and the second, 7 to 2. The games were played in Baltimore.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

OIL MAN FAVORS GOVERNMENT CONTROL

The special bill introduced in the House by Congressman Marland, of Oklahoma, and in the Senate by Senator Capper, of Kansas, providing for federal regulation of the oil industry was heartily indorsed by M. L. Benedum, a leading Pittsburgh oil operator, on his return to this city city from Washington. He declared:

"Conditions make it necessary that broad authority be given to the government to prevent the waste of our greatest natural resource, as represented by the oil reserves of the country, and to protect the correlative rights of the oil producing states by according to each state its equitable proportion of the total marked demand for oil."

Mr. Benedum stated that it has been demonstrated that state authority has not been adequate, because of conflicting interests among different oil producing states, to deal with the present extraordinary situation. He continued:

"It has been demonstrated that state authority has not been adequate, because of conflicting interests among the different oil producing states, to deal with the present extraordinary situation, and I am sure that 98 per cent of those in the oil business who believe in conservation will support the bill which has been prepared under the direction of Secretary of Interior Ickes. This measure will go hand in hand with the general industries bill in restoring normal conditions in the third largest industry in the country, and probably should be attached to the industries bill as an amendment."

PENNA. CRUDE RAISED 10c

OIL CITY, Pa., May 22.—(INS.)—For the first time since April, 1932, Buckeye and Pennsylvania grade crude oil advanced in price today, the Buckeye jumping 13 cents and the latter grades increasing 10 cents per barrel.

New prices quoted here were: Bradford-Allegheny, $1.37; Pennzoil, $1.27-1.32; southwest, $1.07; Eureka, $1.02; Buckeye, 90 cents.

Oil legislation at Washington, the approach of the major consuming season, increase in price of lubricating oils and improvement in the East Texas field were believed to be reasons for the advance.

Salmon Packers Advance Prices

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Pacific Coast salmon packers have marked up their second price advance in a little more than a month, advancing red salmon from $3 to $3.10 a case, and pink salmon 5 cents a dozen to $1.05.

Porcelain Enamel Steel Walls for This Station

METAL MARKET HOLDS FIRM

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Although most non-ferrous metals were quieter during the week, prices were generally maintained, encouraged partly by reports of increasing steel operations which were said to point to heavier use of metals.

Copper held unchanged at the 7 cents basis, reflecting a moderate inquiry for metal extending into third quarter delivery. There were no further developments in connection with rumors of impending summer mine curtailment but the possible influence of the industrial control bill on the copper industry was being studied by the trade.

Lead remained quiet, consumer purchases being limited to May and June deliveries in carload lots.

Slightly irregular quotations in zinc reflected the influence of moderate offerings at concessions from time to time, but the undertone was about steady in a quiet market.

COTTON CLOTH SALES UP

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Sales of cotton cloth last week continued in excess of mill production, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today. Mill activity is currently at the highest rate in several years. The report said:

"On some lines of goods sales were made through July and August. Heavy cotton goods for mechanical purposes sold more freely than for many weeks, although the volume of these goods was still much below normal.

Oil Trade Favors Plan For Federal Control

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE OIL INDUSTRY has failed to solve its big problem—overproduction. State governments have tried to solve it but have failed. Now the federal government intends to stop runaway oil wells and, strange to say, the oil men are enthusiastic about the idea.

This attitude on the part of the oil men is not strange in view of the troubles of recent years, but it is surprising in view of their attitude in the past. A few years ago the average oil executive turned pale at the suggestion of government regulation.

The development of new oil producing fields has been so much more rapid than growth in markets and exhaustion of old wells that chaotic marketing conditions have resulted.

Oil is not like other mineral resources. If Jones has a coal mine with acreage blocked out to last for 10 years he is not concerned about the fact that Smith may have an adjoining mine of equal acreage. But if Jones has an oil well and Smith has an adjoining well they are much concerned about each other. The two wells may be drawing from the same pool and if Jones doesn't get his oil out quickly, Smith will beat him to it and steal his oil.

This fundamental lies behind the troubles of the oil industry. Production has been pushed to a frenzied pace regardless of market demands. Producers have tried to make agreements to pro-rate the output of individual wells but they have been unable to keep these agreements or to satisfactorily allot production to individual fields. State attempts to police oil production have failed because of legal obstacles, political troubles and the fact that they did not have control of all the nation's oil fields as a unit.

Oil Czar Would Be Established

BILLS HAVE BEEN placed before the House and Senate which would establish complete federal control of the industry and which would set a dictator over production and market prices.

Representative Marland, of Oklahoma, formely president of Marland Oil, now Continental Oil, dislikes the word "dictator." He says there is to be no such thing, but it is difficult to place any other interpretation on his bill which would give the Secretary of the Interior power to fix maximum and minimum prices for oil and to allocate production quotas among the producing states. He might even prorate production between pools within a state where local powers should fail to take adequate action.

Imports of crude and refined products would be subject to regulation in line with market demand provided that, so long as the United States has the capacity to supply the nation's demand and its export trade, the secretary would be directed to limit imports to the daily average during the last six months of 1932.

* * *

Power to Tax Provides Club

A TAX OF 50 cents a barrel would be assessed upon all petroleum produced in excess of the market demand as established by the secretary. A tax of a quarter of a cent a barrel would be levied upon petroleum production to provide funds for enforcing the measure.

Further teeth would be provided in the form of fines of $1,000 to $5,000 and imprisonment of one to five years for individuals and fines of $5,000 to $10,000 for each day of violation by corporations.

IOWA ARTIST WINS HONOR

B. Jack Frymoyer, 21-year-old Davenport, Ia., boy, who is graduating next month from the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, will return to his home town with a record of unusual achievement in competition with Pittsburgh art talent.

Mr. Frymoyer

Last year he received honorable mention in the Automobile Show poster contest and was awarded a scholarship for "serious work" last June. As a result of his record, he was given a life's membership in Omega Alpha, national artists' fraternity, with all dues remitted. Pittsburgh's local chapter, Gamma, has honored no other man in this way, it is said.

FURTHER STEEL GAINS SEEN

CLEVELAND, May 22.—(AP.)—With steel operations at 40 per cent last week—the highest in two years—further gains for the coming week were predicted today by the magazine Steel.

At 35 to 40 per cent operations, the magazine said, a majority of steel interests now are breaking even.

"With government control of industry almost certain to result in higher wages and prices—its objectives—the prospects for a strong market this summer become more definite.

"The industry appears to be generating its own momentum, for actual price advances or serious threats of impending increases are driving in tonnage, which in turn emboldens producers to seek more remunerative levels.

"While the automotive requirements are well sustained and still dominate, the base of the market structure broadens each week."

WHEAT ACREAGE REDUCED

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—Reports to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics indicate that wheat acreage in 25 countries, excepting Russia, but including both winter wheat for harvest and the intended spring wheat acreage in the United States and Canada, is 14,686,000 acres, or about 5 per cent below the 194,121,000 acres in 1932.

J. M. Simpson has been elected a director of the Lone Star Gas Corporation, filling the vacancy caused by the death of F. W. Crawford.

COMPANY ADDS NEW SERVICE STATION

At least one Pittsburgh organization has been expanding during the recent years of declining general business. Oblivious of the depression, the Rocolene Refining Company has built and acquired 25 gasoline stations in Greater Pittsburgh. The company was incorporated by a group of courageous Pittsburghers at a time when dark clouds were beginning to gather on the business horizon.

BUILT OF STEEL

Their latest venture is a new station at the busy East Liberty corner of Broad and Highland avenue. It is a unique departure in building materials, according to J. D. Corner, vice president of the Rocolene Company. He said:

"In an effort to attain the ultimate in cleanliness and attractiveness, we selected for this new project, porcelain enamel steel plates in green and cream for the outer structure. There is nothing like it in Pittsburgh. The exterior surface of this station is as clean and attractive as your kitchen sink."

Another feature of the new station, which will be officially opened very soon, is the accessory display case constructed in each of the four central pumps. These innovations, popular in other parts of the country, are new in Pittsburgh, according to William J. Sarver, Pittsburgh manager.

LOCAL MEN HIRED

Officials of the Rocolene Company attribute their progressive success during the trying last two years, to the highly localized nature of each individual station organization. Mr. Sarver said:

"They are community stations, catering to community needs. The manager and attendants of each station are neighborhood people. Each station deals with the bank in the neighborhood. Our consumers know that the money they spend remains in Pittsburgh and is subject to no national chain control."

With the completion of the new East Liberty station, plans are being expedited for an expansion program in the Beaver Valley district, officials say.

Josiah's wife was known as "Mrs. Josiah" and Edward's wife as "Mrs. Edward"—although she never came near the place. They lived in Switzerland. Alice lived in England, and at rare intervals Harry's sister, Margaret, visited "Lyndhurst."

I began to long avidly for a home of my own. None of the other Thaw children lived with Mother Thaw. She insisted on directing the lives of every one living under her roof and took a great pride in what she called her "executive ability."

Summer in Cresson

Then summer came and we went to Cresson, in the Allegheny Mountains of Pennsylvania. Mother Thaw had built a house in a really beautiful locality. There we spent an uneventful summer. Only a few incidents are worth recording.

A friend of ours came to visit—a man. He was an expert shot. He could stand with his feet close together and fire a bullet right down between the soles of his shoes without the slightest danger of hurting himself.

Harry fixed a target and began practicing with a gun. It was his ambition, he said, to shoot that well, so that he could do the same thing this man did. I paid little or no attention to the whole business. It meant nothing at the time, but every day they were out on the lawn shooting at the target.

The man's name me out later in the trial, so there is no reason why I shouldn't use it here. It was William Sturgis.

One night Thaw got very drunk. It was chilly up in the mountains and we were all sitting around a log fire. He announced that if anything happened to him, I was to marry William Sturgis and he would leave all his money to me under those conditions. Both Sturgis and I were much amused, as neither of us had any such idea—at least, I know I didn't.

Championing a Dog

Then a pastor came to Cresson for a visit. As usual, all the dogs on the place had attached themselves to me, among others a large Irish setter with beautiful eyes. I was particularly fond of this dog.

One evening as we sat on the verandah after dinner, the dog walked up to the clergyman, who sat in a large wicker chair smoking a cigar. The dog licked his hand. Out shot the minister's foot and the dog ran howling off the verandah. Then one of my eccentricities asserted itself.

"How dare you?" I cried. "How dared you do such a thing? How dared you kick a dog? You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Horrified, Mother Thaw rose from her chair.

"Child," she said. "Child, do you realize you are speaking to the cloth? Apologize!"

"I will not," I snapped, getting up and walking away, and as a parting shot before I disappeared into the house, I looked back and said:

"I wouldn't trust him with a quarter. Any man that would kick a dog—"

Next day the minister apologized to me; said that he was sorry; that he kicked the dog without thinking.

In the late fall we returned to town. Thaw's "business" trips began again, and as time went on they increased in frequency.

Every morning my maid, Nellie, brought me my breakfast on a tray. One morning, just as she handed me the tray, there was a terrible commotion in Harry's room. It was a quarrel between Thaw and his English valet, Bedford.

Thaw in a Rage

During the quarrel, Thaw picked up a heavy iron with which Bedford had been pressing his clothes and hurled it at the long-suffering Englishman.

Instead of hitting Bedford, the iron crashed through a window and fell on the lawn below, where a gardener was working in the shrubbery. It missed the gardener's head by a fraction of an inch.

There was quite a fuss about it when Mother Thaw discovered what happened.

One day Ethel Barrymore came to town with a play. Thaw thought it would be nice to ask her to dinner, but Josiah's wife heard about it and insisted that she invite her to her house instead of "Lyndhurst."

It was just as well, Mother Thaw said, for she had never entertained an actress in her house.

Only a few days later, my maid, Nellie, decided to give our rooms a thorough cleaning, and while she was dusting the top of one of those cabinets I had brought down from the tower, she discovered at least a dozen whips hidden in a secret drawer. She brought them to me. There were whips of all sorts and descriptions.

"Where did you find them?" I asked.

"Well, they're not mine."

I picked up the whips and laid them on a chair. That evening when Harry came up to dress for dinner, I showed them to him. His face turned green. With an attempt to suppress his fury, he asked me where I had found them. I explained. The next time I saw Nellie her eyes were red from weeping.

"What's the matter, Nellie?"

"Nothing, my lady, nothing.'

After considerable questioning, I got it out of her.

"It's because of them whips I found. Mr. Thaw talked something brutal to me."

A Nightmare

One night I had a nightmare. I must have let out a few screeches because Harry came running from his room and even Mother Thaw heard me. In her nightrobe she marched into our rooms and made a significant remark. She knew her son. Glaring at Harry, she demanded:

"Did you strike her?"

"No," simpered Harry.

She stared straight into his eyes for a full minute.

"If you ever lay a hand on her," she said, slowly, "I'll cut you off without a dime."

(To Be Continued.)

STOCK MARKET FINAL TONE IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Stocks backed and filled today in a highly nervous market that apparently failed to respond either to the new European peace move or to continued improvement in domestic business and industry.

Loss of fractions to a point or more were scattered throughout the list. The close was irregular.

Equities generally reflected the renewed weakness of wheat and sagging tendencies of cattle and hogs. Some of the oils and metals were given an early run, but most of them failed to follow through. The tobaccos were a trifle heavy and American Telephone and Allied Chemical alternately slid off and recovered. A last minute rally enabled several of the leaders to cancel most of their previous losses.

While the week-end business news continued favorable, stock traders were inclined to caution, in view of the magnitude of the advance of recent weeks, and the levelling off of the trend last week. Brokers said there was some short selling in expectation of a technical reaction, but the comparative quietness of the market on reactions was encouraging.

While business news was favorable, Wall street was not sure how thoroughly the improvement may already have been discounted in the market. Indications of a letdown in industry with the approach of summer were still lacking, for the most part. The first large railroad to report its freight movement for last week was Santa Fe, which showed 21,664 cars, a shade above the previous week's total of 21,628, and close to the like week of last year, when 22,310 cars were moved.

Bituminous coal production, which is something of a barometer of activity in industry, particularly heavy industries like steel, was reported at 5,080,000 tons for the week ended May 13, against 4,810,000 in the preceding week, and 4,295,000 in the like week of last year.

The statement of Jesse T. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that there had been evidence for two months of national recovery, both in the decrease in the number of loan applications and in the liquidation of loans, attracted attention.

COTTON CLOSES STEADY, HIGHER

NEW YORK, May 22.—An opening advance in cotton today was followed by declines under a renewal of liquidation and scattered selling being influenced by a favorable view of the weather news and easier grain and stock markets.

After selling up to 8.35, July eased to 8.11, making net declines of about 11 to 15 points.

The market steadied late in the day on covering following a rally in the stock market. Futures closed firm, 8-12 higher. May, 8.24; July, 8.31-32; October, 8.56-57; December, 8.71-72; January, 8.77; March, 8.92. Spot quiet, middling, 8.40.

FACTORS POINT TO CAUTION IN N.Y. MARKET

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Let us carefully weigh the bull and bear points on the stock market, and consider probabilities without prejudice. On the bull side, we find the following:

1—The volume has declined on the whole during the last two days of weakness, and the closing sell-off on Saturday may be ascribed to week-end profit-taking.

'BEAR' ARGUMENTS

On the bear side are the following points:

1—The volume of trading picked up considerably on the closing sell-off Saturday when it was notable that the largest majority of minus signs in a long while appeared in the list. These indications may be temporary, but they are notable changes.

2—The tapering off of the upward trend has become pronounced and a conservatively drawn straight line of uptrend was definitely broken by Saturday's closing average. The averages show no progress in about 10 days.

3—The utility group has shown distinct weakness, and when the rails were taken up, the move was swamped by selling, so that the rails have so far failed to "confirm" a bull market.

4—Such stocks as Steel, American Can, American Tobacco and General Motors show signs of distribution.

Veritable battles on a large scale have been fought in General Motors around 23¼ and big Steel around 49-50, without bull success. (Meanwhile jiggles in the oils and coppers arouse suspicion).

LET-DOWN SEASON NEAR

5—The test of a seasonal let-down in business is near, with the motor industry at peak and signs of a slackening in the pace of steel already suggested. Car loadings were not bullish, the gain being only about seasonal, despite a big spurt in coal loadings.

6—The week closed with wheat down 5-6 cents from top and cotton off ¾ dollars a bale on bearish crop and carry over news. This move began with inflation talk, but recently the dollar has been strong.

The seamy side of government "planning" is beginning to appear as taxes loom, and industrial dictators are set up without war enthusiasm to back them.

8—The Washington investigation of bankers gets under way.

STORM SIGNALS

My conclusion is that definite indications of an immediate break are not clear. The possibility of another attempt to push them up remains, although somewhat limited by exhaustion of buying power and high prices of leading issues.

But already there are some storm signals. If not in, I would certainly not get in now. If in, would protect my position.

BASIC TRADES CONTINUE TO IMPROVE

While reports of improvement were numerous, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., found that the movement forward was at a slower pace.

That increased trade activity has already had a wholesome effect on the unemployment situation in indicated by the fact that further reductions are appearing weekly in the number of applications for relief in many of the country's large industrial centers.

Textiles, electric power production, automobile output, steel production and car loadings were among the more prominent fundamental indicators which registered gains last week.

The demand for cotton textiles has been surging ahead at such a lively rate that many mills reported production far behind demand despite 24-hour operating schedules. Commission houses explained that the advance was being made at increasing prices for practically all grades of goods.

POWER OUTPUT UP

Electric power consumption offered particular proof of a broadening industrial activity as it continued to wend its way strongly upward. Output for the latest reported week stood at 1,468,035,000 kilowatt hours, a gain of 2.2 per cent over the corresponding week of a year ago.

The automobile industry finds itself at the peak of the year. New car output for the week ended May 20 was estimated by Cram at 55,801 units, an increase of 4,130 over the preceding week and the ninth successive week to show an improvement. Last week's production was thus the highest attained since the week of June 13, 1931.

Steel schedules last week again showed a buoyant advance. Output stood at 40 per cent of capacity, a spurt of 4 points, according to the magazine Steel, which believes that the coming week will show a still further gain. The base of the market structure of the industry broadens each week, it was explained, although automotive requirements were well sustained and still dominant.

RAIL TRAFFIC GAINS

Traffic handled by the railroads for the week ended May 13 totaled 531,095 cars, an increase of 7,276 cars over the previous week and 13,835 cars or 2.6 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago. This is the first weekly improvement over the like period of a previous year since 1930, with the exception of one week which was distorted by holidays.

The return of better shopping weather enabled retail stores to increase sales totals, it was reported, with reports showing interest shifting strongly to the better qualities of merchandise.

An analysis of the wholesale market showed that orders for dry goods, hardware, paints, groceries, knitwear, hosiery and shoes were being extended well into the fall season, in order to take advantage of the current level of prices.

OBITUARY

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER VI.

We arrived in Rabaul on a Friday. On Monday I had been offered a job, accepted it, and started in to work. It was offered to me at the Boat-Night dance at the European Hotel—wages $125 a month. I was to punch a typewriter and make myself useful generally at the headquarters of one of the copra trading firms in Rabaul. It was invaluable, that experience.

Primarily, I was saving money instead of spending it. Furthermore, I lost the sigma of being merely a looker-on.

Business in the South Pacific!

Rabaul is a museum of the most haphazard business methods extant. Except for executives, the longest a clerk had been known to stick at his desk was six months. Salaries are not big enough to attract the best men, and in consequence business is in the hands of the restless floating population that passes through, generally on the way to the gold fields.

Books get into a hopeless tangle, and the man in charge of them throws up the job, leaving it to the next in line to straighten them out. Things go wrong. Maskee! The men go to the house-drink around the corner and drown the thought. We had amusing little monkeys (half-grown native boys) for office boys, a half-dozen of them. Their chief duties were to pick up whatever we might drop, trot obligingly back and forth with letters to be signed, and fetch us icewater when we sang out, "Monkey!"

FRIEND OF ADVENTURER

The return to Chinatown after a day's flexible routine of so-called business was invariably a lively treat. For Nicki would be waiting there. Nicki was an adventurer, nomad, strange composite of irresponsibility and strength, of bad and good, an intellectual bearing the mark of an ancient and alien god on his soul. Rare comrades, Nicki and I, for many weeks, seeing all things eye to eye, finding an answering sympathy each of us in the other. He had long since penetrated beneath the languid surface to the unsound core of these islands, but he found them a better place to live than post-war Europe.

He, to, had chosen Chinatown to live in. It was dirty, it was noisy, it was restless, it was no doubt reprehensible. Still, I loved to watch it from my gallery at the brief dusk. Then, quieted temporarily, Chinatown turns indoors for its evening rice, and the strident gramophones stop for a while. From the hills comes steadily the throbbing rhythm of native drums. That beating—a swift and flawless system of wireless—becomes as much a part of existence as breath itself. The thin white curls of signal-smoke in the hills give place to a red glow, like eyes ever trained on the handful of white invaders.

Adding to the fascination of this strange, not very virtuous little Rabaul, is the undercurrent raised by the magic word Gold. For up in the hills of New Guinea mainland, behind Salamaua, up at Edie Creek, and in the Bulolo Valley, gold has been found. The mountains are guarding their secret jealously, but nature is not entirely ungracious, for here, too, in generous quantities, is reef and alluvial gold. And men are breaking their hearts, and their lives, and their youth in search of it.

FACE MANY HARDSHIPS

Men of all strata of society, of all degrees of education, have been flocking to Salamaua Beach by schooner, or by the crazy little steamer John Douglas, which, alas, came a cropper in a monsoon not long ago. Unspeakable hardships face the gold-hunter at Edie Creek and Salamaua and Bulolo Valley—unbroken jungle, continuous rain, kneedeep mud, fever, hostile natives, and the savagery of other white men in conditions where the code is every man for himself and devil take the hindmost.

The great problems are the extracting of the precious ore and the getting of it back to safety and to a place where it has market value. It seems almost impossible to transport adequate machinery up into those purple tiers of mountains. But slowly and surely man is triumphing. The airplane here, as everwhere, is helping accomplish the impossible. Now the prospector, if he can afford it, takes one of the two planes operating from Salamaua Beach to within six days' jungle walk of the nearest known field.

This little airplane route up to the New Guinea gold fields is one of the first self-supporting, unsubsidized airplane routes in the world. For a while Ray Parer, the famous young Australian flier, piloted the plane. It was he who, with his co-pilot McIntosh, flew from England to Australia in 1920, long before the great trans—Pacific flight of the Southern Cross. Out in New Guinea Ray Parer is a national hero, and his was one of the heroic flights of history, of which the world has heard too little.

PITIFUL STORIES

After months in the gold fields, it is small wonder that prospectors come down to Rabaul to blow off steam, to celebrate success or drown failure, and to make considerable stir in the community. Then champagne is ordered by the case, and opened just for the joy of hearing the cork pop—even if nobody can drink any more.

In Rabaul every white person has his story, usually the story of failure or dispair in another part of the world. Moving among them, getting beneath the surface of their personalities and their histories, I grew to regard them with even more interest than I did the natives of the primitive world around me.

At Ah Chee's I discovered Old Craig. That's the only name any one knew him by, apparently. He was a remittance man, paid to keep away from his family. He's an old man now, and New Guinea has taken toll from him. Time was when he was a successful blackbirder, in the old days, and made plenty of money trading in pearlshell as well as in kanakas. But he drank too much and lost something that makes for success the world over. At the first of every month he gets a remittance from "down south;" by the fifth of every month he hasn't a shilling left. He gets drunk, stays drunk, gambles in Chinatown until his monthly dole is gone. He is literally homeless, a pitiful old beachcomber. For a while he was sleeping on the veranda of Ah Chee's in a deck chair.

OLD MAN ORDERED AWAY

One morning I went down to breakfast. No one else had yet come down. In a few minutes Old Craig entered, fumbling his hat. He stood at the swinging half-doors of the dining-room, helplessly; then, seeing the room empty save for me entered and slid in as a child does who doesn't want to be noticed. The kanaka servant brought my fruit and coffee. Seeing the old man, he began shooting him out. Helplessly, blearily, Old Craig got out of his chair and stood looking aimlessly about, fingers rumpling his battered Stetson, while the native kept on saying, "You go! No got kaikai 'long you!" I knew that he would get fed before the morning was over; Ah Chee never let a man who asked of him go hungry, so I didn't interfere. But my eyes saw what the South Pacific too often does to a white man.

There was a man who frequently upheld the bar at Ah Chee's whose appearance, of all the nondescript personalities there, was the strangest. Peyton was a big Australian, soft with the flabby fatness that comes with too little exercise and too much beer. In one eye he wore a monocle from which dangled a black ribbon; the other eye was glass. His once-handsome face had been made over by plastic surgery, following a horrid accident of the war. His forehead was singularly high, due to a marvelously inserted silver trepan, but its unnatural sight was somewhat counteracted by a bang of dark hair. Despite all this he was still handsome.

FEAR OF SUPERNATURAL

Peyton managed a plantation out along the North Shore. He is one of several persons upon whom island gossip has pinned the famous story of the glass eye. If a white man can work upon the natives' fear of the supernatural, he has a valuable hold on them. All plantation managers and recruiters know the value of sleight of hand, ventriloquism, conjuring, and the like. Removing a set of false teeth fills a kanaka with wonder and wholesome respect; it places the owner of the teeth on a plane with the gods.

Now, the monocled Peyton had a natural talent for whiling comfortable hours away on his veranda with a bottle of beer at his elbow and a boy to sway a punkah over his head. But he knew that plantation laborers will soldier on the job when not watched. It occurred to him one day that his glass eye might serve him well; so the next morning at bell-o (the assembling of native labor at sunrise, when each is detailed to a task for the day) he took his eye out, placed it on a box so that it apparently overlooked the plantation, and spoke somewhat as follows: "Now you looklook good along h'eye belong me. 'Im'e looklook good along you olotime. S'pose me fella me sleep, h'eye belong me can looklook good along you olosame. Now s'pose you lazy, me savvy. Now raus!"

It worked. He got a good vacation, and the boys labored earnestly. But after a week things weren't going so well. So one day he wandered down to his glass eye, and found it covered with an empty jam tin.

THE BATTLE OF SADOWA (KOENIGGRATZ)

The decisive battle lasted seven weeks. Austria's defeat meant the end of Hapsburg supremacy in Germany and Prussia's victory the beginning of Prussian leadership in German politics. The underlying cause of the war was the possession of Schleswig-Holstein. (World's History).

OPEN PIT MINE OF ALUMINUM ORE IN ARKANSAS

Aluminum is the basis of the oldest and newest chemical industries. The former used the clay (an aluminum silicate) for pottery and china, the latter concerns itself with the production of metallic aluminum. The main commercial source of metallic aluminum is the bauxite, a hydrated aluminum oxide ($Al_2O_3.2H_2O$). Here a steam shovel is shown loading bauxite into railway cars. (Chemistry).

PRODUCTION OF METALLIC ALUMINUM IN ELECTRIC FURNACE

This electric furnace, which acts also as an electrolytic cell, consists of a steel structure, heat-insulated inside and lined with carbon, which serves as a cathod. The anods are carbon blocks which can be lowered on the charge to produce electric arcs. First, cryolite (sodium-aluminum fluoride (Na_3AlF_6), an ore imported from Greenland), is charged and electric arcs produced to melt it promptly. In this cryolite bath is charged purified anhydrous aluminum oxide (Al_2O_3), which dissolves. From this electrolyte pure aluminum is obtained at the cathod (carbon lining) in molten form, collecting at the bottom. The anhydrous aluminum oxide is obtained by dissolving bauxite in a lye (NaOH) solution, which separates the oxide from iron and silica. Pure hydrous aluminum oxide precipitates and is transformed into anhydrous aluminum oxide by dehydrating. (Chemistry).

IGNITION OF EXPLOSION MOTORS

The induced current in the secondary circuit has high tension (voltage), giving a spark between A-B whenever the cam interrupts the low tension primary current furnished by the battery. (Smith: Industrial Electricity). (Science).

PART OF BRAIN WITH PITUITARY AND PINEAL BODIES

The pituitary gland, the size of a hazel nut, is located beneath the brain in a bone socket. Insert underneath shows the natures of the cells of the two lobes, the anterior being glandular and producing "tethelin," a substance controlling the growth of the skeleton, and the posterior, chiefly nervous tissue and secreting "pituitrin," which affects the use of carbohydrates and the fat deposition in the body, the sizes of blood vessels and the blood-pressure. The pineal gland, the size of a pea, is at the base of the brain and prevents premature puberty. (Caldwell, Skinner, Tietz: Biological Foundations of Education).

MUTUAL INDUCTION (Science)

Sparks From a Short Circuit

The professor picked up another stroke at the next screen by continuing with the remark that the cerebrum has four quadrillion dynamos capable of generating the tremendous power of lighting the inside of your derby hat.

While indirect illumination of this kind is beautiful and also practical we consider that the prof is more or less theoretical in his profound formulas.

He makes man an electric bulb with ears. He classifies our thoughts as direct or alternating. Nobody has ever seen electricity or can describe it. Nobody knows what it is. All we know is that we press a button and the wrong man opens the door.

We don't care to have a brain that is a power plant when we look back and remember what happened to public utilities in 1929.

We wish the professor would go over his lecture again and eliminate the references to dynamos and switchboards. It is terrifying to think that you can blow out a fuse while picking your teeth with a fork.

Ben Franklin discovered electricity while flying a kite near the congressional playgrounds in Philadelphia. He was holding the kite for one of our dignified and austere colonial ancestors. An older man than Ben.

A bolt of certified lightning struck the kite, ran down a silk string, nickel-plated a key, shocked Ben, toasted his feet and taught him a lesson. He went back to marbles and hoop rolling. He was 48 at the time.

That's all we know about electricity and that includes refrigerators and the wires from the horn to the battery in wet weather.

While not agreeing with the prof we are willing to hook up in a joint debate. We always let the other man talk first so we can find out what it's all about.

Develop Squaw Run

The County's Recreation Facilities Will Be Inadequate Without Greater Provision for Water Sports.

As the development of the county's North and South Parks proceeds, wholesome recreation in many forms is furnished to an increasingly large number of people.

But our recreation facilities will still be inadequate unless greater provision is made for water sports. The County Commissioners might find it interesting to read what Richard C. Batley, of the State Water and Power Resources Board, has to say on "Recreation and Water" in this week's "Service Letter" of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters.

We need another county park—a water park—and do not have to go far to find a suitable location. The valley of Squaw Run, at the point where it empties into the Allegheny River, a mile or two above Aspinwall, is just the place.

A committee headed by John M. Rice, consulting engineer, has made a detailed study and report on the possibilities of this location. It can easily be transformed into a recreation center where many thousands could swim and wade, paddle canoes and skate. The water can be kept clean and sanitary with a minimum of difficulty, and there are other advantages; for example, the site is centrally located and has good transportation facilities, and the land, it is believed, could be acquired quickly and at a reasonable price.

The advent of hot weather, accentuating the demand for outdoor public swimming pools, makes it timely to renew the demand for the consideration of this proposal.

Up to Congress

The Best Plan for Raising Additional Revenue Is Through A General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

Congress has an opportunity at this juncture to free itself of emotion and consider the problem of providing additional revenues on its merits.

It has already heartened the country by inaugurating the tax on beer and wines.

The same principle of an excise tax on consumable goods should be further adopted in the form of a general manufacturers' sales tax, modeled after the successful Canadian system.

The President has pointed out the need of additional funds to meet relief expenditures and for the debt service in connection with public works projects.

The sales tax commends itself to public approval because it will raise additional revenues in abundant quantities in a relatively painless manner.

First devoted to emergency economic purposes, this method of taxation will get an opportunity to demonstrate its superiority to the American people.

Later it can be used as a permanent supplement to the existing scheme of federal imposts, enabling the government to lower the rate on onerous income taxes.

The effect of such tax reductions would not only be to encourage the enterprising and creative classes, who provide employment, but also to assure an accumulation of capital to finance the expanding needs of business in the next upward swing.

Undue reliance on the income tax tends to exhaust savings. Those with a residue are tempted to an inordinate extent to seek exemption from taxation in tax-exempt government bonds.

Based in the last analysis on business profits, it tends to put the treasury in a "prince or pauper" position. In times of boom and large profits, the tax yield is large, but in periods of acute depression the actual receipts are so low as to cause enormous governmental deficits.

On the other hand, the general manufacturers' sales tax is based on business transactions, which are always relatively stable, rather than on profits, which fluctuate violently.

In a valuable statement before the House Ways and Means Committee last year, the late Thomas S. Adams, of Yale, at the time the nation's foremost authority on public finance, said, in describing the Canadian manufacturers' sales tax:

"We found little complaint against it. . . By reason of the general set-up of the tax, the consumer never knows that he is paying the tax. . . .

". . . I have no doubt that, if you gentlemen would provide in the tax law for the same administrative celerity and elasticity found in the Canadian law, a tax on the Canadian model would be absolutely practicable for this country, and would produce large revenue. I have no doubt about that."

Congress in its present session has already contributed notably to economic rehabilitation.

It should crown its record of achievement with thoroughgoing taxation reform, based on expert knowledge and demonstrated successful experience in Canada and elsewhere.

Bad for Both

Girls Shouldn't Hitch-Hike; Autoists Should Not Pick Up Hitch-Hiking Girls.

Most persons are decent and honest; but enough are not to make it worth while to give serious attention to a warning that has just been issued by Supt. Wilson C. Price, of the State Highway Patrol. The warning has to do with girls who beg passing autoists for a ride.

Price advises girls not to request a lift from strangers. He says:

"The good Samaritan who answers your upturned thumb may not be such a good Samaritan after all. Many a hitch-hiking girl has found herself going in the opposite direction once in the car."

And motorists are told:

"The innocent miss alone on the roadside is not always as innocent as she appears. Many an operator discovered this when a revolver nudged his ribs. And when he stopped at the command of the girl it was to meet her boy friend waiting at the appointed spot on the highway to rob him."

What makes the warning more impressive is that it is based not on speculation as to what might happen, but on the actual reports of highway patrolmen as to what is happening.

Pond and Puddle

By Nelson Harding

That puddle once was quite a pool
When there was lots of rain,
But now the pool is drying up
And pails are brought in vain.

But there is water in the pond,
And wouldn't you suppose
The man who has those pails to fill
Would look beyond his nose?

Marry-Go-Round

Men No Longer Deceivers

Men are no longer "deceivers." They don't bother to deceive a woman in these frank, artless days. They won't even permit her to deceive HERSELF!

* * *

Most men are so unflatteringly candid that when a heart-balm collector gets up in court and swears that some man has deceived her with pledges and false promises, it's a wonder that the judge can keep from laughing.

"Promises!" WHAT promises? A man doesn't PROMISE a girl anything, nowadays—not even when she begs him to! In fact, he is so careful to refrain from committing himself, that he positively leans backward in his effort to make it plain to her that she "musn't take him seriously."

* * *

His eyes may speak volumes or his kisses breathe rapture—but he doesn't say it with WORDS! And when it comes to putting it on paper, he compresses all his ardour on a picture postcard.

* * *

In Grandmother's day, there may have been unsophisticated maidens, who were betrayed into or out of marriage. But no modern girl is sufficiently naive to be fooled, even if a man would take the TROUBLE to fool her.

* * *

The old-fashioned villain may have deceived a woman by pretending to love her, when he didn't. But the only way in which today's "villain" tries to fool a woman is by pretending NOT to love her when he DOES.

* * *

A modern girl hasn't known a man half an hour before she has him all classified and catalogued. He doesn't even bother to whitewash himself or to conceal his faults from her. Indeed, he seems to enjoy painting himself a little darker than he really is—a little more cynical, fickle or abandoned to sin.

So, when a girl walks up the middle-aisle, today, she knows exactly what's going to meet her at the altar. Marriage is no longer a dangerous gamble — for the woman. It's more apt to be a delightful surprise.

* * *

And when one of these "wronged" ladies takes the witness chair and vows that a man has deceived her with ardent love-making and golden promises, either she's inventing it or she wrote the words out and made him say them over after her. Or else she's found a miracle man we'd all just love to meet!

* * *

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 22.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up, carrying Maj. Dickson's Pekinese puppy to Buff Cobb Brody's daughter, Pat. Then strolling by the cluck and sag of the East River and through Sutton Place, a workman crying a pox on me for stepping on his newly laid cement. So to my typing.

By and by, George Rector stopped in, his countenance always suggesting the man in the moon, and we fell to a game-some discussion of the best foods and upon his departure sneaked out and raided the ice box. Came Henry Sell atwitter over that thin brochure called "No Nice Girl Swears."

The Karl Kitchens and Robert Garlands to dinner and they away to a play and my wife and Will and Jessie Hays to a news reel. Afterward to a drug store fountain and, becoming suddenly riotously drunk with properity, spent 68 cents at a penny sale. Then home, dressing for the bon voyage to Lady Furness.

Such natty blades as Francis Lederer, Basil Durant and Tommy Manville sport wider shoulders than ever with pinched-in waists dropping in straight line from the hips. Roomy sleeves also taper to a tight wrist. Favorite color appears to be tobacco brown with bottle green shirtings. Too, I notice several tony dressers in ex-King Alphonso's newest combination—a suit of fog grey with collor and shirt to match and jet black tie. O, yes, also a black silk display handkerchief.

That quality Thackeray described as New York's "uncommon splendatiousness" is vanishing at the luncheon hour. Hundreds who used to ride in limousines, swaying with orchids, "now walk unadorned." Instead of cocktails and jazz there are beer and strains of Johann Strauss. The cozy dollar-for-celery-and-olives places are deserted for barn-like spots with a hat rack near each table.

There appear no more pianists whose light improvisations gave such panache to stage and drawing rooms. I think of Melville Ellis and Edith Baker, but there are others. Those in the middle groove have vanished.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He can't believe it yet. There's a terrible rebellion about his grief. It mustn't be! It can't be! Why, look at all he'd planned—

Ever since he was a boy he'd planned to do things for Mother—weary, little, widowed mother, who'd done so much for him. Yes, sir; some day he'd make it all up to her—some day, when he could Do Things In A Big Way—show his gratitude with something that was worth while. Buy her a velvet dress—and a little car—and a house with roses over the porch—and—

Were those the things Mother wanted? Not particularly. What she really wanted—waiting there in her shabby little room, with death creeping nearer and nearer—was something that wouldn't have cost a cent.

Just a letter now and then. Her boy's voice over phone. His photograph. The touch of his hand, when the pain grew too bad. A bunch of flowers.

Such simple things to want! Such easy things to give! And of course he meant to give them. But—you know how it is. He was so busy. So worried. But some day—some day when he had the time and the money to Do Things Right—then he'd show her!

But now she's dead. And he can't ever show her—can't ever do the great things he'd planned. Oh, he can't, he won't believe it! It's too cruel! Why, she went without knowing all the beautiful things he was going to do for her—some day.

"Some day." What a ghastly will-o-the-wisp it is! How it tricks and betrays us! And why?

Is it really because we're too hurried and worried, or too lazy and dazy, to do things NOW?

That's part of it, but not the deep part.

WE LIVE IN "SOME DAY" BECAUSE WE WON'T GROW UP.

Ever listen to a 13-year-old Boy Scout planning his future career? How blithely he skips all the intermediate steps — all the dreary drudgery and discipline — and lands plump into the midst of the shining vision of future glory!

You laugh at the little Boy Scout—

BUT ARE YOU QUITE SURE THAT YOU AREN'T A LITTLE BOY SCOUT YOURSELF?

What's the sign of a Boy Scout? What's the proof of that lasting unripeness that psychologists call "infantilism?"

That trick of living in Some Day—that's the sign. Those glorious dreams of doing things In A Big Way. That refusal to do things in a little way—a tiresome, unglorified way. There's the proof.

Little boys can't be bothered to do the things at hand. Hate to clean up the mess they made. Must all be Generals. Must have everything their own way, or they won't play.

But a man—a grown-up human—lives in today. Learns the hard, humiliation of taking and giving, a half loaf if he can't get, or give, a whole. Dodges day dreams as he'd dodge any other dope. Does what he can, and calls it a day.

Which are you—
Infant, or Man?

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Text for Today

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—John, xiv:27.

This Girl Can Skate

In ancient Crete, in the bull ring, young girls in their teens, rings of bronze riveted around their waists, forbidding fatness, seized the rushing bull by the horns, vaulted over its head, landing on its hind quarters and jumping lightly to the ground.

The trained Crete girl thought little of that performance, although occasionally, when she missed that was the end of her bull-jumping.

This remarkable young woman, Sonia Henie, only 18 years old, has beaten all women of the world as skating champion. In fact there is no one that approaches her, although Fraulein F. Burger, of Austria, stands second, and Mrs. C. Wilson-Samuel, of Canada, third.

Dr. Chile, of Cleveland, scientist, with terrific facts and figures could tell you an interesting story of HOW this girl does it.

To begin with, she has in her brain FOUR QUADRILLION SEPARATE DYNAMOS, ALL HELPING THE BRAIN WORK.

And more important, for skating, she has an arrangement in her ear something like the drop of oil in a carpenter's "level" that tells her brain, automatically, sending the message through the nerves, just when she is out of balance.

Whatever "fancy skating" any woman on earth can do Sonia Henie can do, and much more. And through it all she smiles, for those who do things BEST do them MOST EASILY.

She depends on courage, patient practice, extraordinary development, but that which really does the work and does not get the credit is the little arrangement in the ear that tells about the balance of the body.

You have such an arrangement in your ear. If as sometimes happens in disease, locomotor ataxia, for instance, that little drop of oil should dry up and no longer tell the brain about your position, you could not stand if you closed your eyes, or walk without looking on the ground at each step, even with your eyes open.

We are, as the Bible says, "fearfully and wonderfully made," and this skating girl proves it.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't be so interested in your own home, your personal friends, your hobbies and your principal line of work that you can't stop long enough to find out what those around you are doing.

In other words, don't be self-centered.

Of course there must be a certain amount of concentrated effort to be successful in what is undertaken.

But to look around occasionally is to have a lot more respect for the intelligence and ability of your friends.

Also you might learn something.

You should have an ambition to be normal and sane in your efforts.

You should want to be a well-rounded individual.

To expand on only one side is disastrous, eventually, whether it be a tree or a person so deformed.

It is very true that certain kinds of work require an uninterrupted application to build up, and that to stop in the midst is to spoil the train of thought that directs the project.

But there should come a rest period commensurate with the effort.
